Landon Asks "No Third Term" Pledge from F. D. R.

CHURCHILL IS MADE VIRTUAL DICTATOR

Says GOP Would Then Be Willing To Participate In Coalition Directorate

President Roosevelt Replies That He Has No Time Now To Make "Political Statements"

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Alf M. Landon demanded a "no third term" pledge from President Roosevelt today as the terms of Republican participation in any coalition defense directorate, and the president asserted, in a coldly polite reply, that he had no time for "political statements."

Alf M. Landon

The exchange took place after Landon, Republican presidential candidate in 1936, had lunched with the chief executive at the latter's invitation. There had been speculation that the luncheon might lead to a "coalition cabinet" or some other form of joint Democratic-Republican direction of the huge rearmament program.

Opposed To Coalition Now

After the luncheon, Landon issued a typewritten statement to a great cluster of reporters surrounding him in a nearby hotel lobby, saying that Republican leaders could not at present enter into any coalition arrangement without making themselves a party to the third-term movement—a movement which he held to be incompatible with democracy's "basic principles."

At the same time, he explained that his statement was not the result of the luncheon conference as his proposal had not been made to Mr. Roosevelt directly, and the third term had been discussed in only a casual and "off-hand" manner.

The Landon expression was shown to the president, and the White House statement was quickly prepared.

Says Other Problems Greater

"The president regrets," it stated, "that he has no time, just now, to give to the preparation of political statements. He is too busily engaged with problems of far greater national importance."

The statement also said that Mr. Roosevelt was "very grateful to the ex-governor of Kansas, who was his luncheon guest today, for his suggestions contained in the statement the governor has written for the press."

"None of the subjects mentioned by Mr. Landon in his statement were discussed with the president at the luncheon," it added, "except only the seriousness of the military situation in Europe. The president was very glad to receive Mr. Landon."

Congress, meanwhile, was working swiftly to provide the hundreds of millions which Mr. Roosevelt requested for the armament expansion. It took four long steps:

(1) The Senate passed 74-0 the $1,823,254,624 army bill containing regular appropriations and most of the money which Mr. Roosevelt asked for that service and its air corps. The measure now goes back to the House for action on Senate changes.

(2) The Senate appropriations committee approved and

Dewey To Get New Jersey's Sixteen Votes

Wendell L. Willkie Draws Sizeable Write-in Tally in Primary

NEWARK, N. J., May 22 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie drew a sizeable write-in tally on his first appearance in presidential preferential balloting as results of New Jersey's primary election disclosed today a surprising rout of former governor Harold G. Hoffman in his bid for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Thomas E. Dewey

Although Willkie's total of 13,831 in 1,964 of the state's 3,631 election districts was far behind the 224,453 rolled up yesterday by Thomas E. Dewey in 2,325 districts, supporters of the utilities magnate said they were pleased Willkie outstripped all other unentered prospects for the Republican presidential nomination.

Dewey, New York district attorney, sole candidate on the preferential ballot backed by leaders of both major factions in the bitterly contested gubernatorial party contest, gathered the state's thirty-two convention votes.

President Roosevelt automatically gained thirty-two Democratic convention votes, all pledged to a third term. The president, unentered, received a scattered write-in vote.

State Senator Robert C. Hendrickson, 41-year old attorney, scored a 34,396 majority over the favored Hoffman after one of the most heated primary fights in party history.

In the November election he will face Charles Edison, secretary of the navy, whose unopposed candidacy for the Democratic nomination brought out 257,675 votes in 2,521 districts. Hendrickson received 282,593.

United States Senator W. Warren Barbour, Locust Republican, had little trouble gaining renomination, with 357,362 in 3,034 districts. His

England Places Men and Wealth In the Hands of Prime Minister

Parliament Quickly Passes Far-Reaching Act; Can Conscript All Labor and Property

By Hugh Wagnon

LONDON, May 22 (AP)—Great Britain, achieving through the methods of democracy the result of virtual dictatorship, tonight placed all her men and everything they own at the command of Prime Minister Winston Churchill in the war with Adolf Hitler's legions.

Proud of the democratic machinery which could elevate the prime minister to a pinnacle of power as high as Hitler's and yet retain the right to take it back, parliament rushed into law a far-reaching act enabling the government to conscript all labor and property.

Commons pushed the bill through within two hours without a vote. The king signed it tonight.

Within two hours and forty-five minutes the whole job of completing the transition from democracy to virtual dictatorship was done.

Momentous Transition

The first steps in this momentous transition were taken beginning last August 24 when the king was empowered to issue decrees with the effect on law.

Today orders in council, prepared even before the parliamentary process was underway, gave immediate effect to laws setting up controls under ministers covering labor, banking, agriculture, transport, mining, war industries and export trade.

War material and export industries will be given absolute priority and labor will be drafted as required in the more essential industries.

Arthur Greenwood, Laborite minister without portfolio and head of the productions council summoned the munitions board immediately.

Evidence of Fierce Battle

Dutch Soldiers at Rhenen Fail in Fight against Germans

RHENEN, THE NETHERLANDS, May 23.—(Thursday)— (AP) —Dutch soldiers chose to fight it out from house to house against a swift-moving German army in this little town of Southern Holland, and the charred walls and still-smoking ruins show how they failed.

Perhaps the hardest fought battle on the German march from the frontier to Amsterdam unrolled here and along the Grebbe Line, with its water defenses, a few miles to the East.

We walked through this unhappy little community between Arnheim and Utrecht and one building which seemed untouched was the town church, its tower rising high above the smoking, crumbled remains.

The business district of the city of perhaps 8,000 population was only a heap of brick. Practically every house on the road leading to Grebbe Hill outside the city was a skeleton, with tulips and flowers of spring adding a grotesquely gay touch.

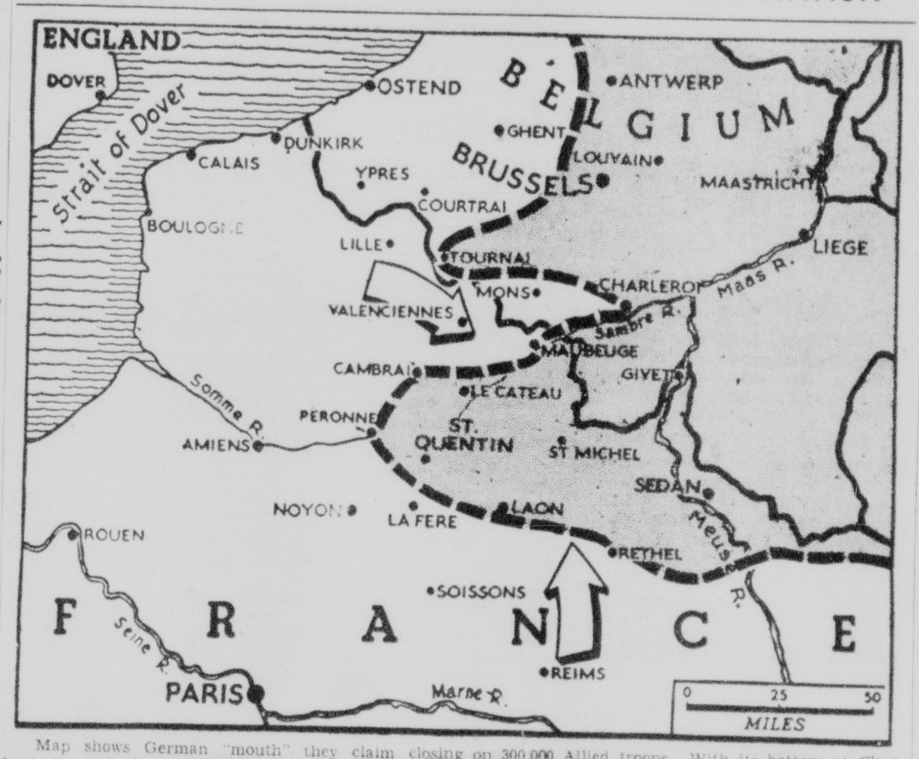
A little street car stood on the main street ready to set forth wherever possible, but there seemed to be no customers and no particular reason for its going any place.

Every ruin looked like the next one.

Artillery and bombs very nearly wiped Rhenen out of existence.

The Dutch apparently were using the emptied brick homes along the road as hideouts in an attempt to hold up the advance, and the German response was swift and terrible.

ALLIES AND NAZIS SET STAGE FOR A PINCER ATTACK



Map shows German "mouth" they claim closing on 300,000 Allied troops. With its bottom at Charleroi, its northern lip at Tournai and its southern lip at Cambria, the "mouth" hopes to destroy the British army in northern France. The Allies were reported exerting their own pincer counter attack with thrusts at root of German bulge at Valenciennes and Rethel (white arrows). Nazis reported driving on Noyon, fifty miles north of Paris.

Congress Urged By FDR To "Deal Quickly" with Spies, Saboteurs

President's Plan Would Shift Immigration and Naturalization Service to Justice Department

WASHINGTON, May 22, (AP)—In a reorganization message marked "urgent," President Roosevelt sent to Congress today a plan to shift the immigration and naturalization service from the labor to the justice departments so that authorities may "deal quickly" with spies and saboteurs.

At the same time Chairman Dies (D-Tex) of the House Committee on un-American activities introduced a bill to bar all alien Nazis, Fascists and Communists from the country and to deport any now here, along with aliens whom police certify to be revolutionary agitators.

Transfer is Pressing Need

England Offered Protection to Former Kaiser

RHENEN, THE NETHERLANDS, May 22 (AP)—Kaiser Wilhelm, German authorities said today, turned down an offer of the British government to take him and his family to Britain "in protection" when the Nazi army came this way in its march toward Amsterdam.

Ten miles to the west of this little town, where one of the fiercest battles of the occupation of the Netherlands took place, the former German monarch sat in his home at Doorn, and heard again—for the first time since 1918—the roar of battle.

He could not have missed the scarlet glow in the evening sky.

Some houses here still were burning today.

When resistance was stilled, the German army units rumbled through the main street of Doorn, pausing to leave a guard at the former Kaiser's gate.

Hitler Plans To Destroy Naval, Air Ground Forces of England

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES ON THE WESTERN FRONT, May 23—(Thursday)—(AP)—Only after he has satisfied himself of the effective demolition of naval and air ground organization, and warships and transports will Adolf Hitler probably attempt an attack on England herself.

Hitler appears definitely to follow his tried tactics of first destroying all naval and air-ground organization, then the enemy's airplanes and naval vessels before aiming a decisive blow with his land forces.

Every German officer to whom I have talked here in the operations area will tell you that.

The continuous bombing of Ostend, Dunquerque, Calais and Dieppe is intended to demolish the docks to which British reinforcements might come for their force in Belgium and Northern France, and from which the British and their Allies might escape in event of a rout.

The second phase of this strategic plan is a combined attack by speedboats, submarines and airbombers on British warships and transports.

Only when he is sure of these preparatory steps, is the Fuehrer likely to aim directly at England herself.

Maryland's 16 Presidential Votes Pledged To Tydings

'Favorite Son' Resolution Gives Delegation Choice Should President Roosevelt Run

BALTIMORE, May 22 (AP)—Maryland's sixteen presidential votes in the Democratic National Convention were pledged conditionally today to Senator Millard E. Tydings.

Millard E. Tydings

A restriction tagged onto the state convention's "favorite - son" resolution provided that, should President Roosevelt seek a third term, the delegation would be "free as individuals to vote on the first ballot for whomever they choose."

Tydings was re-elected in 1938 despite New Deal efforts to "purge" him from the Senate.

Unanimously adopted, the "if and when" resolution read:

"A majority of the delegates to the Democratic National Convention from other states are already instructed or pledged to vote for President Roosevelt on the first ballot for renomination.

"This is sufficient to renominate the president.

"The Maryland delegates . . . are instructed to vote for United States Senator Millard E. Tydings for nomination to the presidency of the United States unless the president should elect to accept the nomination for a third term, in which event the members of the Maryland delegation . . . are free as individuals to vote on the first ballot for whomever they choose."

Tydings told the convention that there would be no contest if the president decided to run, but added "I do not believe (he) wants a third term."

Advance toward Channel And Paris Is Halted by Swift Counter Attacks

Allied Achievement Hampers German Effort To Tighten Its Lines around 1,000,000 Troops in Northern France and Belgium; British and French Leaders and Troops Are Optimistic

By The Associated Press

The Allies, with swift counter thrusts by land and air, last (Wednesday) night checked — for the present at least — Adolf Hitler's two-pointed advance toward the English channel and Paris after five black days of Allied reverses.

This Allied achievement, which likewise hampered the German effort to tighten its lines around 1,000,000 Allied troops in Northern France and Belgium, came during a day of swift military and diplomatic events which produced these developments:

Churchill Given Great Power

1. Britain made Prime Minister Winston Churchill virtual dictator through a swiftly enacted law conscripting British labor and property.

2. The British disclosed that they were flying some of their American-built bombers across the Atlantic from Canada in their desperate bid to overcome Nazi superiority in the air.

3. Pointing for the narrow Straits of Dover and a shortcut to England, the German armies of Flanders poured more men and guns into France, while giving the first official hint that their thirteen-day sweep through Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg and into Northern France may have been slowed down.

4. Battice, the last of the great forts of Belgium's Liege defenses, fell to the Germans after a twenty-minute air and artillery assault.

5. The Allies recaptured Arras and Abbeville, the latter the nearest point reached by the Germans in their channel drive, and took their main stand to halt the Nazis on a new 200-mile Allied line along the Somme and Aisne rivers.

6. Rumania called up 300,000 reserves and rushed most of them to the Russian frontier in fear of an impending Soviet march into Bessarabia. The move increased Rumania's armed forces to around 2,000,000 and placed the oil-wealthy Balkan kingdom on a virtual war-time mobilization.

Senate Passes Defense Measures

On this side of the Atlantic, the senate passed and sent back to the house for action on amendments a $1,823,000,000 army appropriation measure, carrying most of the money asked by President Roosevelt for emergency defense measures. The Senate Appropriations committee approved and sent to the senate a $1,458,000,000 navy bill.

The House Naval committee unanimously sent to the floor a bill authorizing a navy air force stepup to 10,000 planes and 16,000 pilots and to spend $144,132,000 for naval air bases.

A surge of optimism swept Britain and France at the day's news from the warfront.

"Our troops are holding the Germans at all points," the French said. "Even the rumors are better today."

General Maxime Weygand, commander of the Allied forces, was described as "really satisfied."

The British, joining the French in retailing the Allies' good news, told of large-scale bombing attacks on the German main line of communications and military objectives in Germany itself.

Moreover, they said their own front had held firm all day and that counter-attacks had been delivered between Arras and Douai.

Up in Belgium, along the line of the Scheldt, the Belgians, also, counter-attacked successfully.

The Germans, however, declared the French failed in a counter-attack at Laon, seventy miles North

Moreover, they said their own front had held firm all day and that counter-attacks had been delivered between Arras and Douai.

Up in Belgium, along the line of the Scheldt, the Belgians, also, counter-attacked successfully.

Business District Reduced to Pile of Bricks and Mortar by Bombers

ROTTERDAM, May 22 (AP)—Rotterdam, proud home of the Dutch merchant fleet, is only a scar of a city—its main business and financial district a pile of bricks and mortar serving as headstones for hundreds dead.

The historic harbor, the smoke of war rising above it, is a silent testimonial to the awful destruction which German Stukas (dive bombers) work when the word is given.

Block after block of piled bricks, acres of desolation broken here and there by occasional blackened walls or twisted webs of girders, show how heavy a hand was laid on the land of tulips and wooden shoes.

Authoritative German sources say the district had been largely emptied of civilians before the terrifying Stukas began diving, and it was determined officially that there were only 354 casualties. Some other unofficial estimates have ranged as high as 10,000.

Some of the biggest banks are nothing but heaps of mortar and twisted girders. Old financial institutions, historic business houses, lie in dust. The stately liner Statendam, grimy and smoke-stained, smoulders at its wharf.

How many bodies are buried under the ruined district is a question on which there is wide disagreement.

Raid Lasted Seven Minutes

German officials said the devastating raid lasted only seven and one-half minutes from the first bomb to the last.

The raid came after the German army had given the Dutch commander three hours to cease resistance.

The planes already were under way when the Dutch commander decided to capitulate, a short time after the deadline passed, and the bombs were rained down before the planes could be stopped, the German commander explained.

The Nazi commander maintained the city lost its status as an "open city" when the Netherlands army resisted seizure.

Rotterdam became a battlefield the first day of the German western offensive. Parachute troops were landed to hold the bridge over the Meuse river in the center of the city and were assisted, many Netherlanders say, by German "fifth column" members already in the city.

Dutch resistance instantly stopped after the bombing. Their own artillery fire caused much damage on the south side of the river Meuse where the Germans were concentrated.

It is probable one of the Dutchmen's own shells fired the 20,000-ton liner Setatendam which was still belching smoke from the hulk today as a party of foreign journalists viewed the ruins. The liner afforded a protection to the Germans behind it.

The Germans say Netherlands artillery also caused much of the damage on the north side of the river, where the Dutch defenders were gathered.

One air force officer estimated the dead under the wreckage at "several thousand."

Fifteen Transports Crashed

In the course of the fighting huge German transports attempted to land at the airport between Rotterdam and The Hague, a few miles away. Fighting already was in progress at the airport and the transports carrying troops tried to land on a road.

Cross winds caused fifteen of the craft to crash in landing. Most of the fifteen were destroyed. A smaller bomber also crashed.

German officials said much damage was caused in Rotterdam by the failure of the fire department to act promptly.

The area wiped out probably is a square mile in all. The postoffice and town hall were damaged.

Two churches were in the area.

that this has revealed a pressing need" for the transfer.

"Much can be said for the retention of these functions in the department of labor during normal times," the message continued. "I am convinced, however, that under existing conditions the immigration and naturalization activities can best contribute to the national well-being only if they are closely integrated with the activities of the department of justice."

The step is aimed at "those aliens who conduct themselves in a manner that conflicts with the public interest," the message said, but "does not reflect any intention to deprive them (aliens generally) of their civil liberties or otherwise to impair their legal status."

Would Eliminate Delay

In the Senate, Majority Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, said a resolution would be offered to make the shift immediately and eliminate the usual 60-day delay. Senator Reynolds (D-NC) suggested that the transfer was proposed because of the way Secretary Perkins's deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, west coast CIO leader, were "whitewashed."

Calling Bridges "one of the stallions in the herd of trojan horses grazing in this country," Reynolds endorsed a bill by Rep. Allen (D-La) to deport him to Australia.

American Girl Says Germans Shoot Refugees

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 22 (AP)—A letter from an American girl ambulance driver in France brought from the war front today a tale of the machine-gunning of refugees.

The story was told by Elizabeth F. Adams of Providence in an air-mail letter to her parents.

"No one smiles," she wrote, "life is just one long hell."

Miss Adams, who spent weeks in a grease-pit here preparing for service with the American Friends of France, was rushed with the Anne Morgan unit to land "between the Maginot line and Belgium" on May 10, she wrote in her letter dated May 14, and helped evacuate refugees under fire.

"It was terrible. I have been bombed—oh God—if you knew how it felt to have a plane go over you like a dark vicious shark and see it drop its bombs," she wrote.

Bombs dropped even as she penned the letter, she said, adding:

"We are often machine-gunned, too. The planes come so close down. Damn them!

"The Germans don't want them to get away safely. They machine gun them in the roads, those poor, poor people without homes—without food."

England Places

under the sweeping enabling act, commons was told, would be:

1—Complete government control of persons and property, "not just some persons or some particular class, but all persons, rich or poor, men or women."

2—The minister of labor may "direct any person to perform any service required."

3—The minister of labor "will be able to prescribe terms of remuneration, hours of labor, and conditions of service."

4—"There will be power to inspect premises and require employers to produce their books. The object is to mobilize the effective resources of the nation for whatever task may come upon us."

5—"Some establishments may be controlled altogether right away ;others may be controlled later. They will in effect be working on government account with wages and profits under government control."

6—Munitions will be controlled immediately.

7—Excess profits tax is at the rate of 100 percent.

8—"Other establishments may be ordered to carry on" even at a loss, in which event "they must have adequate remuneration."

9—"There may be cases where firms will have to close down and there may perhaps be destruction of property here and there," with remuneration to be determined.

Has Great Power

Churchill's power is greater than Cromwell's and hardly less absolute than Hitler's except in the extent he is desirous of wielding supreme control over the individuals of the realm.

Introduced by Clement R. Attlee, Churchill's lieutenant in the House, with the declaration that "everything for which we stand is in jeopardy," the amendment extends for two years and enlarges powers given the king Aug. 24, 1939.

The momentous step to temporary dictatorship came on a day when the British were cheered by such developments as these:

The French recapture of Arras; reported success of the Royal Air Force in bombing operations over the industrial Rhineland; lessening of the force of the German thrust into northern France; arrival of a new Canadian contingent, and the claimed successful attack on five or more German transport and supply ships.

Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information, told the empire by radio that the situation is "grave—perhaps graver than at any time in the war of 1914-18" but, he added, "that does not mean defeat is on the horizon." He declared Britain faced the danger confidently.

In Commons, Atlee assured his listeners that if parliament could not meet because of a German invasion or some other reason, the cabinet could govern, unhampered by lack of legislation.

"It must be clear to all," he said, "that the next few weeks are critical. Our ruthless enemy, who is restrained by no considerations of international law, justice or humanity, is throwing everything into the scale to force a decision. We are resolved he shall not succeed."

Leaders Club of YMCA Holds Annual Banquet

The annual banquet of the Central YMCA Junior Leaders Club was held in its clubrooms at the "Y" Tuesday evening.

Guests of honor were the five leaders who completed the year's work and successfully passed the National Leaders Club examinations. Short talks were made by W. H. Lewis, general secretary of the "Y" and various club members.

Those present included Billy Lynch, David Hensell, Charles Sizer, Edward Gunning, John Idoni, Edward Lindsay, R. B. Doak, E. W. Nave and Edwin L. Kuhn.

Ambulance Work Of Americans Is Praised

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—Premier Paul Reynaud and Field Marshal Henri Philippe Petain officially expressed the gratitude of the French government today for volunteer ambulance work of the American Field Service in France.

In cables to the Service's headquarters, Reynaud especially praised the American drivers for "their fine caliber, their devotion and their courage," while Petain said the service was "of inestimable aid."

J. P. McCurdy Is Re-elected

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 22 (AP)—The Maryland and District of Columbia Federation of Labor reelected Joseph P. McCurdy of Baltimore president today by a vote of 243½ to 74½ over Harry Cohen, Baltimore.

In resolutions adopted just before the convention close, the AFL Federation urged legislation to have old-age benefits under the social security laws begin at sixty, and recommended that the AFL employ a part-time organizer to be stationed in Hagerstown.

Other resolutions urged legislation to:

Make a maximum forty-eight-hour work week for women.

Permit "self-government" in the District of Columbia.

Prohibit barmaids at Maryland bars.

The executive committee will select the 1941 convention city later.

The following six vice-presidents were named:

John Locher and Harry Thompson, Washington; F. N. Kershaw and G. Kingston Howard, Baltimore; John L. Geist, Hagerstown; Paul W. England, Cumberland.

Others, unopposed, elected were:

Organizer, Robert Buxbaum, Baltimore; secretary, Frank Coleman, Washington; treasurer, Robert Lester, Washington. All officers were installed by V. J. Henry of Washington, who has attended every convention for twenty-five years.

Advance Toward

of Paris, to relieve pressure of the drive against the French capital and that twenty-four French tanks were captured and ten burned.

Berlin also declared that the British counter-attack between Arras and Douai failed.

German tanks were seen diving from roads in confusion to avoid clusters of bombs dropped by low-flying Royal Air Force planes behind the Nazi lines in Northern France.

Maj. Clement R. Attlee, lord privy seal and member of Churchill's inner war cabinet, explaining the new conscription law to Britons, declared:

"The enemy can not stand a long war."

Another British cabinet member, Minister of Supply Herbert Morrison, spoke on a more sombre note, however, asserting that the Allies have their "backs to the wall" and calling upon British citizens to work at "war speed" to combat "a more deadly menace than has threatened the peoples of these islands since the Spanish Armada set out."

Blitzkrieg Slows Down

The first official German hint that the blitzkrieg may have slowed down after its tempestuous thirteen-day sweep through the Low Countries and Northern France coincided last (Wednesday) night with a surge of optimism among the Allies.

"It may be that our present movements will come to a temporary halt," admitted Gen. Walther Von Reichenau, commander of the powerful German right wing.

All France was cheered by reports that French shock troops, in a series of fierce counter-attacks, had recaptured the fire-charred city of Arras in Northern France—West of the St. Quentin-Cambrai sector—and "chased out" strong Nazi vanguards from Abbeville, twelve miles from the English channel.

In their drive to the sea the Germans declare they have "trapped" between 500,000 and 1,000,000 Allied troops—supposedly "pocketed" in Northern France and Belgium—but the French insisted the peril had been exaggerated.

The official British Broadcasting Corporation described the battle as "raging at the fastest mechanical pace that man's ingenuity can devise."

Nazi mechanized units, sparking the German advance with swift-striking thrusts, were said to be "cavalry partrols, no more than this, and in many cases are lost patrols."

Countering the imminent peril of a German invasion of England, King George VI signed an unprecedented "dictatorship" bill which was rushed through Parliament in less than three hours.

The bill—giving Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government full war-time emergency powers comparable to those wielded by Adolf Hitler—mobilizes all Britain's manpower and vast wealth, takes over state control of munitions factories and imposes a 100 per cent excess profits tax to balk war profiteering.

GOP Attempts To Change WPA Are Defeated

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Defeating every Republican attempt to make fundamental changes in the WPA, administration forces in the House sped toward final passage today a billion dollar relief bill for eight months beginning July 1.

Into the discard went proposals to trim the direct relief appropriation of $975,650,000 President Roosevelt requested, to substitute a three-man board for the present works projects commissioner, and to restrict still further certain discretion vested in the administrator's office here.

The smooth functioning of the Democratic majority also frustrated attempts from the Democratic side to reduce the amount of local contributions to WPA projects and to stipulate that projects connected with national defense should be given priority.

Of more than a score of amendments offered, only one of comparatively minor importance was accepted. That one, by Rep. McCormack (D-Mass), provided that WPA money could be used to meet emergency conditions arising from hurricanes, floods and droughts.

The bill would appropriate $975,650,000 for the WPA, $115,000,000 for rural rehabilitation work by the Agriculture department and other miscellaneous items which would raise the total to $1,111,754,916.

Hitler Plans

to ask what has happened in the English channel.

They seem to be itching to get over to England.

Meanwhile, an interim effort is being made; it is the smashing of enough Belgian and French airports to prevent continental Allies from bringing effective air force aid to England in event of her need.

Until then, German divisions are mopping up what was forgotten in their first rush.

Saw Fort Fall

A case in point was the Battice Fortress, one of the last of Belgium's big fortifications of the mighty Liege line, which I saw fall yesterday in a twenty-minute attack by artillery, dive bombers and infantry.

From a hilltop between Eupen and Malmedy, near the German frontier, I saw the Swastika war-flag of Germany raised over the battered fort at Battice where Belgian defenders capitulated after one of the most gallant fights against hopeless odds in the Belgian campaign.

(Battice, ten miles east of Liege, is one of the closest of the Liege ring of fortifications to the German frontier, twenty miles away. Fall of the other forts has been reported successively since German troops took the first May 11, the second day of fighting in the low countries.)

Cut off from the rest of their country for more than a week, and responsible to themselves alone and to their patriotic conscience, the garrison of the fort had held out determinedly.

We had decided to take in another sector of Germany's widening Western front today. There were reports of daily bombings of one of the large fortifications that ring Liege—this one commanding roads to Verviers. We approached opposite Battice and climbed to the heights overlooking the fort shortly before 3 p. m. (8 a. m., EST). Below in the panorama of verdant forests and rolling meadows was the SPA headquarters of the last German emperor who fled to refuge in Holland at the end of the World war.

Dive Bombers Appear

In the far distance large mounds of coke slack, looking like miniature volcanoes, indicated Liege itself.

Little more of the Battice fort was discernable than the top of the fortification, built on the principal of France's Maginot line fortifications.

Within a few minutes artillery fire gave way suddenly to dead silence.

From a dizzying height above suddenly swooped down one dive bomber, then another and another.

There was a deafening roar and the next moment this peaceful scenery was marred with smoke smudges such as puff up from the stacks of great steel plants.

No sooner had one cloud thinned than new bombers screamed down and the terrifying spectacle repeated itself.

Good Citizenship Is Best Defense, Says First Lady

Mrs. Roosevelt Urges Graduates To Work Together for Good

ELKINS, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today warned the first junior high school graduating class of the Tygart Valley Homestead to "never forget the best defense comes from good citizenship."

In the commencement address to the class of twenty-three boys and girls, all about fourteen years of age, the nation's first lady declared:

"In other countries you do as you are told, but here you are given the privilege of voting for the person you want in office, and that person represents you and the interests of your community to the best of his ability.

"You are obliged to take part in your government, so you must know who you are voing for, to try to make this country a better place in which to live. You must not let other things less important come to the front."

"Try to make this country a nation united together," she continued. "You must work to make it a better place."

"We must have mechanized things but never forget the best defense comes from good citizenship. Good government means an understanding of things that are happening. Each of you will be called upon to make sacrifices for the preservation of democracy.

Mrs. Roosevelt told the young graduates to "use your education not for yourselves but for the community," and added "young people can't shirk responsibilities."

The first lady was introduced by Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, who said "the White House has been her home but all America has felt the fine imprint of a life dedicated in a large measure to the assistance of those less fortunate than herself."

First Lady Gets Present

Obviously thrilled by the presence of the president's wife, the class presented her with two hand made woolen scarfs. The presentation was made by Elizabeth Guye, president of the group. She shook hands with the graduates as diplomas were presented.

Earlier, Mrs. Roosevelt inspected the resettlement project which has long been one of her favorite homesteads.

After the exercises, Mrs. Roosevelt left for Arthurdale, W. Va., where tomorrow she will address the graduating class of the Arthurdale high school. Tomorrow night she will speak at commencement exercises of the University High school at Morgantown and dedicate the new auditorium of the Morgantown High school.

Harry W. Donor, principal of the Tygart Valley Homestead junior high, introduced Rep. Randolph at the exercises and H. K. Baer, state supervisor of elementary schools, extended greetings of the state department of education.

Traverses New Route

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived at the homestead late this afternoon after a trip through the surrounding territory over a route she had never before traversed.

Accompanying her on the trip were Mrs. Henry Morganthau, Jr., wife of the secretary of the treasury; Miss Malvina Thompson, her recretary; Mrs. Allie Freed, of Alexandria, Va.; Miss Mary Switzert, assistant to federal securities administrator Paul McNutt; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Deams, and Mr. and Mrs. George Bye, of Connecticut.

Mother, Daughter In Land Dispute

Injunction Halts Timber-Cutting

A temporary injunction to halt a timber-stripping job on a 169-acre tract on Piney mountain yesterday was awarded by Circuit Court Judge William A. Huster to two petitioners who allege they have a $500 interest in the case.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Bergman and Frank Rogers docketed the petition through their counsel, Edward J. Ryan, against Mrs. Bergman's daughter and son-in-law, Harry and Mary Elizabeth McCormick.

Mrs. Bergman contends that her daughter prevailed upon her to convey her interest in the tract to the McCormicks in 1936. A deed was executed and delivered, and the McCormicks promised to pay $500, the petition states.

The defendants' repeated promises to pay the $500 have not been carried out, the petition declares. Meanwhile, the McCormicks installed a saw mill on the premises and are now engaged in cutting and selling the timber, which is the chief asset of the place, the plaintiffs say.

An injunction was asked to prevent the defendants from destroying the value of the property. The petition also asks that the court declare the 1936 deed null and void.

Country Must Be Armed

Although emphasizing at several points Republican support for the general proposition of arming the country to meet any outcome of the present European situation, Landon made it plain that Republican participation in a coalition cabinet or direction of such a program was a different matter under existing circumstances.

The country must be armed, he said, and it also should be equipped with a "national council" consisting of a small group of "leaders and experts in their own fields the members of which are not merely administration satellites x x x to head the defense program."

"But unfortunately for the country," he added immediately, "the leadership is in the hands of a man who has not eliminated himself as a candidate for an indefinite term as president, who at the moment has pledged to him more than enough delegates to take the Democratic nomination if he wants it.

"Political implications consequently are inescapable."

He followed this with his assertion that no Republican could participate at present without becoming a party to the third term movement and continued:

"If President Roosevelt is equally interested in unselfish service, he should publicly and forthwith eliminate himself as a third term candidate.

"Instead of weakening his position, this action would strengthen it. The president would become the leader of the nation, instead of the head of a party.

"If he does eliminate himself as a candidate, Republicans can and will participate. x x x

"To suggest that President Roosevelt is the only man in the nation to carry on, or that the national elections should be cancelled or allowed to go by default, is to use the same argument the Nazis use in behalf of Hitler.

"If democracy is important and is in peril, there is a particular necessity to preserve all its basic principles, including that of two presidential terms.

"Fortunately, under our tradition and usages, stepping out of the White House does not mean that the nation is deprived of a president's experience and ability."

Early Issues Statement

Landon reached Washington early in the day and breakfasted at the capital with Senator Capper (R-Kas). The latter told reporters there was a "lack of any Republican support" for coalition proposals.

Also early in the day, Mr. Roosevelt's press secretary, Stephen T. Early, speaking of the question of bringing additional individuals into the government to help with the defense situation, said they would not supersede present government officials. Rather, he said, they would cooperate with them. He talked of the possibility of reviving the "dollar-a-year man" of World war days.

He pointed out, too, that while Congress empowered Mr. Roosevelt some time ago to appoint six administrative assistants, three of these posts were still vacant and could be filled with men to help on the defense program.

Secretary Hull said that the vessel would "carry the American flag prominently displayed and will proceed fully lighted at night. The vessel is unarmed and moving without convoy."

Earlier the state department had issued a blanket warning to Americans in the whole near eastern area of Europe to come home.

The state department revealed today that instructions to this effect had gone out May 16 to diplomatic and consular representatives in Greece, Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Syria, Iraq, Palestine, Tunis, Egypt and Tangiers.

The total number of Americans listed on the countries to which warnings were sent amounted to 17,955 on January 1.

Italian-German Pact Said To Hinder Allies

Italy's King Confers Highest Decoration upon Marshal Goering

By Richard G. Massock

ROME, May 22 (AP)—Press declarations that Italy's "pact of steel" with Germany had held British warships in the Mediterranean and French soldiers on the Italian frontier while the Nazi war machine smashed through the low countries into France highlighted today the celebration of the first aniversary of the Axis military alliance.

It was a celebration held amid mounting indications that Italy might soon enter the war.

King Vittorio Emanuele gave to Marshal Hermann Goering the right to call him cousin—by conferring the highest Italian decoration, the Collar Annunziata on Adolf Hitler's air chief—and the newspapers unanimously felicitated the alliance.

One extremist organ, Il Resto Del Carlino at Bologna, exulted over German successes, forecast that Italy would take from Britain the Mediterranean island of Malta, and declared:

". . . every bayonet in the back of a fugitive Englishman avenges infamies suffered by humanity."

By speaking of certain known developments under the alliance and saying that "others will be known at a more opportune time," the newspaper Il Piccolo obliquely suggested that secret activity between the Axis powers already was under way.

Many observers were expecting an Italian move in the Mediterranean or the Balkans.

This country was in any case prepared to defend itself on the French frontier behind the new Littorio line fortifications. Defenses against air raids are reported to have been strengthened in the regions around Turin and in industrial centers near the French frontier.

An Italian move is widely expected—perhaps when and if the Germans attack England directly—but the zone of the action, whether in the Balkans or along the French frontier, is a matter of speculation.

German Stukas Leave Rotterdam Scar of a City

Business District Reduced to Pile of Bricks and Mortar by Bombers

ROTTERDAM, May 22 (AP)—Rotterdam, proud home of the Dutch merchant fleet, is only a scar of a city—its main business and financial district a pile of bricks and mortar serving as headstones for hundreds dead.

The historic harbor, the smoke of war rising above it, is a silent testimonial to the awful destruction which German Stukas (dive bombers) work when the word is given.

Block after block of piled bricks, acres of desolation broken here and there by occasional blackened walls or twisted webs of girders, show how heavy a hand was laid on the land of tulips and wooden shoes.

Authoritative German sources say the district had been largely emptied of civilians before the terrifying Stukas began diving, and it was determined officially that there were only 354 casualties. Some other unofficial estimates have ranged as high as 10,000.

Some of the biggest banks are nothing but heaps of mortar and twisted girders. Old financial institutions, historic business houses, lie in dust. The stately liner Statendam, grimy and smoke-stained, smoulders at its wharf.

How many bodies are buried under the ruined district is a question on which there is wide disagreement.

Raid Lasted Seven Minutes

German officials said the devastating raid lasted only seven and one-half minutes from the first bomb to the last.

The raid came after the German army had given the Dutch commander three hours to cease resistance.

The planes already were under way when the Dutch commander decided to capitulate, a short time after the deadline passed, and the bombs were rained down before the planes could be stopped, the German commander explained.

The Nazi commander maintained the city lost its status as an "open city" when the Netherlands army resisted seizure.

Rotterdam became a battlefield the first day of the German western offensive. Parachute troops were landed to hold the bridge over the Meuse river in the center of the city and were assisted, many Netherlanders say, by German "fifth column" members already in the city.

Dutch resistance instantly stopped after the bombing. Their own artillery fire caused much damage on the south side of the river Meuse where the Germans were concentrated.

It is probable one of the Dutchmen's own shells fired the 28,000-ton liner Setatendam which was still belching smoke from the hulk today as a party of foreign journalists viewed the ruins. The liner offorded a protection to the Germans behind it.

The Germans say Netherlands artillery also caused much of the damage on the north side of the river, where the Dutch defenders were gathered.

One air force officer estimated the dead under the wreckage at "several thousand."

Fifteen Transports Crashed

In the course of the fighting huge German transports attempted to land at the airport between Rotterdam and The Hague, a few miles away. Fighting already was in progress at the airport and the transports carrying troops tried to land on a road.

Cross winds caused fifteen of the craft to crash in landing. Most of the fifteen were destroyed. A smaller bomber also crashed.

German officials said much damage was caused in Rotterdam by the failure of the fire department to act promptly.

The area wiped out probably is a square mile in all. The postoffice and town hall were damaged.

Two churches were in the area.

Congress Urged

that this has revealed a pressing need" for the transfer.

"Much can be said for the retention of these functions in the department of labor during normal times," the message continued. "I am convinced, however, that under existing conditions the immigration and naturalization activities can best contribute to the national well-being only if they are closely integrated with the activities of the department of justice."

The step is aimed at "those aliens who conduct themselves in a manner that conflicts with the public interest," the message said, but "does not reflect any intention to deprive them (aliens generally) of their civil liberties or otherwise to impair their legal status."

Would Eliminate Delay

In the Senate, Majority Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, said a resolution would be offered to make the shift immediately and eliminate the usual 60-day delay. Senator Reynolds (D-NC) suggested that the transfer was proposed because of the way Secretary Perkins's deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, west coast CIO leader, were "whitewashed."

Calling Bridges "one of the stalkers in the herd of trojan horses grazing in this country," Reynolds endorsed a bill by Rep. Allen (D-La) to deport him to Australia.

American Girl Says Germans Shoot Refugees

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 22 (AP)—A letter from an American girl ambulance driver in France brought from the war front today a tale of the machine-gunning of refugees.

The story was told by Elizabeth F. Adams of Providence in an air-mail letter to her parents.

"No one smiles," she wrote, "life is just one long hell."

Miss Adams, who spent weeks in a grease-pit here preparing for service with the American Friends of France, was rushed with the Anne Morgan unit to land "between the Maginot line and Belgium" on May 10, she wrote in her letter dated May 14, and helped evacuate refugees under fire.

"It was terrible. I have been bombed—oh God—if you knew how it felt to have a plane go over you like a dark vicious shark and see it drop its bombs," she wrote.

Bombs dropped even as she penned the letter, she said, adding:

"We are often machine-gunned, too. The planes come so close down. Damn them!

"The Germans don't want them to get away safely. They machine gun them in the roads those poor, poor people without homes—without food."

under the sweeping enabling act, commons was told, would be:

1—Complete government control of persons and property, "not just some persons or some particular class, but all persons, rich or poor, men or women."

2—The minister of labor may "direct any person to perform any service required."

3—The minister of labor "will be able to prescribe terms of remuneration, hours of labor, and conditions of service."

4—"There will be power to inspect premises and require employers to produce their books. The object is to mobilize the effective resources of the nation for whatever task may come upon us."

5—"Some establishments may be controlled altogether right away; others may be controlled later. They will in effect be working on government account with wages and profits under government control."

6—Munitions will be controlled immediately.

7—Excess profits tax is at the rate of 100 percent.

8—"Other establishments may be ordered to carry on" even at a loss, in which event "they must have adequate remuneration."

9—"There may be cases where firms will have to close down and there may perhaps be destruction of property here and there," with remuneration to be determined.

Has Great Power

Churchill's power is greater than Cromwell's and hardly less absolute than Hitler's except in the extent he is desirous of wielding supreme control over the individuals of the realm.

Introduced by Clement R. Attlee, Churchill's lieutenant in the House, with the declaration that "everything for which we stand is in jeopardy," the amendment extends for two years and enlarges powers given the king Aug. 24, 1939.

The momentous step to temporary dictatorship came on a day when the British were cheered by such developments as these:

The French recapture of Arras; reported success of the Royal Air Force in bombing operations over the industrial Rhineland; lessening of the force of the German thrust into northern France; arrival of a new Canadian contingent, and the claimed successful attack on five or more German transport and supply ships.

Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information, told the empire by radio that the situation is "grave—perhaps graver than at any time in the war of 1914-18" but, he added, "that does not mean defeat is on the horizon." He declared Britain faced the danger confidently.

In Commons, Atlee assured his listeners that if parliament could not meet because of a German invasion or some other reason, the cabinet could govern, unhampered by lack of legislation.

"It must be clear to all," he said, "that the next few weeks are critical. Our ruthless enemy, who is restrained by no considerations of international law, justice or humanity, is throwing everything into the scale to force a decision. We are resolved he shall not succeed."

Leaders Club of YMCA Holds Annual Banquet

The annual banquet of the Central YMCA Junior Leaders Club was held in its clubrooms at the "Y" Tuesday evening.

Guests of honor were the five leaders who completed the year's work and successfully passed the National Leaders Club examinations. Short talks were made by W. H. Lewis, general secretary of the "Y" and various club members.

Those present included Billy Lynch, David Hensell, Charles Sizer, Edward Gunning, John Idoni, Edward Lindsay, R. B. Doak, E. W. Nave and Edwin L. Kuhn.

Ambulance Work Of Americans Is Praised

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—Premier Paul Reynaud and Field Marshal Henri Philippe Petain officially expressed the gratitude of the French government today for volunteer ambulance work of the American Field Service in France.

In cables to the Service's headquarters, Reynaud especially praised the American drivers for "their fine caliber, their devotion and their courage," while Petain said the service was "of inestimable aid."

J. P. McCurdy Is Re-elected

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 22 (AP)—The Maryland and District of Columbia Federation of Labor reelected Joseph P. McCurdy of Baltimore president today by a vote of 243½ to 74½ over Harry Cohen, Baltimore.

In resolutions adopted just before the convention close, the AFL Federation urged legislation to have old-age benefits under the social security laws begin at sixty, and recommended that the AFL employ a part-time organizer to be stationed in Hagerstown.

Other resolutions urged legislation to:

Make a maximum forty-eight-hour work week for women.

Permit "self-government" in the District of Columbia.

Prohibit barmaids at Maryland bars.

The executive committee will select the 1941 convention city later.

The following six vice-presidents were named:

John Locher and Harry Thompson, Washington; F. N. Kershaw and G. Kingston Howard, Baltimore; John L. Geist, Hagerstown; Paul W. England, Cumberland.

Others, unopposed, elected were:

Organizer, Robert Buxbaum, Baltimore; secretary, Frank Coleman, Washington; treasurer, Robert Lester, Washington. All officers were installed by V. J. Henry of Washington, who has attended every convention for twenty-five years.

of Paris, to relieve pressure of the drive against the French capital and that twenty-four French tanks were captured and ten burned.

Berlin also declared that the British counter-attack between Arras and Douai failed.

German tanks were seen diving from roads in confusion to avoid clusters of bombs dropped by low-flying Royal Air Force planes behind the Nazi lines in Northern France.

Maj. Clement R. Attlee, lord privy seal and member of Churchill's inner war cabinet, explaining the new conscription law to Britons, declared:

"The enemy can not stand a long war."

Another British cabinet member, Minister of Supply Herbert Morrison, spoke on a more sombre note, however, asserting that the Allies have their "backs to the wall" and calling upon British civilians to work at "war speed" to combat "a more deadly menace than has threatened the peoples of these islands since the Spanish Armada set out."

Blitzkrieg Slows Down

The first official German hint that the blitzkrieg may have slowed down after its tempestuous thirteen-day sweep through the Low Countries and Northern France coincided last (Wednesday) night with a surge of optimism among the Allies.

"It may be that our present movements will come to a temporary halt," admitted Gen. Walther Von Reichenau, commander of the powerful German right wing.

All France was cheered by reports that French shock troops, in a series of fierce counter-attacks, had recaptured the fire-charred city of Arras in Northern France—West of the St. Quentin-Cambrai sector—and "chased out" strong Nazi vanguards from Abbeville, twelve miles from the English channel.

In their drive to the sea the Germans declare they have "trapped" between 500,000 and 1,000,000 Allied troops—supposedly "pocketed" in Northern France and Belgium—but the French insisted the peril had been exaggerated.

The official British Broadcasting Corporation described the battle as "raging at the fastest mechanical pace that man's ingenuity can devise."

Nazi mechanized units, sparking the German advance with swift-striking thrusts, were said to be "cavalry partrols, no more than this, and in many cases are lost patrols."

Countering the imminent peril of a German invasion of England, King George VI signed an unprecedented "dictatorship" bill which was rushed through Parliament in less than three hours.

The bill—giving Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government full war-time emergency powers comparable to those wielded by Adolf Hitler—mobilizes all Britain's manpower and vast wealth, takes over state control of munitions factories and imposes a 100 per cent excess profits tax to balk war profiteering.

GOP Attempts To Change WPA Are Defeated

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Defeating every Republican attempt to make fundamental changes in the WPA, administration forces in the House sped toward final passage today a billion dollar relief bill for eight months beginning July 1.

Into the discard went proposals to trim the direct relief appropriation of $975,650,000 President Roosevelt requested, to substitute a three-man board for the present works projects commissioner, and to restrict still further certain discretion vested in the administrator's office here.

The smooth functioning of the Democratic majority also frustrated attempts from the Democratic side to reduce the amount of local contributions to WPA projects and to stipulate that projects connected with national defense should be given priority.

Of more than a score of amendments offered, only one of comparatively minor importance was accepted. That one, by Rep. McCormack (D-Mass), provided that WPA money could be used to meet emergency conditions arising from hurricanes, floods and droughts.

The bill would appropriate $975,650,000 for the WPA, $115,000,000 for rural rehabilitation work by the Agriculture department and other miscellaneous items which would raise the total to $1,111,754,916.

Hitler Plans

to ask what has happened in the English channel.

They seem to be itching to get over to England.

Meanwhile, an interim effort is being made; it is the smashing of enough Belgian and French airports to prevent continental Allies from bringing effective air force aid to England in event of her need.

Until then, German divisions are mopping up what was forgotten in their first rush.

Saw Fort Fall

A case in point was the Battice Fortress, one of the last of Belgium's big fortifications of the mighty Liege line, which I saw fall yesterday in a twenty-minute attack by artillery, dive bombers and infantry.

From a hilltop between Eupen and Malmedy, near the German frontier, I saw the Swastika war-flag of Germany raised over the battered fort at Battice where Belgian defenders capitulated after one of the most gallant fights against hopeless odds in the Belgian campaign.

(Battice, ten miles east of Liege, is one of the closest of the Liege ring of fortifications to the German frontier, twenty miles away. Fall of the other forts has been reported successively since German troops took the first May 11, the second day of fighting in the low countries.)

Cut off from the rest of their country for more than a week, and responsible to themselves alone and to their patriotic conscience, the garrison of the fort had held out determinedly.

We had decided to take in another sector of Germany's widening Western front today. There were reports of daily bombings of one of the large fortifications that ring Liege—this one commanding roads to Verviers. We approached opposite Battice and climbed to the heights overlooking the fort shortly before 3 p. m. (8 a. m., EST). Below in the panorama of verdant forests and rolling meadows was the SPA, headquarters of the last German emperor who fled to refuge in Holland at the end of the World war.

Dive Bombers Appear

In the far distance large mounds of coke slack, looking like miniature volcanoes, indicated Liege itself.

Little more of the Battice fort was discernable than the top of the fortification, built on the principal of France's Maginot line fortifications.

Within a few minutes artillery fire gave way suddenly to dead silence.

From a dizzying height above suddenly swooped down one dive bomber, then another and another.

There was a deafening roar and the next moment this peaceful scenery was marred with smoke smudges such as puff up from the stacks of great steel plants.

No sooner had one cloud thinned than new bombers screamed down and the terrifying spectacle repeated itself.

two opponents' combined vote was a little over 35,000.

Sale of Lots Asked By McGann Estate

Circuit court yesterday was petitioned to authorize the sale of three lots belonging to the McGann estate in McCullough's addition, Frostburg.

The petition was docketed by W. Earle Cobey, representing John P. and Anastasia McGann who want the lots sold in order that four judgements may be cleared up and the proceeds distributed among the complainants and respondents in the case.

Good Citizenship Is Best Defense, Says First Lady

Mrs. Roosevelt Urges Graduates To Work Together for Good

ELKINS, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today warned the first junior high school graduating class of the Tygart Valley Homestead to "never forget the best defense comes from good citizenship."

In the commencement address to the class of twenty-three boys and girls, all about fourteen years of age, the nation's first lady declared:

"In other countries you do as you are told, but here you are given the privilege of voting for the person you want in office, and that person represents you and the interests of your community to the best of his ability.

"You are obliged to take part in your government, so you must know who you are voting for, to try to make this country a better place in which to live. You must not let other things less important come to the front."

"Try to make this country a nation united together," she continued. "You must work to make it a better place."

"We must have mechanized things but never forget the best defense comes from good citizenship. Good government means an understanding of things that are happening. Each of you will be called upon to make sacrifices for the preservation of democracy."

Mrs. Roosevelt told the young graduates to "use your education not for yourselves but for the community," and added "young people can't shirk responsibilities."

The first lady was introduced by Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, who said "the White House has been her home but all America has felt the fine imprint of a life dedicated in a large measure to the assistance of those less fortunate than herself."

First Lady Gets Present

Obviously thrilled by the presence of the president's wife, the class presented her with two hand made woolen scarfs. The presentation was made by Elizabeth Guye, president of the group. She shook hands with the graduates as diplomas were presented.

Earlier, Mrs. Roosevelt inspected the resettlement project which has long been one of her favorite homesteads.

After the exercises, Mrs. Roosevelt left for Arthurdale, W. Va. where tomorrow she will address the graduating class of the Arthurdale high school. Tomorrow night she will speak at commencement exercises of the University High school at Morgantown and dedicate the new auditorium of the Morgantown High school.

Harry W. Donor, principal of the Tygart Valley Homestead junior high, introduced Rep. Randolph at the exercises and H. K. Baer, state supervisor of elementary schools, extended greetings of the state department of education.

Traverses New Route

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived at the homestead late this afternoon after a trip through the surrounding territory over a route she had never before traversed.

Accompanying her on the trip were Mrs. Henry Morganthau, Jr., wife of the secretary of the treasury; Miss Malvina Thompson, her secretary; Mrs. Allie Freed, of Alexandria, Va.; Miss Mary Switzert, assistant to federal securities administrator Paul McNutt; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Deams, and Mr. and Mrs. George Bye, of Connecticut.

Mother, Daughter In Land Dispute

Injunction Halts Timber-Cutting

A temporary injunction to halt a timber-stripping job on a 169-acre tract on Piney mountain yesterday was awarded by Circuit Court Judge William A. Huster to two petitioners who allege they have a $500 interest in the case.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Bergman and Frank Rogers docketed the petition through their counsel, Edward J. Ryan, against Mrs. Bergman's daughter and son-in-law, Harry and Mary Elizabeth McCormick.

Mrs. Bergman contends that her daughter prevailed upon her to convey her interest in the tract to the McCormicks in 1936. A deed was executed and delivered, and the McCormicks promised to pay $500, the petition states.

The defendants' repeated promises to pay the $500 have not been carried out, the petition declares. Meanwhile, the McCormicks installed a saw mill on the premises and are now engaged in cutting and selling the timber, which is the chief asset of the place, the plaintiffs say.

An injunction was asked to prevent the defendants from destroying the value of the property. The petition also asks that the court declare the 1936 deed null and void.

BELGIAN REFUGEES IN FRANCE

Just as they did in World War 1, the French government is providing food and shelter to countless thousands of refugees who have poured into France from war-torn Belgium and Holland. Here a war-stricken Belgian family is fed in a Paris refugee center.

thus made ready for immediate Senate consideration a $1,458,000,000 measure covering regular naval appropriations and emergency requests as well.

(3) The House naval committee approved a bill authorizing the navy to increase its total on airplanes from 3,350 to 10,000 and the number of pilots from 3,000 to 16,000. The measure also empowers the navy to spend $144,000,000 for air bases.

(4) The big navy bill, as approved by the Senate appropriations committee, contained funds to cover, among other things, an increase of 25,000 in the navy's enlisted strength, bringing it up to 170,000.

Country Must Be Armed

Although emphasizing at several points Republican support for the general proposition of arming the country to meet any outcome of the present European situation, Landon made it plain that Republican participation in a coalition cabinet or direction of such a program was a different matter under existing circumstances.

The country must be armed, he said, and it also should be equipped with a "national council" consisting of a small group of "leaders and experts in their own fields the members of which are not merely administration satellites x x x to head the defense program."

"But unfortunately for the country," he added immediately, "the leadership is in the hands of a man who has not eliminated himself as a candidate for an indefinite term as president, who at the moment has pledged to him more than enough delegates to take the Democratic nomination if he wants it.

"Political implications consequently are inescapable."

He followed this with his assertion that no Republican could participate at present without becoming a party to the third term movement and continued:

"If President Roosevelt is equally interested in unselfish service, he should publicly and forthwith eliminate himself as a third term candidate.

"Instead of weakening his position, this action would strengthen it. The president would become the leader of the nation, instead of the head of a party.

"If he does eliminate himself as a candidate, Republicans can and will participate. x x x

"To suggest that President Roosevelt is the only man in the nation to carry on, or that the national elections should be cancelled or allowed to go by default, is to use the same argument the Nazis use in behalf of Hitler.

"If democracy is important and is in peril, there is a particular necessity to preserve all its basic principles, including that of two presidential terms.

"Fortunately, under our tradition and usages, stepping out of the White House does not mean that the nation is deprived of a president's experience and ability."

Early Issues Statement

Landon reached Washington early in the day and breakfasted at the capital with Senator Capper (R-Kas). The latter told reporters there was a "lack of any Republican support" for coalition proposals.

Also early in the day, Mr. Roosevelt's press secretary, Stephen T. Early, speaking of the question of bringing additional individuals into the government to help with the defense situation, said they would not supersede present government officials. Rather, he said, they would cooperate with them. He talked of the possibility of reviving the "dollar-a-year man" of World war days.

He pointed out, too, that while Congress empowered Mr. Roosevelt some time ago to appoint six administrative assistants, three of these posts were still vacant and could be filled with men to help on the defense program.

pects this vessel to make its east-without interruption or molestation ward and its westward voyages by the air, naval or military forces of any belligerent.

Secretary Hull said that the vessel would "carry the American flag prominently displayed and will proceed fully lighted at night. The vessel is unarmed and moving without convoy."

Earlier the state department had issued a blanket warning to Americans in the whole near eastern area of Europe to come home.

The state department revealed today that instructions to this effect had gone out May 16 to diplomatic and consular representatives in Greece, Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Syria, Iraq, Palestine, Tunis, Egypt and Tangiers.

The total number of Americans listed on the countries to which warnings were sent amounted to 17,955 on January 1.

Italian-German Pact Said To Hinder Allies

By Richard G. Massock

ROME, May 22 (AP)—Press declarations that Italy's "pact of steel" with Germany had held British warships in the Mediterranean and French soldiers on the Italian frontier while the Nazi war machine smashed through the low countries into France highlighted today the celebration of the first aniversary of the Axis military alliance.

It was a celebration held amid mounting indications that Italy might soon enter the war.

King Vittorio Emanuele gave to Marshal Hermann Goering the right to call him cousin—by conferring the highest Italian decoration, the Collar Annunziata on Adolf Hitler's air chief—and the newspapers unanimously felicitated the alliance.

One extremist organ, Il Resto Del Carlino at Bologna, exulted over German successes, forecast that Italy would take from Britain the Mediterranean island of Malta, and declared:

". . . every bayonet in the back of a fugitive Englishman avenges infamies suffered by humanity."

By speaking of certain known developments under the alliance and saying that "others will be known at a more opportune time," the newspaper Il Piccolo obliquely suggested that secret activity between the Axis powers already was under way.

Many observers were expecting an Italian move in the Mediterranean or the Balkans.

This country was in any case prepared to defend itself on the French frontier behind the new Littorio line fortifications. Defenses against air raids are reported to have been strengthened in the regions around Turin and in industrial centers near the French frontier.

An Italian move is widely expected—perhaps when and if the Germans attack England directly—but the zone of the action, whether in the Balkans or along the French frontier, is a matter of speculation.

Negro Pastor Resigns; Going to Minneapolis

The Rev. Melbourne R. Hogarth, pastor of St. Phillips' Episcopal church here for a year and ten months, left last night for Minneapolis, where he will be pastor of St. Thomas Episcopal church.

A bridge party was held in honor of the resigning minister Tuesday evening at the home of William Cooper on North Centre street. Later a class which the pastor was instructing for confirmation in Somerset, Pa., gave a farewell party at the home of LaFayette Robinson, 408 Magruder street.

Maryland Republicans Begin To Feed on Harmony

FRIENDS and supporters of ex-Governor Harry W. Nice, Republican nominee for United States senator, report his determination to do all he possibly can do to restore harmony in the party. With that end in view, he has given them the assurance that, if elected, he will deal with all Republicans on the basis of Republicanism and without regard to past political differences. In the meantime, he has assured them, he purposes to be fair and impartial, and to look to the regularly elected Republican organization in each county for guidance and advice, as well as other Republicans of each county, but only on the basis of fair treatment toward all.

That is the proper spirit. Fortunately all differences that existed in the primary contest between Nice and former Mayor William F. Broening have been smoothed over. Mayor Broening made a splendid and earnest move to that end at the state convention by throwing his wholehearted support to ex-Governor Nice and pledging the undivided support of himself and his friends to the nominee.

In this connection, the Bel Air Times editorially expresses the belief that the primary contest has not left any lasting sores. "The Republicans have always been sportsmen," it says, "and their irritation soon dies out. In addition, the Republicans want to win the presidency this year and this cannot be accomplished with ill feeling in the ranks."

Quite so. As a matter of fact, the Times points out, "many of those who supported Governor Nice did so with no feeling of antagonism toward Mr. Broening, for he commands the affection and respect of all Republicans, and under different circumstances we are sure he could have had a united party behind him. A party primary is a sign of growth and vigor, and it is partly due to the lack of this style of contest that we are now in the minority, but we see symptoms of late that many of those young men who, though naturally Republicans, felt that it was to their material advantage to join the Democratic ranks, are gradually coming over and now admire the pep and energy which our party has been showing in the recent campaigns."

The News believes with the Bel Air paper that so far as the Nice-Broening contest is concerned, everything is all right. But there was considerable opposition in the state convention with regard to the retention of former Senator O. E. Weller as national committeeman. It is earnestly hoped that Mr. Weller will take due cognizance of this and do what he possibly can to remedy that situation. He would be rendering the party a distinct service by following the admirable efforts of Nice and Broening toward the restoration of party harmony by giving due recognition to the opposition, which may be based upon erroneous conceptions, in view of the fact that had not a quick adjournment of the state convention been forced, it might have voted for his relegation. Mr. Weller is capable of healing any injuries that have been caused and it is to be hoped that he will do so in the interests of party harmony and party solidarity.

The Bel Air Times makes the point that too many Republicans have been unwittingly made the dupes of certain Democratic newspapers of the state respecting ex-Governor Nice, and it is something to which party members should give attention. "Too many Republicans," it says, "have been taking their cues from the Democratic papers, which have done their best to belittle Governor Nice during his incumbency in that high office, to ridicule him and to laugh him out of the contest. This is unfair, for an analysis of it shows that the governor gave one of the best regimes in Maryland's history, with no scandal except in one or two instances where his great humanity and good nature caused him to make appointments against his better judgment and which turned out badly."

The great aim of the party this fall, the Bel Air Times also says, "is to put a stop to the subversion of the democratic form of government and the tremendous extravagance now being practiced in Washington. The battle is set for November, with every disposition and strategy favoring the election of a Republican president. This should be our aim and goal, and all other considerations should be thrown by the wayside and we should become a united party—back of our candidate for the presidency and back of our candidates for the Senate and the House of Representatives.

"Nothing has occurred in the recent primary which cannot be adjusted," the Bel Air paper continues, "and we feel sufficient confidence in Governor Nice that with his experience as a chief executive of the state and his knowledge of men and women gained therefrom, and his natural kindliness of heart, that rather than feeling revengeful toward his antagonists he will regard them as Republicans and will draw little distinction between late political friends and foes."

The Bel Air Times reports that dozens of Democrats in its county have stated their intention of supporting Nice for the Senate. That is true of the Western Maryland territory. Many Democrats hereabout, alarmed by the extravagances and the financial irresponsibilities of the New Deal administration, alarmed over its repeated colossal failures and fearful of its future course, have declared that they expect to vote against it this fall at the polls. It will serve mightily to bring over these citizens if they are made to realize that the Republican ranks are united and strongly in support of their candidates for the Senate and the House.

Financial Preparedness Is Also Necessary

SENATOR BYRD, of Virginia, declares that while this nation faces the necessity of preparing to defend itself from any and all aggressors in this time of ruthless dictators, we must remember that financial preparedness is just as important as military preparedness.

The senator is dead right about that. "It is the impelling duty of Congress in the current critical circumstances," he says, "to eliminate every extravagance, to abolish every unnecessary expenditure and to devote our resources to the vital necessity of preparing ourselves to meet any contingency and any crisis that may occur."

To that end the senator has suggested the appointment by Congress of a nonpartisan commission to report "as promptly as possible on the elimination of nonessential federal spending, on the abolition of every wasteful appropriation, and at the same time to report on such revision of our tax system as is necessary to place our government in sound financial condition necessary to meet imperative expenditures for increased armaments."

As usual, the senator's feet are on the ground. One of our difficulties right now is that too many men in high place are soaring in the clouds of financial chimeras and it is high time that they get down to earth.

Obvious Things about Our Defense Job

NO QUESTION now obtains with respect to the fact that Americans must look seriously, deliberately and determinedly to their home defenses. The greatest danger here, as is pointed out by the Morgantown, W. Va., Post, is not that we shall fail to act or that we shall act too slowly but that we shall try to act too rapidly without the careful and prudent planning necessary for effective action." This is corroborative of comment heretofore made in this newspaper.

The Morgantown newspaper also points out that building up our military strength is only part of the job we have to do and perhaps the easiest part of the job. "We must have peace at home," it says. "We must end our internal warfare. We must cease building up hatreds among ourselves. We must stop inciting one group or class of citizens against other groups and classes. In short, we must seek national unity—and that means sinking our own differences in an honest give-and-take in which concessions are made all the way around for the larger and compelling national welfare."

These things, indeed, are the need of the hour. Our failure to achieve them of late points to the obvious course that is open to us for achieving them as they should be achieved.

Imaginary Speech to a Lady

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Lady, why are you so proud? Why do you pass me with your nose in the air? Why that suspicious eye, those lines around your mouth, that proud, that disdainful air?

Marshall Maslin

Lady, why are you what you seem to be? How did you grow that way?

Lady, why are you?

You are pretty, yes. Anybody with half an eye knows that. But what if you are? Prettiness is an accident; prettiness is luck, nourished by attention, preserved in the beauty shop. It will pass, you cannot keep it by you. There's nothing in prettiness to make you proud.

You have social position? Your mother comes from an old, old family? Your father has money, is an able man? But all families are old, and money has a trick of disappearing—as many, to their sorrow, know—and children do not always inherit their parents' ability. . . . Why tilt your nose so high?

You are "brighter" than other people? You can't stand the common ruck of people, the stupid, ignorant, boring mass of them—they're a constant offense to you? . . . Very well, let us admit you have a lively little brain, but what good has it done you? A good brain should make a mortal happy, not miserable, as you are.

You say you're NOT unhappy? . . . I say, in all politeness that you are! You hold your nose too high to be a happy girl. . . . I see that nose and I understand its meaning. From the moment you wake in the morning until you fall asleep at night, you are thinking about yourself and no happiness can come from that. You are thinking about your clothes, your "position," about what you need and what you want, and about your attitude toward other people.

You never get away from that. You can't. . . . Trouble with you is you are never LOST. You never get away from yourself. And it remains a little self because you never take your eye away from it. You keep so close to it it cannot grow. You love it so much that you suffocate it with attention. It is spoiled and unhappy.

What business is this of mine? What right have I to speak about your tilted nose and your restlessness and your vanity and your unhappiness? No right at all, Proud Lady. It just occurred to me it would do you no harm to know that nose of yours is fooling nobody. . . . Or don't you care?

Movies Too Soft, Augen Complains

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

Theda Bara is still Hymie Augen's favorite moving picture star. He occasionally likes a modern talking picture, but he is both romantic and sentimental and therefore given to old attachments and loyalties. He saw "Streets of London" the other day and found Vivien Leigh somewhat unconvincing. He thought Theda Bara would have done much better in the part. Then again, he was indignant about Miss Leigh running out on her pals, as he put it. I could understand his mingling of fact and fiction in this critical appraisal. The world is so fantastic these days that none of us seems to know where one ends and the other begins.

Augen Explains

"This Charles Laughton is just a mug," Mr. Augen explained. "I was hep to that right at the start. But that don't give that little tramp any right to two-time him the way she did. The minute I saw this Laughton, I says, there's a geek I'd stake to a flop or a drink or fix a rap for him or buy him a feed or whatever he wanted. He makes you feel that way, and you keep on hoping he gets a break. He puts this little bearcat in his clown mob and they're doing all right until she lifts the cigarette case from this songwriter and gets acquainted with him, and then she's on the up and up with her name in electric lights, and, naturally, this Laughton is disappointed and gets to be a souse, etc.

"When she wows the audience at the theater he's just an old lush hanging around outside and when she comes out she happens to bump into him. It makes her feel bad and she cries so hard about him you are supposed to think that squares everything. Then she leaves him there, looking sad enough to break your heart, and goes on her way to her pent-house. She ought to of been ashamed of herself. With all her dough it would have been nothing for her to flag a cab and take this poor old rummy to a nice Turkish bath and have him boiled out, and then fix him up with some clothes in a nice hotel and maybe run him through a Keely Institute, and then get him a job as a hoofer or gag man in some show shop. He would of done more than that for her if it had been the other way around.

Makes A Difference

"When you see a show or moving picture like this, it makes a difference whether you grew up in dumps like the one they had in the picture, and streets like that, or whether you just read about them. Back in the ten-twenty-thirty days it used to be a joke how some of the meanest yeggs in the gallery would cry about some nice old dame being gouged by a mortgage shark or something and then holler their heads off when the brown mare, Daisy, won the race and saved the old farm. The way I figure it, it takes a guy who has been over the bumps to know what real trouble it. These gorillas might of been tough, and maybe they would have snatched of old lady's farm themselves if they had a chance, but they knew what it was to be hungry and broke.

All With Happy Endings

"That's why they all had happy endings in Miner's old Bowery theater and all the shows I went to when I was a boy. There was so many poor people went to them and anybody who was ever cold or hungry or was a rum-hound, don't want to see any nice people stuck that way. Shakespeare's shows, where everybody gets killed in the last act, are for rich people who never get around much. If some of your friends have been bumped off, and maybe in some dark alley you had been mixed up in a real killing, you wouldn't want to put it in a play. You'd have the guy in the alley duck the bullets and lam home and swear he'd take care of the wife and kids. Most of this trouble on the stage is made up by people who don't know what real trouble is.

Fighters Less Voluble

"Did you notice that when the boys came back from the war, the ones that talked most about it was the ones that was farthest from the shooting? If a guy was in any real close-up gun play, he didn't want to talk about it. The best story-teller I ever knew was just a phooey who was a make-believe fighter. The best fighter I ever knew, with a gat or a brick or anything he could grab, couldn't of wrote two lines on the Battle of Gettysburg, if he'd won it single-handed. But what I mean about this moving picture is that the people in Hollywood, where they make the pictures, have had it too soft. If they knew more about life and how tough it is, they wouldn't let this girl give poor old stewy Laughton the run-around. Everything else is haywire. Why can't the movies, anyway, get things right?" Pan America Will Remain Democratic Regardless of What Happens Abroad

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Washington is very well satisfied with evidences of the Pan Americas' determination to remain democratic no matter what happens in Europe. All advices from capitals of the southern republics are to the effect that liberty-loving elements in their part of the new world simply have been strengthened by recent German successes, in their resolve to keep totalitarianism from gaining a foothold in our hemisphere.

Josephus Daniels

If there's any southern country concerning which Washington, most confidentially, has been a trifle uneasy, it's Mexico. Congressman Martin Dies, for instance, has suggested that un-American propaganda is dangerously prevalent just below the Rio Grande.

Is Not Strong

However, Josephus Daniels, our ambassador in Mexico City, who probably is as good a judge as Congressman Dies, says it isn't. The ambassador, temporarily away from his post on a visit home, reports that, while there's a Mexican Communistic party, it isn't strong, and that Nazis-ism is unpopular in the republic. Furthermore, he mentions that, if the Dies committee knows anything more of totalitarian plotting on Mexico's side of the border than the Mexican government knows, the latter government will be glad to be enlightened. This doesn't sound particularly undemocratic so far as Mexico is concerned.

Of course, Yankee-Mexican relations have been somewhat strained by the oil controversy, but that doesn't in the least imply that Mexico is totalitarian.

Emphatically Neutral

Argentina, Uruguay and Panama have been quicker than Uncle Sam has been to resent overseas disregard of American neutrality. They were prompt to take offense at the landing of British and French marines in the Dutch West Indies. We were disposed to wink at it. They are almost more neutral than we are. They're so neutral that they verge on being willing to fight for neutrality.

They're for Pan-American solidarity, anyhow. If it does have to be fought for, Uncle Sam will have to do the fighting—not the Pan Americas in their entirety. Still, they're in favor of it.

Germany's quite strong on the South American east coast. A couple of Brazil's southern states are nearly wholly German. They'd like to Nazify the entire country. But the very fact that they're so Nazificated makes the rest of Brazil hate them. And the anti-Nazis greatly predominate throughout the country elsewhere.

Italians are thick in Argentina. The newspaper with the largest Argentine circulation is an Italian-language daily—La Patria degli Italiani of Buesnos Aires. But the country's so violently anti-Fascist that I've seen anti-Fascist riots there, in which hundreds were killed. I had to hunt my hole myself.

The Latin-American west coast hasn't so many Germans, Italians or any Russians, to speak of at all. But there they're afraid of the Japanese. Their reasoning is about what ours used to be when we were cursing Oriental "cheap labor."

Only, now, they discuss military conquest as well as cheap labor.

Getting Practical

The whole thing's this:

It's simmering down to a practicality.

The Americas, south of the United States, hate their dictatorships.

They're getting to be democratic.

In short, we're becoming a truly democratic hemisphere.

Taken individually, we always have been theoretically democratic. But, country by country; no, collectively.

If we can get a union? Oh, my!

Progress in Research

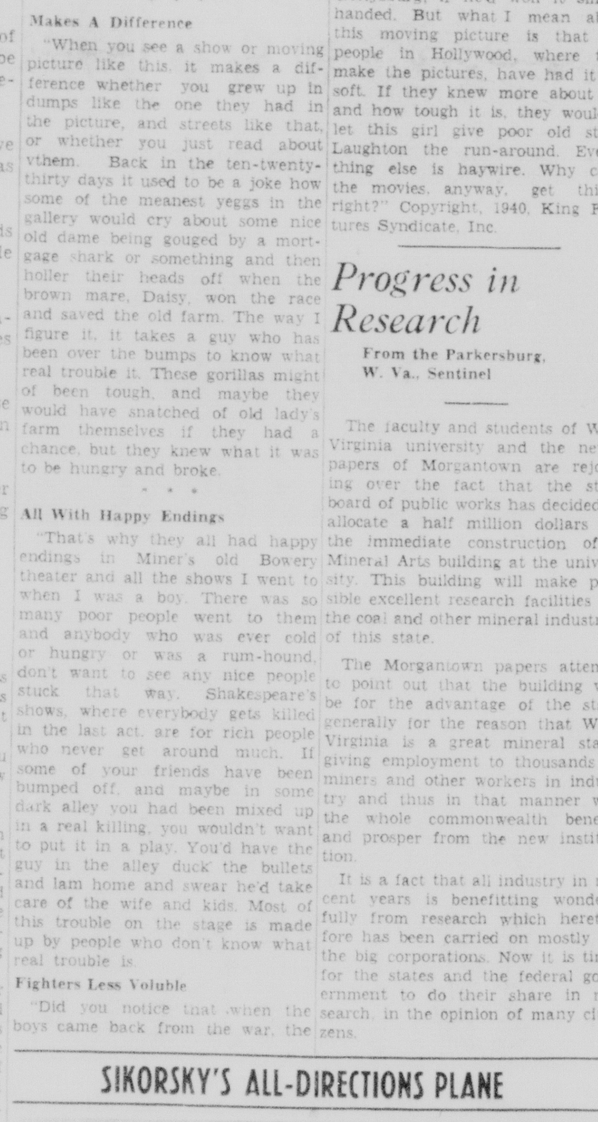
From the Parkersburg, W. Va., Sentinel

The faculty and students of West Virginia university and the newspapers of Morgantown are rejoicing over the fact that the state board of public works has decided to allocate a half million dollars for the immediate construction of a Mineral Arts building at the university. This building will make possible excellent research facilities for the coal and other mineral industries of this state.

The Morgantown papers attempt to point out that the building will be for the advantage of the state generally for the reason that West Virginia is a great mineral state, giving employment to thousands of miners and other workers in industry and thus in that manner will the whole commonwealth benefit and prosper from the new institution.

It is a fact that all industry in recent years is benefitting wonderfully from research which heretofore has been carried on mostly by the big corporations. Now it is time for the states and the federal government to do their share in research, in the opinion of many citizens.

SIKORSKY'S ALL-DIRECTIONS PLANE



Inventor Igor Sikorsky flies his direct-lift helicopter at Bridgeport, Conn., where the famed airplane designer demonstrated the new machine for aeronautical engineers. The machine, to be manufactured in quantity for the army, goes straight up and down, flies backwards, forwards and sideways. It has no wings.

The Hard Work Of Thinking

From the Webster, W. Va., Republican

The young people of today are said to be far keener mentally, brighter, wittier and more alert than their parents were at their age. The school teachers will perhaps say that some of the youngsters, in spite of their brightness, lack the power to concentrate on a hard task. That seems characteristic of very many people, both old and young.

The schools don't ask pupils to overwork, but they think if young people will dig at a subject it can finally be mastered. If they can't understand the lesson the first or second time they read it, they should read it a third time and try to think what it means. The true meaning will probably dawn on them. If they can't get it then, the patient teachers will explain it.

Many people look back to their school days and think of hard arithmetic examples. There was one in some of the old textbooks of wood to make a box of a certain length, breadth and weight. The pupil had to fight on what extra inches were required when the sides, tops, ends and bottom overlapped. It was very easy to omit some of that overlapping, and thus make an error. The pupil who couldn't concentrate might say it couldn't be done.

Some would say such an example was not worth all the time it took.

Life is like that: after we quit school. It takes a heap of thinking to see through the difficulties that surround us. Some people seem to regard thinking as too hard. Perhaps that is one reason why many things go wrong in this country.

Quotable Quotes

By United States Senator Harry F. Ashurst, Democrat, of Arizona

The honorable secretary of the interior, in his zeal, has conceived the idea that he is paramount in regard to all lands belonging to the United States. * * * When such unnecesary, irritating, arbitrary, pestiferous — I think that is a god locution; it comes from "pestis"— orders are issued, is the Congress to be blamed for providing some sort of an avenue by which the citizen may sometime, somewhere, have his day in court?

Playing of Politics Is Hit by Johnson

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Our problem is in production and not in politics. There is a crisis in national defense. It is a need for immediate rearmament. It is a problem of industrial production and it is that alone. The record of this administration and the published programs of both the Army and Navy are absolute proof that it is moving to a solution far too slowly to be of any use. It can be made to move much more rapidly. Ours is the most efficient industrial production machine in the world. It has the best production managers, men amply able to get this vitally necessary increased speed for the government. But this Government has no such men.

The screamingly obviously necessary first step is to get them—right now. They don't have to hold office. They will come on request. They will see what is needed. They will get their fellows in industry to cooperate voluntarily.

Is Pure Politics

Are we doing that? We are doing just the reverse of that. It is well known in Washington that the president is planning to put three Republicans in his cabinet in the vital post of War, Navy and Commerce. Names mentioned are Frank Knox, Alf Landon and Fiorello La Guardia. Is that a production measure or a defense measure? It is not. It is pure politics. It is third term politics.

It is said to be to "unify the country" on the rearmament program. The country doesn't need any unificaiton on that. It is almost unanimous on that. The real purpose is plainly to break down our two-party system using this as an excuse—and to regiment the election.

With the trend toward dictatorship the greatest threat in the world, this is the last thing the head of a democratic party should be trying to do. The two-party sistem is the essence of our democracy and the American way of life. Tis is a blow at its heart.

Is Hottest Issue

Mr. Roosevelt pleaded for the adjournment of politics. He, himself, is the hottest political issue. If he wanted to adjourn politics, he would announce himself in public, as he has to some people in private, as not available for a third term. His failure to do so establishes clearly enough that the only politics he wants adjourned is politics opposing him.

Nobody can believe even Mr. Roosevelt's assurances, except in writing and in public, that he is not a third term candidate. Yet, no self-respecting Republican could accept a place on this cabinet without believing that. If any did, he would be exposing himself to sucker stultification after a third election of Roosevelt, after the powers of a dictator had been granted the president, after the party of the opposition had been suppressed, and after he, himself, had been kicked heels-over-head into the gutter to the raucous razzberries and laughter of the White House janissariat, which is already gloating over what they regard as the steady progress of the strategy. Some of their intimates tell me that their glee over this progress would raise goose-pimples on the corpse of Andrew Jackson.

Would Paralyze Progress

In the direction of a real solution of the overwhelmingly vital problem of production, to bring an uninstructed political amateur into the War Department, for example, to take the gimp and tucker out of Louis Johnson, would be a catastrophe. It would paralyze progress for weeks. Mr. Johnson has now been educated. He has always had great energy. He now has understanding. If he were freely permitted to create an advisory staff of industrialists, he could do the job. To replace or smother him on the plea of political unity, notwithstanding productive paralysis, would be an act of sabotage in national defense.

This barefaced use of a national crisis for the purposes of a partisan political attempt to perpetrate a particular president and increase his powers, is the blackest mark with which this administration has yet smirched its own record—more impudent and impetious than the 1937 conspiracy to revolutionize this to a personalized government by the court-packing and other defeated legislative plans — worse than the purges and the WPA political bribery and coercion of 1938. As in those other cases, there is strong hope that its stench is so great that it can't be swallowed.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Maryland Republicans Begin To Feed on Harmony

FRIENDS and supporters of ex-Governor Harry W. Nice, Republican nominee for United States senator, report his determination to do all he possibly can do to restore harmony in the party. With that end in view, he has given them the assurance that, if elected, he will deal with all Republicans on the basis of Republicanism and without regard to past political differences. In the meantime, he has assured them, he purposes to be fair and impartial, and to look to the regularly elected Republican organization in each county for guidance and advice, as well as other Republicans of each county, but only on the basis of fair treatment toward all.

That is the proper spirit. Fortunately all differences that existed in the primary contest between Nice and former Mayor William F. Broening have been smoothed over. Mayor Broening made a splendid and earnest move to that end at the state convention by throwing his wholehearted support to ex-Governor Nice and pledging the undivided support of himself and his friends to the nominee.

In this connection, the Bel Air Times editorially expresses the belief that the primary contest has not left any lasting sores. "The Republicans have always been sportsmen," it says, "and their irritation soon dies out. In addition, the Republicans want to win the presidency this year and this cannot be accomplished with ill feeling in the ranks."

Quite so. As a matter of fact, the Times points out, "many of those who supported Governor Nice did so with no feeling of antagonism toward Mr. Broening, for he commands the affection and respect of all Republicans, and under different circumstances we are sure he could have had a united party behind him. A party primary is a sign of growth and vigor, and it is partly due to the lack of this style of contest that we are now in the minority, but we see symptoms of late that many of those young men who, though naturally Republicans, felt that it was to their material advantage to join the Democratic ranks, are gradually coming over and now admire the pep and energy which our party has been showing in the recent campaigns."

The News believes with the Bel Air paper that so far as the Nice-Broening contest is concerned, everything is all right. But there was considerable opposition in the state convention with regard to the retention of former Senator O. E. Weller as national committeeman. It is earnestly hoped that Mr. Weller will take due cognizance of this and do what he possibly can to remedy that situation. He would be rendering the party a distinct service by following the admirable efforts of Nice and Broening toward the restoration of party harmony by giving due recognition to the opposition, which may be based upon erroneous conceptions, in view of the fact that had not a quick adjournment of the state convention been forced, it might have voted for his relegation. Mr. Weller is capable of healing any injuries that have been caused and it is to be hoped that he will do so in the interests of party harmony and party solidarity.

The Bel Air Times makes the point that too many Republicans have been unwittingly made the dupes of certain Democratic newspapers of the state respecting ex-Governor Nice, and it is something to which party members should give attention. "Too many Republicans," it says, "have been taking their cues from the Democratic papers, which have done their best to belittle Governor Nice during his incumbency in that high office, to ridicule him and to laugh him out of the contest. This is unfair, for an analysis of it shows that the governor gave one of the best regimes in Maryland's history, with no scandal except in one or two instances where his great humanity and good nature caused him to make appointments against his better judgment and which turned out badly."

The great aim of the party this fall, the Bel Air Times also says, "is to put a stop to the subversion of the democratic form of government and the tremendous extravagance now being practiced in Washington. The battle is set for November, with every disposition and strategy favoring the election of a Republican president. This should be our aim and goal, and all other considerations should be thrown by the wayside and we should become a united party—back of our candidate for the presidency and back of our candidates for the Senate and the House of Representatives.

"Nothing has occurred in the recent primary which cannot be adjusted," the Bel Air paper continues, "and we feel sufficient confidence in Governor Nice that with his experience as a chief executive of the state and his knowledge of men and women gained therefrom, and his natural kindliness of heart, that rather than feeling revengeful toward his antagonists he will regard them as Republicans and will draw little distinction between late political friends and foes."

The Bel Air Times reports that dozens of Democrats in its county have stated their intention of supporting Nice for the Senate. That is true of the Western Maryland territory. Many Democrats hereabout, alarmed by the extravagances and the financial irresponsibilities of the New Deal administration, alarmed over its repeated colossal failures and fearful of its future course, have declared that they expect to vote against it this fall at the polls. It will serve mightily to bring over these citizens if they are made to realize that the Republican ranks are united and strongly in support of their candidates for the Senate and the House.

Financial Preparedness Is Also Necessary

SENATOR BYRD, of Virginia, declares that while this nation faces the necessity of preparing to defend itself from any and all aggressors in this time of ruthless dictators, we must remember that financial preparedness is just as important as military preparedness.

The senator is dead right about that. "It is the impelling duty of Congress in the current critical circumstances," he says, "to eliminate every extravagance, to abolish every unnecessary expenditure and to devote our resources to the vital necessity of preparing ourselves to meet any contingency and any crisis that may occur."

To that end the senator has suggested the appointment by Congress of a nonpartisan commission to report "as promptly as possible on the elimination of nonessential federal spending, on the abolition of every wasteful appropriation, and at the same time to report on such revision of our tax system as is necessary to place our government in sound financial condition necessary to meet imperative expenditures for increased armaments."

As usual, the senator's feet are on the ground. One of our difficulties right now is that too many men in high place are soaring in the clouds of financial chimeras and it is high time that they get down to earth.

Obvious Things about Our Defense Job

NO QUESTION now obtains with respect to the fact that Americans must look seriously, deliberately and determinedly to their home defenses. The greatest danger here, as is pointed out by the Morgantown, W. Va., Post, is not that we shall fail to act or that we shall act too slowly but that we shall try to act too rapidly without the careful and prudent planning necessary for effective action." This is corroborative of comment heretofore made in this newspaper.

The Morgantown newspaper also points out that building up our military strength is only part of the job we have to do and perhaps the easiest part of the job. "We must have peace at home," it says. "We must end our internal warfare. We must cease building up hatreds among ourselves. We must stop inciting one group or class of citizens against other groups and classes. In short, we must seek national unity—and that means sinking our own differences in an honest give-and-take in which concessions are made all the way around for the larger and compelling national welfare."

These things, indeed, are the need of the hour. Our failure to achieve them of late points to the obvious course that is open to us for achieving them as they should be achieved.

Imaginary Speech to a Lady

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Lady, why are you so proud? Why do you pass me with your nose in the air? Why that suspicious eye, those lines around your mouth, that proud, that disdainful air?

Marshall Maslin

Lady, why are you what you seem to be? How did you grow that way?

Lady, why are you?

You are pretty, yes. Anybody with half an eye knows that. But what if you are? Prettiness is an accident; prettiness is luck, nourished by attention, preserved in the beauty shop. It will pass, you cannot keep it by you. There's nothing in prettiness to make you proud.

You have social position? Your mother comes from an old, old family? Your father has money, is an able man? But all families are old, and money has a trick of disappearing—as many, to their sorrow, know—and children do not always inherit their parents' ability. . . . Why tilt your nose so high?

You are "brighter" than other people? You can't stand the common ruck of people, the stupid, ignorant, boring mass of them—they're a constant offense to you? . . . Very well, let us admit you have a lively little brain, but what good has it done you? A good brain should make a mortal happy, not miserable, as you are.

You say you're NOT unhappy? . . . I say, in all politeness that you are! You hold your nose too high to be a happy girl. . . . I see that nose and I understand its meaning. From the moment you wake in the morning until you fall asleep at night, you are thinking about yourself and no happiness can come from that. You are thinking about your clothes, your "position," about what you need and what you want, and about your attitude toward other people.

You never get away from that. You can't. . . . Trouble with you is you are never LOST. You never get away from yourself. And it remains a little self because you never take your eye away from it. You keep so close to it it cannot grow. You love it so much that you suffocate it with attention. It is spoiled and unhappy.

What business is this of mine? What right have I to speak about your tilted nose and your restlessness and your vanity and your unhappiness? No right at all, Proud Lady. It just occurred to me it would do you no harm to know that nose of yours is fooling nobody. . . . Or don't you care?

Movies Too Soft, Augen Complains

By EDWIN C. HILL

Theda Bara is still Hymie Augen's favorite moving picture star.

Edwin C. Hill

He occasionally likes a modern talking picture, but he is both romantic and sentimental and therefore given to old attachments and loyalties. He saw "Streets of London" the other day and found Vivien Leigh somewhat unconvincing. He thought Theda Bara would have done much better in the part. Then again, he was indignant about Miss Leigh running out on her pals, as he put it. I could understand his mingling of fact and fiction in this critical appraisal. The world is so fantastic these days that none of us seems to know where one ends and the other begins.

Augen Explains

"This Charles Laughton is just a mug," Mr. Augen explained. "I was hep to that right at the start. But that don't give that little tramp any right to two-time him the way she did. The minute I saw this Laughton, I says, there's a geek I'd stake to a flop or a drink or fix a rap for him or buy him a feed or whatever he wanted. He makes you feel that way, and you keep on hoping he gets a break. He puts this little bearcat in his clown mob and they're doing all right until she lifts the cigarette case from this songwriter and gets acquainted with him, and then she's on the up and up with her name in electric lights, and, naturally, this Laughton is disappointed and gets to be a souse, etc.

"When she wows the audience at the theater he's just an old lush hanging around outside and when she comes out she happens to bump into him. It makes her feel bad and she cries so hard about him you are supposed to think that squares everything. Then she leaves him there, looking sad enough to break your heart, and goes on her way to her pent-house. She ought to of been ashamed of herself. With all her dough it would have been nothing for her to flag a cab and take this poor old rummy to a nice Turkish bath and have him boiled out, and then fix him up with some clothes in a nice hotel and maybe run him through a Keely Institute, and then get him a job as a hoofer or gag man in some show shop. He would of done more than that for her if it had been the other way around.

Makes A Difference

"When you see a show or moving picture like this, it makes a difference whether you grew up in dumps like the one they had in the picture, and streets like that, or whether you just read about vthem. Back in the ten-twenty-thirty days it used to be a joke how some of the meanest yeggs in the gallery would cry about some nice old dame being gouged by a mortgage shark or something and then holler their heads off when the brown mare, Daisy, won the race and saved the old farm. The way I figure it, it takes a guy who has been over the bumps to know what real trouble it. These gorillas might of been tough, and maybe they would have snatched of old lady's farm themselves if they had a chance, but they knew what it was to be hungry and broke.

All With Happy Endings

"That's why they all had happy endings in Miner's old Bowery theater and all the shows I went to when I was a boy. There was so many poor people went to them and anybody who was ever cold or hungry or was a rum-hound, don't want to see any nice people stuck that way. Shakespeare's shows, where everybody gets killed in the last act, are for rich people who never get around much. If some of your friends have been bumped off, and maybe in some dark alley you had been mixed up in a real killing, you wouldn't want to put it in a play. You'd have the guy in the alley duck the bullets and lam home and swear he'd take care of the wife and kids. Most of this trouble on the stage is made up by people who don't know what real trouble is.

Fighters Less Voluble

"Did you notice that when the boys came back from the war, the ones that talked most about it was the ones that was farthest from the shooting? If a guy was in any real close-up gun play, he didn't want to talk about it. The best story-teller I ever knew was just a phooey who was a make-believe fighter. The best fighter I ever knew, with a gat or a brick or anything he could grab, couldn't of wrote two lines on the Battle of Gettysburg, if he'd won it single-handed. But what I mean about this moving picture is that the people in Hollywood, where they make the pictures, have had it too soft. If they knew more about life and how tough it is, they wouldn't let this girl give poor old stewy Laughton the run-around. Everything else is haywire. Why can't the movies, anyway, get things right?" Progress in Research

From the Parkersburg, W. Va., Sentinel

The faculty and students of West Virginia university and the newspapers of Morgantown are rejoicing over the fact that the state board of public works has decided to allocate a half million dollars for the immediate construction of a Mineral Arts building at the university. This building will make possible excellent research facilities for the coal and other mineral industries of this state.

The Morgantown papers attempt to point out that the building will be for the advantage of the state generally for the reason that West Virginia is a great mineral state, giving employment to thousands of miners and other workers in industry and thus in that manner will the whole commonwealth benefit and prosper from the new institution.

It is a fact that all industry in recent years is benefitting wonderfully from research which heretofore has been carried on mostly by the big corporations. Now it is time for the states and the federal government to do their share in research, in the opinion of many citizens.

Pan America Will Remain Democratic Regardless of What Happens Abroad

Central Press Columnist

Washington is very well satisfied with evidences of the Pan Americas' determination to remain democratic no matter what happens in Europe. All advices from capitals of the southern republics are to the effect that liberty-loving elements in their part of the new world simply have been strengthened by recent German successes, in their resolve to keep totalitarianism from gaining a foothold in our hemisphere.

Josephus Daniels

If there's any southern country concerning which Washington, most confidentially, has been a trifle uneasy, it's Mexico. Congressman Martin Dies, for instance, has suggested that un-American propaganda is dangerously prevalent just below the Rio Grande.

Is Not Strong

However, Josephus Daniels, our ambassador in Mexico City, who probably is as good a judge as Congressman Dies, says it isn't. The ambassador, temporarily away from his post on a visit home, reports that, while there's a Mexican Communistic party, it isn't strong, and that Nazis-ism is unpopular in the republic. Furthermore, he mentions that, if the Dies committee knows anything more of totalitarian plotting on Mexico's side of the border than the Mexican government knows, the latter government will be glad to be enlightened. This doesn't sound particularly undemocratic so far as Mexico is concerned.

Of course, Yankee-Mexican relations have been somewhat strained by the oil controversy, but that doesn't in the least imply that Mexico is totalitarian.

Emphatically Neutral

Argentina, Uruguay and Panama have been quicker than Uncle Sam has been to resent overseas disregard of American neutrality. They were prompt to take offense at the landing of British and French marines in the Dutch West Indies. We were disposed to wink at it. They are almost more neutral than we are. They're so neutral that they verge on being willing to fight for neutrality.

They're for Pan-American solidarity, anyhow. If it does have to be fought for, Uncle Sam will have to do the fighting—not the Pan Americas in their entirety. Still, they're in favor of it.

Germany's quite strong on the South American east coast. A couple of Brazil's southern states are nearly wholly German. They'd like to Nazify the entire country. But the very fact that they're so Nazificated makes the rest of Brazil hate them. And the anti-Nazis greatly predominate throughout the country elsewhere.

Italians are thick in Argentina. The newspaper with the largest Argentine circulation is an Italian-language daily—La Patria degli Italiani of Buesnos Aires. But the country's so violently anti-Fascist that I've seen anti-Fascist riots there, in which hundreds were killed. I had to hunt my hole myself.

The Latin-American west coast hasn't so many Germans, Italians or any Russians, to speak of at all. But there they're afraid of the Japanese. Their reasoning is about what ours used to be when we were cursing Oriental "cheap labor."

Only, now, they discuss military conquest as well as cheap labor.

Getting Practical

The whole thing's this:

It's simmering down to a practicality.

The Americas, south of the United States, hate their dictatorships.

They're getting to be democratic.

In short, we're becoming a truly democratic hemisphere.

Taken individually, we always have been theoretically democratic. But, country by country; no, collectively.

If we can get a union? Oh, my!

From the Webster, W. Va., Republican

The young people of today are said to be far keener mentally, brighter, wittier and more alert than their parents were at their age. The school teachers will perhaps say that some of the youngsters, in spite of their brightness, lack the power to concentrate on a hard task. That seems characteristic of very many people, both old and young.

The schools don't ask pupils to overwork, but they think if young people will dig at a subject it can finally be mastered. If they can't understand the lesson the first or second time they read it, they should read it a third time and try to think what it means. The true meaning will probably dawn on them. If they can't get it then, the patient teachers will explain it.

Many people look back to their school days and think of hard arithmetic examples. There was one in some of the old textbooks of wood to make a box of a certain length, breadth and weight. The pupil had to fight on what extra inches were required when the sides, tops, ends and bottom overlapped. It was very easy to omit some of that overlapping, and thus make an error. The pupil who couldn't concentrate might say it couldn't be done.

Some would say such an example was not worth all the time it took.

Life is like that: after we quit school. It takes a heap of thinking to see through the difficulties that surround us. Some people seem to regard thinking as too hard. Perhaps that is one reason why many things go wrong in this country.

Idleness Brings Discontent after The Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"In the four months of my marriage," writes a reader, "I have often realized the wisdom of my old nurse, a remarkable Negro philosopher. She used to say, 'Honey, marriage is one thing, co'ting is another.'

"From this you will realize that I come from below the Mason and Dixon Line, where we're still foolish enough to believe in chivalry and that a woman should look up to her husband and be protected.

"Naturally, I was amazed when my husband, after two months of marriage, suggested that I take a position in an office so that we could complete the payments on a home we are buying. He said, as we had no immediate prospect of any children, he thought it would be a good thing, the honeymoon being over, if I took a job.

"I suppose I was silly, but this suggestion almost broke my heart. I had expected to remain in our own home always and while the little three-room apartment we have gave me a good deal of leisure, I never imagined that my husband would suggest my going out to work.

"I really am ashamed to write to the folks at home and tell them that I have taken this job. What do you think I should do? Pride keeps me from going back home, and yet the idea of going to work in an office as a file clerk hurts more than I can express."

Millions Are Working

I'm not going to answer your letter, my dear, by telling you of the millions of married women who now work. I understand perfectly your reaction about taking that job. You see, I know the South, and a good many girls of your background would feel as you do about helping to bring home the bacon.

But please let me remind you that in these days of grim economic struggle many young married women do take jobs until the stork favors them with a visit.

As you say, your little three-room apartment gives you a good deal of leisure. Why shouldn't that leisure be turned to profit? If you spend your spare time playing bridge, going to the movies, window shopping, with an occasional cocktail party as a red-letter day, it's likely you would soon grow discontented and look for crumpled rose-leaves.

Time Hangs Heavily

Many women who lead that sort of life write me letters full of discontent, without ever stopping to think that the reason they're unhappy is because time hangs too heavily on their hands. You would certainly enjoy that little home more if your industry helped to pay for it. And, of course, your husband would establish joint ownership in recognition of what you've done.

It has become almost a platitude that the most difficult time of married life is during those first years of adjustment. Women for some unaccountable reason expect the honeymoon to continue forever. A job is really a new way to get over this ultra-romantic period and realize how fine is the comradeship—the foundation stone of marriage—that comes after those first trying years. If you went back home, you'd find your position much more humiliating than if you stayed, took the job for at least a year or two, and helped pay for the new home. This is my candid opinion.

Family Objects

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very much in love with a man of 29, whom I met at a party at the home of a girl friend. He took me home, and when my father met him, he was very angry that I would go out with a man who has a wife and two children although he is divorced. Do you see any harm in that? I am 17 years of age. I'm in my last year in high school.

M.

It seems to me, as you are only 17 years old and a dependent in your father's home, that you should take his advice as to this divorced man. I suggest that you find out something about the divorce—whether it was granted to him or to his wife, and the amount of alimony that the court requires him to pay toward the support of his children.

With all these objections, it seems to me it would be a very unwise venture to consider marriage with this man.

Friend Gossips about Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A certain man I once adored has been telling false stories about me and some of them have come back to me. I would like to get in touch with this man to persuade him to stop spreading these rumors about me, but I'm afraid he will tell my husband. He seems to delight in making me miserable. B.

You haven't told me enough about this affair. Did you "adore" this man before or after you were married? If the latter, I don't wonder at your anxiety.

However, the kiss-and-tell type of man has always been held up by both men and women as the most contemptible of his species, even by people who may listen to what he says. If the rumors are false, the law can stop them.

Suppose you write me more about this affair. In the meantime, please don't worry; that won't help matters.

Federation of Post Office Clubs Will Hold District Dinner Here

William H. Gunther, eighth vice-president of the National Federation of Post Office Clubs will be among the guests at the district meeting and dinner to be held by the Federation at 8 o'clock Saturday evening in the main ballroom of the Fort Cumberland hotel.

Congressman Albert E. Austin of Connecticut, a member of the International Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, is expected to attend.

Joseph A. Grabenstein, president of Local No. 513 of the National Federation of Post Office Clubs is in charge of arrangements and is assisted by Morris Eisenberg, National State Representative.

Maryland and Delaware will be represented at the dinner.

Soap and Water are Beauty's Standbys

By HELEN FOLLETT

DAINTINESS is ace high in the beauty game. It is a quality of charm that no girl can afford to overlook. It is particularly necessary to cultivate it now that we are wearing lacy duds again, pretty collars and cuffs, cute bows, all sorts of do-dads that must be kept in a state of perfection.

The dainty woman makes a strong appeal to the growly sex. The dear men can't have fluffles and ruffles, maybe that's why they're crazy about them. We've yet to hear a member of the tribe say that he admires a woman in slacks. They say that the wrong-shaped girls are usually the ones who wear them. Anyhow, what's beautiful about pants? Maybe we're just old-fashioned.

Two qualities contribute toward daintiness and smart appearance—good taste and a sense of order. The girl with skewgee stockings isn't tidy, nor is the one whose purse is a holy mess inside. The careless woman who hurries through her toilette has hair in disarray, fingernails patchy with scaling polish, clothes that need a stitch or two, complexion powder patchy.

Soiled handkerchiefs and uncertain-looking gloves are unpardonable. Soiled neckwear is worse. Scraggly eyebrows spoil the beauty picture. All little details add no trouble to attend to them; they are of tremendous importance in the sum total that is You or I or the woman next door.

Hands don't need lotions so much this season of the year, but they do need creaming, especially if you are a hard-working housewife who must do all the chores—dishwashing, dusting, washing the baby's clothes.

Unless hands are oiled at least twice a week, the skin dries out and there is a chance that they will soon be wrinkled and old-looking. No woman wants that to happen.

Cold cream can be the chosen medium, but there are other substances that are more quickly absorbed. Cocoabutter is one, lanoline another. Keep on rubbing until they disappear. Have the massage at bedtime.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Idleness Brings Discontent after The Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"In the four months of my marriage," writes a reader, "I have often realized the wisdom of my old nurse, a remarkable Negro philosopher. She used to say, 'Honey, marriage is one thing, co'ting is ano'her.'

"From this you will realize that I come from below the Mason and Dixon Line, where we're still foolish enough to believe in chivalry and that a woman should look up to her husband and be protected.

"Naturally, I was amazed when my husband, after two months of marriage, suggested that I take a position in an office so that we could complete the payments on a home we are buying. He said, as we had no immediate prospect of any children, he thought it would be a good thing, the honeymoon being over, if I took a job.

"I suppose I was silly, but this suggestion almost broke my heart. I had expected to remain in our own home always and while the little three-room apartment we have gave me a good deal of leisure, I never imagined that my husband would suggest my going out to work.

"I really am ashamed to write to the folks at home and tell them that I have taken this job. What do you think I should do? Pride keeps me from going back home, and yet the idea of going to work in an office as a file clerk hurts more than I can express."

Millions Are Working

I'm not going to answer your letter, my dear, by telling you of the millions of married women who now work. I understand perfectly your reaction about taking that job. You see, I know the South, and a good many girls of your background would feel as you do about helping to bring home the bacon.

But please let me remind you that in these days of grim economic struggle many young married women do take jobs until the stork favors them with a visit.

As you say, your little three-room apartment gives you a good deal of leisure. Why shouldn't that leisure be turned to profit? If you spend your spare time playing bridge, going to the movies, window shopping, with an occasional cocktail party as a red-letter day, it's likely you would soon grow discontented and look for crumpled rose-leaves.

Time Hangs Heavily

Many women who lead that sort of life write me letters full of discontent, without ever stopping to think that the reason they're unhappy is because time hangs too heavily on their hands. You would certainly enjoy that little home more if your industry helped to pay for it. And, of course, your husband would establish joint ownership in recognition of what you've done.

It has become almost a platitude that the most difficult time of married life is during those first years of adjustment. Women for some unaccountable reason expect the honeymoon to continue forever. A job is really a new way to get over this ultra-romantic period and realize how fine is the comradeship—the foundation stone of marriage—that comes after those first trying years. If you went back home, you'd find your position much more humiliating than if you stayed, took the job for at least a year or two, and helped pay for the new home. This is my candid opinion.

Family Objects

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very much in love with a man of 29, whom I met at a party at the home of a girl friend. He took me home, and when my father met him, he was very angry that I would go out with a man who has a wife and two children although he is divorced. Do you see any harm in that? I am 17 years of age. I'm in my last year in high school.

M.

It seems to me, as you are only 17 years old and a dependent in your father's home, that you should take his advice as to this divorced man. I suggest that you find out something about the divorce—whether it was granted to him or to his wife, and the amount of alimony that the court requires him to pay toward the support of his children.

With all these objections, it seems to me it would be a very unwise venture to consider marriage with this man.

Friend Gossips about Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A certain man I once adored has been telling false stories about me and some of them have come back to me. I would like to get in touch with this man to persuade him to stop spreading these rumors about me, but I'm afraid he will tell my husband. He seems to delight in making me miserable.

B.

You haven't told me enough about this affair. Did you "adore" this man before or after you were married? If the latter, I don't wonder at your anxiety.

However, the kiss-and-tell type of man has always been held up by both men and women as the most contemptible of his species, even by people who may listen to what he says. If the rumors are false, the law can stop them.

Suppose you write me more about this affair. In the meantime, please don't worry; that won't help matters.

Federation of Post Office Clubs Will Hold District Dinner Here

Soap and Water are Beauty's Standbys

By HELEN FOLLETT

DAINTINESS is ace high in the beauty game. It is a quality of charm that no girl can afford to overlook. It is particularly necessary to cultivate it now that we are wearing lacy duds again, pretty collars and cuffs, cute bows, all sorts of do-dads that must be kept in a state of perfection.

The dainty woman makes a strong appeal to the growly sex. The dear men can't have fluffles and ruffles, maybe that's why they're crazy about them. We've yet to hear a member of the tribe say that he admires a woman in slacks. They say that the wrong-shaped girls are usually the ones who wear them. Anyhow, what's beautiful about pants? Maybe we're just old-fashioned.

Two qualities contribute toward daintiness and smart appearance—good taste and a sense of order. The girl with skewgee stockings isn't tidy, nor is the one whose purse is a holy mess inside. The careless woman who hurries through her toilette has hair in disarray, fingernails patchy with scaling polish, clothes that need a stitch or two, complexion powder patchy.

Soiled handkerchiefs and uncertain-looking gloves are unpardonable. Soiled neckwear is worse. Scraggly eyebrows spoil the beauty picture. All little details and no trouble to attend to them; they are of tremendous importance in the sum total that is You or I or the woman next door.

Hands don't need lotions so much this season of the year, but they do need creaming, especially if you are a hard-working housewife who must do all the chores—dishwashing, dusting, washing the baby's clothes.

Unless hands are oiled at least twice a week, the skin dries out and there is a chance that they will soon be wrinkled and old-looking. No woman wants that to happen.

Cold cream can be the chosen medium, but there are other substances that are more quickly absorbed. Cocoabutter is one, lanoline another. Keep on rubbing until they disappear. Have the massage at bedtime.

Rita Hayworth

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

THE DAILY STORY

LIPSTICK

Audrey Was a Smart Girl. All Her Bets Were Sure Things, Including Old Reliable Dan

By MEVA COCHRAN

In a way the thing was grotesque, unbelievable. Audrey couldn't do this. Still, the note said that she had already done it. It was weighted down with a silver ash tray on the dining room table, and he had seen it almost as soon as he entered the room. It read: "Dan—I'm leaving. I thought we could go on indefinitely, but it's no use. I realize now we've both made an enormous mistake by trying. Please don't look for me. Audrey."

Dan took off his panama to wipe the sweatband. He thought vaguely that he would like to sink into a large chair. Instead, he just stood there and crinkled his eyebrows in dismay and said, "Nuts!"

He stared at the paper intently—as if he were trying to change the words by a supreme mental effort.

The telephone in the hall jangled and with long strides he pounced on it. It was only Davis,his broker. Funny that Davis should call at this hour. Three p. m. of a Saturday Davis was usually at the links.

"This you, Dan? Listen." The voice sounded harsh, excited. "A. M. M. took another dive. Old man Crumley ran out on us. It'll take $5,000 to cover when the exchange opens Monday. Maybe we can pull out then. I called earlier and told your wife as per your instructions, but I thought I would try and get in touch with you."

"Thanks, Davis."

Mechanically he placed the receiver on the hook. It was becoming clearer now. Audrey had received Davis' message; then, instead of calling Dan long-distance, had taken the quickest, easiest way out of an unpleasant situation.

She couldn't take it! The words danced a silly jig to the crashing of cymbals. The hall rocked crazily, blurred and then became distinct.

He bit his lip hard and started for the bathroom to turn off the water that was dripping from the shower spray. Everything was in disorder. Evidently Audrey had been in a great hurry. He found himself indulging his hobby of being an amateur detective.

He inspected the washbowl and noted the drops of water in it, although the faucet didn't leak. She couldn't have been gone so long, he thought. Otherwise the warm breeze coming in through the bathroom window would have had time to dry up the water. This deduction helped some to restore his mental poise.

Without thinking he wandered into her room, the gaping closets, the pulled-out drawers, all verified the contents of the note. A feeling of utter hopelessness seized him as he stepped quickly out.

In the living room he examined the silver ash tray that had been on top of the note. It contained several cigarette butts. One was an unusual brand with a monogram on it and traces of lipstick. He tried to read the monogram and made out the initials "T. P. W."

"A feeling of utter helplessness seized him."

Dan dug his fingers in his curly black hair, tilting his panama on one ear. Then he ripped out an oath that must have been heard at least two blocks away right through the sound proof walls. It was Therbold Wayne, of course! They had been together recently. He must have called for her and then they left together. His paw tightened.

The more he considered it the more he convinced himself that now he should get an explanation from Audrey herself. Even if he had to swallow some of the family pride in the process. He stood there for a moment, undecided. Then the inevitable happened—Daniel Thorne went into action.

His coupe was hitting 60 before it was out of second. The mountain road was at the north end of town. Thirty-five miles out was Wayne's hunting lodge, set back in the woods. Dan had been there several times and he knew every foot of the road.

On the highway he held the machine around 80. Perhaps it was not too late. They couldn't have left more than an hour ago and Wayne was a slow driver.

He tried to make himself believe that in spite of all the evidence something had happened that he couldn't grasp. With Wayne's money and lack of sense anything could happen, he reasoned.

Doubts clogged his mind. What if they were not there. Wayne had a town house, too. Besides, he could have used a friend's place. He edged the machine to 90 and started the climb into the mountains. Only 12 miles now.

Wayne's car was standing right in the driveway. Obviously, he had made no attempt to conceal his impudence. Dean leapt up the porch steps and tried the door. It was locked. But before he could rap it swung open.

Audrey was framed in the doorway, smiling at him as if nothing at all out of the way had happened.

"Sherlock, my darling," she cooed and then pulled him into the room and pushed him down in a chair before he had a chance to find his voice.

"What's this all about?" he demanded.

She laughed merrily. Wayne came into the room and joined in the laughter. He had a glass in his and waved it at Dan and asked, "Scotch or bourbon, old boy? Look like you can do with a bracer."

Dan checked a homicidal impulse to do a job of punching on Wayne. He said, "Make it bourbon—and I still want to know what this is all about."

Audrey caught the glint of danger in Dan's eyes, so she sat down and poured out words.

"It was a put-up job, darling. Your broker called and gave me the message. Said you needed $5,000. I had to do something. So I called Therby here and we made a bet that you wouldn't find me if I left you. I bet both my diamond bracelets, which are in hock, against Wayne's $5,000—and I won!"

"But how in the world—?" Dan began feebly and then stopped. Naturally. She had smoked one of Wayne's cigarettes because she knew he'd see it.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

THE DAILY STORY

LIPSTICK

Audrey Was a Smart Girl. All Her Bets Were Sure Things, Including Old Reliable Dan

By MEVA COCHRAN

In a way the thing was grotesque, unbelievable. Audrey couldn't do this. Still, the note said that she had already done it. It was weighted down with a silver ash tray on the dining room table, and he had seen it almost as soon as he entered the room. It read: "Dan—I'm leaving. I thought we could go on indefinitely, but it's no use. I realize now we've both made an enormous mistake by trying. Please don't look for me. Audrey."

Dan took off his panama to wipe

"A feeling of utter helplessness seized him."

the sweatband. He thought vaguely that he would like to sink into a large chair. Instead, he just stood there and crinkled his eyebrows in dismay and said, "Nuts!"

He stared at the paper intently—as if he were trying to change the words by a supreme mental effort.

The telephone in the hall jangled and with long strides he pounced on it. It was only Davis, his broker. Funny that Davis should call at this hour. Three p. m. of a Saturday Davis was usually at the links.

"This you, Dan? Listen." The voice sounded harsh, excited. "A. M. M. took another dive. Old man Crumley ran out on us. It'll take $5,000 to cover when the exchange opens Monday. Maybe we can pull out then. I called earlier and told your wife as per your instructions, but I thought I would try and get in touch with you."

"Thanks, Davis."

Mechanically he placed the receiver on the hook. It was becoming clearer now. Audrey had received Davis' message; then, instead of calling Dan long-distance, had taken the quickest, easiest way out of an unpleasant situation.

She couldn't take it! The words danced a silly jig to the crashing of cymbals. The hall rocked crazily, blurred and then became distinct.

He bit his lip hard and started for the bathroom to turn off the water that was dripping from the shower spray. Everything was in disorder. Evidently Audrey had been in a great hurry. He found himself indulging his hobby of being an amateur detective.

He inspected the washbowl and noted the drops of water in it, although the faucet didn't leak. She couldn't have been gone so long, he thought. Otherwise the warm breeze coming in through the bathroom window would have had time to dry up the water. This deduction helped some to restore his mental poise.

Without thinking he wandered into her room, the gaping closets, the pulled-out drawers, all verified the contents of the note. A feeling of utter hopelessness seized him as he stepped quickly out.

In the living room he examined the silver ash tray that had been on top of the note. It contained several cigarette butts. One was an unusual brand with a monogram on it and traces of lipstick. He tried to read the monogram and made out the initials "T. P. W."

Dan dug his fingers in his curly black hair, tilting his panama on one ear. Then he ripped out an oath that must have been heard at least two blocks away right through the sound proof walls. It was Therbold Wayne, of course! They had been together recently. He must have called for her and then they left together. His paw tightened.

The more he considered it the more he convinced himself that now he should get an explanation from Audrey herself. Even if he had to swallow some of the family pride in the process. He stood there for a moment, undecided. Then the inevitable happened—Daniel Thorne went into action.

His coupe was hitting 60 before it was out of second. The mountain road was at the north end of town. Thirty-five miles out was Wayne's hunting lodge, set back in the woods. Dan had been there several times and he knew every foot of the road.

On the highway he held the machine around 80. Perhaps it was not too late. They couldn't have left more than an hour ago and Wayne was a slow driver.

He tried to make himself believe that in spite of all the evidence something had happened that he couldn't grasp. With Wayne's money and lack of sense anything could happen, he reasoned.

Doubts clogged his mind. What if they were not there. Wayne had a town house, too. Besides, he could have used a friend's place. He edged the machine to 90 and started the climb into the mountains. Only 12 miles now.

Wayne's car was standing right in the driveway. Obviously, he had made no attempt to conceal his impudence. Dean leapt up the porch steps and tried the door. It was locked. But before he could rap it swung open.

Audrey was framed in the doorway, smiling at him as if nothing at all out of the way had happened.

"Sherlock, my darling," she cooed, and then pulled him into the room and pushed him down in a chair before he had a chance to find his voice.

"What's this all about?" he demanded.

She laughed merrily. Wayne came into the room and joined in the laughter. He had a glass in his and waved it at Dan and asked, "Scotch or bourbon, old boy? Look like you can do with a bracer."

Dan checked a homicidal impulse to do a job of punching on Wayne. He said, "Make it bourbon—and I still want to know what this is all about."

Audrey caught the glint of danger in Dan's eyes, so she sat down and poured out words.

"It was a put-up job, darling. Your broker called and gave me the message. Said you needed $5,000. I had to do something. So I called Therby here and we made a bet that you wouldn't find me if I left you. I bet both my diamond bracelets, which are in hock, against Wayne's $5,000—and I won!"

"But how in the world—?" Dan began feebly and then stopped. Naturally. She had smoked one of Wayne's cigarettes because she knew he'd see it.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Tea and Coffee Will Prevent Mental Fatigue

Doctor Says Both Increase the Rate and Strength of Heart

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Tea, like coffee, increases the rate and strength of the heart, it causes mental stimulation because the blood flows through the brain faster, and it causes elimination through the kidneys by increasing blood flow there.

Personally, I prefer coffee and only drink tea in those countries where coffee is an undrinkable beverage. The cup of slop they give you in some countries and call coffee is something that a little boy would make to play a joke on his grandmother. On ships returning from Europe in the old days, there used to come a look over the faces of the Americans about the second day out which we called the "coffee look." They were returning to the land which was to them not only the land of freedom, but the land of coffee.

After knowing what good coffee is, I am expressing a purely personal opinion when I say that drinking tea is like kissing your sister. I see no reason for the vogue of iced tea. However, for those who like it, it is a good drink and it has the same advantages for middle-aged people as coffee.

A Coffee Legend

It is a somewhat more aristocratic drink than coffee; at least, it has a longer heredity, and was drunk in China so long ago that there are few legends about its origin.

Not a Harmful Beverage

For those who think it is a harmful beverage, the legend that was introduced by a Chinese Emperor, who was called the Divine Healer, may be comforting. An old Chinese book says that "it is good for tumors or abscesses that come about the head and for ailments of the bladder; it dissipates heat caused by phlegms or inflammation of the chest; it quenches thirst; it lessens the desire for sleep."

The Dutch brought tea to Europe about 1610, a few years before coffee.

Historically, tea has played an important part. Certainly we in America should never forget that the tax on tea was one of the causes for our separation from England. I like to think that this caused Americans to learn how to brew coffee.

Sidney Smith said: "I am glad I was not born before tea," but that is a British opinion. He had never tasted a cup of American coffee.

Circus's 'Death Dive' Queen Is Scared to Death of Lions

By TOBY WIANT
AP Feature Service Writer

NEW YORK—Brown-haired Jennie Rooney, mother of a 24-year-old son, has discovered how to stay young . . . she does a "death dive" twice a day at the circus.

Working with her husband, Ed, 40 feet above the arena, she dives toward the audience from a trapeze. She is within four and a half feet of the floor when a strap around her ankle stops her plunge.

You have to stay young to do stunts like that. If you don't, you don't do those stunts a second time.

Not Thrilling?

"It's no more thrilling than riding down a fast elevator," she said in a dressing-room interview.

I had seen her do the act without a safety net. I decided to stick to elevators.

Mrs. Rooney is just five feet tall and weighs 112 pounds and doesn't look much older than her son's 24.

She has been with circuses since she was seven, and has done about everything there is to do—bareback riding, balancing acts, trapeze work high wire work and tumbling.

But there is one circus job she absolutely won't touch.

"I'm scared when I get within 10 feet of a wild animal," she says. "I begin to shiver and shake, and the animals seem to sense that I'm afraid. I'll never work with wild animals as long as I can do my dive."

Just Routine

"The basis of most circus work," she explains, "is acrobatic tumbling and balance. Once you have a good grounding in fundamentals it doesn't matter much whether you perform in the air, on the ground, or on a horse."

She said she couldn't work without her husband.

"He knows the problems I face, and he knows just how to handle the rope smoothly."

The Rooneys didn't need to be prodded to talk about their son, John. A graduate of Marquette University, he is a dentist at Fond du Lac, Wis.

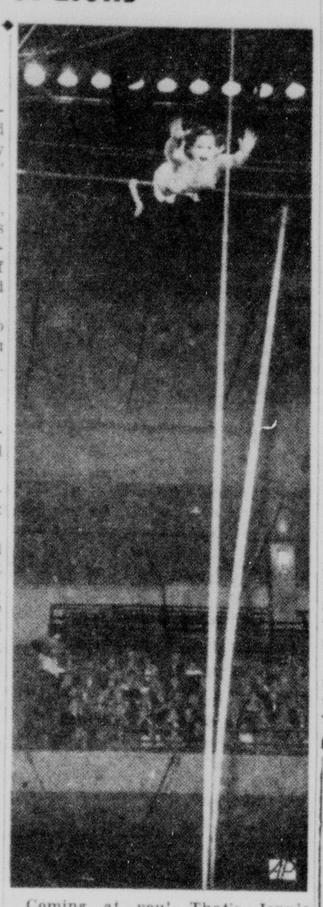
"He never liked circus life, and we never tried to make him like it," she said. "We encouraged him to do whatever he wanted to do."

Golf and Bridge

She said she and her husband wouldn't be happy anywhere but in a circus. He has been with circuses ever since he was 12. At the time they met, he was bareback riding, but he took up aerial work so as to be with her more. They have a home at Sarasota, Fla., where they spend five months of the year.

We always thought trapeze artists jumped off houses and swung on chandeliers when they weren't appearing with circuses.

Not the Rooneys—they fish and play golf and bridge.



Coming at you! That's Jennie Rooney, up there near the row of Madison Square Garden lights, starting her "death dive."

90-Year Old Man Held for Murder

WAUSEON, O., May 22 (AP)—Mrs. Florrie Whitcomb, 32, is dead, and 90-year old Hiram Derby, her husband's stepfather, is under arrest today — because of an argument over a tombstone.

Sheriff Harley Loveland said Derby confessed the shooting at the Whitcomb home near here last night and Prosecutor J. C. Paxson said a first degree murder charge would be filed against him.

The argument began, when Derby told Mrs. Whitcomb "too cheap a marker" had been placed on her father's grave. Ordered from the house, the aged man struck a five-year old Whitcomb child with a cane, Coroner H. M. Warner said, and then drew a revolver and fired four shots, two of them striking the victim.

Mother Shoots Son So He Can Join Friend

MANITOWOC, Wis., May 22 (AP)—A young matron fired three bullets into the body of her seven-year-old son tonight because, she told police, "some dead boy" had been asking to have her son join him.

Police Lieut. Aaron Peterson said the son, Jack Verlaan, was in extremely critical condition and was receiving blood transfusions in an effort to save his life. He said the boy's mother, Mrs. J. H. Verlaan, about 37, was being held without charge.

Officer Charles Denore and Melvin Reinhardt, summoned to the Verlaan home by neighbors who heard the shots, said Mrs. Verlaan told them:

"I've killed my boy. If he doesn't die, you'll kill him for me if you take him away with you, won't you? Because I've got a lot of other people to kill."

Immediately prior to the shooting Charles Backus, an automobile salesman, reported to police he had met the mother and son at the home of a neighbor where she had asked help in fixing a .32 calibre automatic which had "jammed."

The boy told the neighbors that he and his mother were planning "to shoot tin cans."

White -collar Tomato Plants

White-collar workers are not thought of as being particularly strong on the physical side, no matter what their mental capacities may be. On the other hand white-collar tomato plants can be the strong men of the vegetable garden. White collar tomato plants require a second transplanting before being placed in their permanent bed in the garden but the results will justify this extra trouble.

On this second transplanting tomato plants become "white-collar" by being placed in plant bands, prepared paper pots, or even ordinary paper drinking cups. These paper containers prove to be effective protectors against cutworms. They also have the added advantage of making it possible to set the plants into their permanent bed again without disturbing the roots.

As shown in the accompanying drawing, before setting out the plants in paper pots or cups in the vegetable garden, cut off the bottom of the container. This done, plant and paper collar can all be placed in theg round. The paper collars around the plants should be set at least one inch above the ground, since cutworms usually do their damage just at the surface of the soil or not more than an inch underground.

Just Routine

"The basis of most circus work," she explains, "is acrobatic tumbling and balance. Once you have a good grounding in fundamentals it doesn't matter much whether you perform in the air, on the ground, or on a horse."

She said she couldn't work without her husband.

"He knows the problems I face, and he knows just how to handle the rope smoothly."

The Rooneys didn't need to be prodded to talk about their son, John. A graduate of Marquette University, he is a dentist at Fond du Lac, Wis.

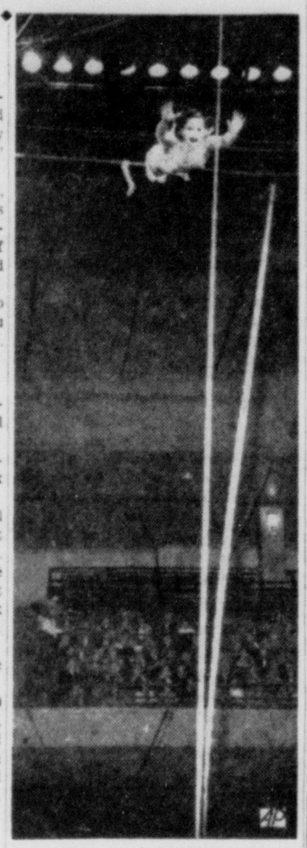
"He never liked circus life, and we never tried to make him like it," she said. "We encouraged him to do whatever he wanted to do."

Golf and Bridge

She said she and her husband wouldn't be happy anywhere but in a circus. He has been with circuses ever since he was 12. At the time they met, he was bareback riding, but he took up aerial work so as to be with her more. They have a home at Sarasota, Fla., where they spend five months of the year.

We always thought trapeze artists jumped off houses and swung on chandeliers when they weren't appearing with circuses.

Not the Rooneys—they fish and play golf and bridge.



Coming at you! That's Jennie Rooney, up there near the row of Madison Square Garden lights, starting her "death dive."

90-Year Old Man Held for Murder

WAUSEON, O., May 22 (AP)—Mrs. Florrie Whitcomb, 32, is dead, and 90-year old Hiram Derby, her husband's stepfather, is under arrest today — because of an argument over a tombstone.

Sheriff Harley Loveland said Derby confessed the shooting at the Whitcomb home near here last night and Prosecutor J. C. Paxson said a first degree murder charge would be filed against him.

The argument began, when Derby told Mrs. Whitcomb "too cheap a marker" had been placed on her father's grave. Ordered from the house, the aged man struck a five-year old Whitcomb child with a cane, Coroner H. M. Warner said, and then drew a revolver and fired four shots, two of them striking the victim.

Mother Shoots Son So He Can Join Friend

MANITOWOC, Wis., May 22 (AP)—A young matron fired three bullets into the body of her seven-year-old son tonight because, she told police, "some dead boy" had been asking to have her son join him.

Police Lieut. Aaron Peterson said the son, Jack Verlaan, was in extremely critical condition and was receiving blood transfusions in an effort to save his life. He said the boy's mother, Mrs. J. H. Verlaan, about 37, was being held without charge.

Officer Charles Denore and Melvin Reinhardt, summoned to the Verlaan home by neighbors who heard the shots, said Mrs. Verlaan told them:

"I've killed my boy. If he doesn't die, you'll kill him for me if you take him away with you, won't you? Because I've got a lot of other people to kill."

Immediately prior to the shooting Charles Backus, an automobile salesman, reported to police he had met the mother and son at the home of a neighbor where she had asked help in fixing a .32 calibre automatic which had "jammed."

The boy told the neighbors that he and his mother were planning "to shoot tin cans."

White-collar Tomato Plants

White-collar workers are not thought of as being particularly strong on the physical side, no matter what their mental capacities may be. On the other hand white-collar tomato plants can be the strong men of the vegetable garden. White collar tomato plants require a second transplanting before being placed in their permanent bed in the garden but the results will justify this extra trouble.

On this second transplanting tomato plants become "white-collar" by being placed in plant bands, prepared paper pots, or even ordinary paper drinking cups. These paper containers prove to be effective protectors against cutworms. They also have the added advantage of making it possible to set the plants into their permanent bed again without disturbing the roots.

As shown in the accompanying drawing, before setting out the plants in paper pots or cups in the vegetable garden, cut off the bottom of the container. This done, plant and paper collar can all be placed in theg round. The paper collars around the plants should be set at least one inch above the ground, since cutworms usually do their damage just at the surface of the soil or not more than an inch underground.

British Minister Of Information Predicts Victory

Duff Gordon Admits "Grave" News of German Successes

LONDON, May 22 (AP) — Alfred Duff Cooper, the British minister of information acknowledged admits the "grave" news of German successes, but told the people:

"The army of Great Britain and the far greater army of France are still there!"

He added that the Allies "are undefeated."

"Three facts alone can be definitely stated," he said in a broadcast to the country.

"First, that the present objective of the enemy is the channel ports from which they hope to launch war upon this island.

"Second, that small parts of the (German) mechanized troops have succeeded in eluding their opponents, in advancing great distances, and coming near to their objective.

"Third, that the armies of France and Great Britain are undefeated.

Soon to Counter Attack

"In enoromously superior numbers they (Allies) occupy the battlefield and the counter-attack, when it comes, should prove formidable. The swaying fortunes of the fight matter little; it is the end of the battle that counts and . . . the end of this battle, whatever it may be, cannot entail the defeat of Great Britain or France in the war."

His voice low and weary, at this dark hour for the Allies, he insisted there was 'no cause for serious alarm, still less for panic," despite the fact that it was "no good pretending" that the news was not bad.

"In employment of a new technique," he went on, "small bodies of the German army have succeded in pentrating to great distances, but they are small bodies only and the successes that they have achieved involves them in fearful danger."

YESTERDAY: With plenty of good publicity, tickets for the amateur play at the Merrifield home are going fast.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

LOLA MONTESA, born in Las Cruces, New Mexico, and reared on the Rio Grande, had come to this eastern city just five years ago. Part of that five had been spent in college, the remainder in the more stark business of trying to keep from starving.

She had succeeded to a degree because of her beauty. With that, she might have cashed in promptly, in a half dozen different ways. One employment agency executive had left his desk and pressed an immediate "business proposition" on her when she applied there, so that she had been forced to strike him with her fists and run away from him. Then, when it was all over, she wondered if she had acted hastily.

She did not fully understand the ways of "thee Yankees," who were bustling and aggressive about everything, especially everything in business. Down on the Mexican border, life moved at a slower tempo. But here in the big northern city was something appealing, too; she wanted to stick it out. The peculiar "employment" in the Merrifield mansion had come as both a surprise and a godsend.

Lola, lonely in spite of her exotic beauty, was one who wrote things in a little book called "Thoughts, Day by Day."

This diary appealed to her because she could put into written words things that she could not speak. It was an opportunity to unburden her heart, as every young heart needs unburdening at times. She had no intimate friends—most of the working girls she knew shied away from her because, she correctly supposed, she looked foreign. Her skin was dark, her eyes darker, her hair virtually black. She had a habit, born of shyness, of drooping her exceedingly long eye lashes so as to avoid anybody's direct gaze. This made her appear a little cold and sullen at times, she who really knew no anger, no fear. It made people leave her alone. It drove her, in loneliness, to writing intimate things in her little book.

"What I did Tuesday night does not weigh on my conscience," she was writing now, 48 hours later. "I so sadly wanted something, and needed it, so I took the initiative myself. Can that be wrong? I do not wish to hurt anyone. I realize that I acted quite boldly, but it was the only way, then. Today I wonder if I did right."

She put down her fountain pen, there in the tiny room where she slept, miles from the Merrifield estate. Hers was a miserable room, really, made all the more squalid by comparison with the luxury at The Oaks. She hoped to move after one or two paydays.

She looked at the book, not seeing it. Her mind was out in Montrose Manor, seething tonight because of minor events that she had observed during the day.

All at once she dropped her head on the table, over the little book, and cried broken heartedly like the unhappy person she was.

Social reopening of The Oaks in Montrose Manor, historic home of Benjamin W. Merrifield, remained as the number one news story of that week, locally.

It outshone a murder or two, a change in city administration, a minor riot over distribution of relief groceries, and a fire that destroyed a large warehouse and a factory. The legend of the wealthy Merrifields was suddenly revived in all walks of society—but most "put out" of all were the other rich folk of this city who had heard about the Merrifield party and had not been asked to come.

It was most distressing, if you haunted the golf courses, the polo fields, or the swankier clubs. The town's socialites for once told the plain truth—admitted they had been snubbed, and wondered why. Only middle-class youth had been invited to Jeremy Tucker's party, when old man Merrifield's prestige might have commanded the most "ultra" in everything. A lot of youths had grown up here in affluence and had never even seen inside the Merrifield home. Why in the devil were they ostracized now?

A few men, driven by home pressure, ventured to open the topic to Mr. Merrifield himself during this week. They did it as tactfully as they could, when they met him downtown, but they did not fool shrewd old man Benjamin. He observed the trend of things and he chuckled delightedly. A rank democrat himself, he loved to twit those who were inherent snobs. That Gayle and Bill had chosen their own crowd—wholesome boys and girls who worked or at least knew something of responsibility in life—was the most satisfying thing Mr. Merrifield found about the party. He had a grand week just thinking of it. And—the newspaper society editors (although quite unknown to nim personally) similarly enjoyed the whole thing.

"It's precious!" quoth Cholly Farrington in The Chronicle-Post, the city's most-read columnist. "Just too, too precious. High hat society, high-hatted! Whoever could do it but the old gent with the copper millions? He, boys and gals, doesn't give a damn—and it's a swell attitude if you can get by with it. He can.

"The party for young grandson was a Grade A success, even without the cream. The Jeremy person not only will inherit practically everything west of the Mississippi, he is a pretty good egg as well, people say. And an interesting point there—seven delicate, delicious, delightful and dainty damsels recently have moved into the mansion practically under Brother Jeremy's nose. If that strings some of the rest of we girls—ha! They're to be in a stage play next Monday night, aptly called 'Maid to Measure.' Run, don't walk, to the nearest ticket office, but you'll learn that it's already a sellout. Seems a fellow named Bailey—yeah, the Bill Bailey of halfback fame—is impressario. He's quite a stage boy, too. And a girl named Gayle, gay Gayle. Golly, Mr. Merrifield, you do collect the oddest things!"

Truth lurked in that gossipy column. Farrington's chit-chat was seldom malicious, but it often accomplished a lot by subtlety and inuendo. Because of its sheer entertainment value practically every one of The Chronicle-Post's 800,000 subscribers read it every day. And $800,000 is a lot of people.

Poor Mr. Weems, the aged secretary, tried so hard to be broad-minded about it all. Whenever he felt himself slipping, felt himself becoming impatient with the doings of a new youth, he went into a conference with Mr. Merrifield for new strength. Whatever Mr. Merrifield liked, Mr. Weems liked. And Mr. Merrifield went about The Oaks now with an eternal chuckling. Of mornings he went downtown, sat some in bankers' offices, or in a bond house, but he talked business far less than he talked about dances and singing and amateur plays.

On Friday morning he came back from town and the first thing he heard when he entered his home was piano music. He went at once to the music room and peered in to see Jeremy and Gayle sitting at the piano bench.

"Don't peep, Jeremy—sing!" Gayle counseled. "Open up your lips and let the music out. There's nothing to be afraid of. Your voice is a natural baritone. Come on, roar!"

They never even saw Mr. Merrifield, and he went away without disturbing them. But he told Graham to go at once for Mr. Weems, and the secretary came to him promptly.

"Mr. Weems, what am I paying that Miss Dixon, sir? Whatever it is, pay her more. You hear me?"

"Oh, of course, sir. But—she is getting no salary at all. You see, you—you told her and Mr. Bailey that—"

"Preposterous, Mr. Weems! What are you saying?"

"It was your idea, sir, but I thought at the time that it was most irregular. You remember—you promised them quite a substantial stipend in event they were successful at what you termed a personal project. But as to immediate remuneration, you specified nothing."

"Hmmm, I am an almighty fool, Mr. Weems."

"Oh, of course, sir. That is— Oh, I beg your—"

"Hush, Mr. Weems. And Mr. Weems—"

"Sir?"

"We buy a great many things for cash. Do you think happiness can be purchased C. O. D.?"

"Happiness, sir? . . . Happiness?" Mr. Weems looked confused.

"Certainly it can, Mr. Weems! Certainly!" The other old man was barking testily. "Not for oneself, but for other people, Mr. Weems. You can buy it unselfishly, for people who deserve it. Now can't you, eh?"

"Oh, of course, sir."

Bonds Are Better

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—Lively but selective demand developed today in a bond market virtually stripped of the war hysteria with which recent sessions have been tinged.

Buyers were especially attracted to the more speculative rated loans by news of French success on several fronts. U. S. governments closed with losses of as much as ½ point in the majority.

Turnover slackened to $8,574,150, face value.

Position of Treasury

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—The position of the treasury May 20: Receipts $17,775,541.00; expenditures $37,198,903.56; net balance $2,048,638,345.80; working balance included $1,322,984,546.37; customs receipts for month $17,187,811.60; receipts for fiscal year (July 1) $5,059,851,796.62; expenditures $8,401,266,199.97; excess of expenditures $3,341,414,403.35; gross debt $342,771,689,094.41; increase over previous day $1,309,747.31; gold assets $19,048,473,148.80.

Fort Jefferson, off the coast of Florida, cost the United States government $14,000,000 to build, and was intended as a United States Gibraltar. It never was equipped, however, or garrisoned and has not one gun, soldier or flag.

YESTERDAY: With plenty of good publicity, tickets for the amateur play at the Merrifield home are going fast.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

LOLA MONTESA, born in Las Cruces, New Mexico, and reared on the Rio Grande, had come to this eastern city just five years ago. Part of that five had been spent in college, the remainder in the more stark business of trying to keep from starving.

She had succeeded to a degree because of her beauty. With that, she might have cashed in promptly, in a half dozen different ways. One employment agency executive had left his desk and pressed an immediate "business proposition" on her when she applied there, so that she had been forced to strike him with her fists and run away from him. Then, when it was all over, she wondered if she had acted hastily.

She did not fully understand the ways of "thee Yankees," who were bustling and aggressive about everything, especially everything in business. Down on the Mexican border, life moved at a slower tempo. But here in the big northern city was something appealing, too; she wanted to stick it out. The peculiar "employment" in the Merrifield mansion had come as both a surprise and a godsend.

Lola, lonely in spite of her exotic beauty, was one who wrote things in a little book called "Thoughts, Day by Day."

This diary appealed to her because she could put into written words things that she could not speak. It was an opportunity to unburden her heart, as every young heart needs unburdening at times. She had no intimate friends—most of the working girls she knew shied away from her because, she correctly supposed, she looked foreign. Her skin was dark, her eyes darker, her hair virtually black. She had a habit, born of shyness, of drooping her exceedingly long eye lashes so as to avoid anybody's direct gaze. This made her appear a little cold and sullen at times, she who really knew no anger, no fear. It made people leave her alone. It drove her, in loneliness, to writing intimate things in her little book.

"What I did Tuesday night does not weigh on my conscience," she was writing now, 48 hours later. "I so sadly wanted something, and needed it, so I took the initiative myself. Can that be wrong? I do not wish to hurt anyone. I realize that I acted quite boldly, but it was the only way, then. Today I wonder if I did right."

She put down her fountain pen, there in the tiny room where she slept, miles from the Merrifield estate. Hers was a miserable room, really, made all the more squalid by comparison with the luxury at The Oaks. She hoped to move after one or two paydays.

She looked at the book, not seeing it. Her mind was out in Montrose Manor, seething tonight because of minor events that she had observed during the day.

All at once she dropped her head on the table, over the little book, and cried broken heartedly like the unhappy person she was.

Social reopening of The Oaks in Montrose Manor, historic home of Benjamin W. Merrifield, remained as the number one news story of that week, locally.

It outshone a murder or two, a change in city administration, a minor riot over distribution of relief groceries, and a fire that destroyed a large warehouse and a factory. The legend of the wealthy Merrifields was suddenly revived in all walks of society—but most "put out" of all were the other rich folk of this city who had heard about the Merrifield party and had not been asked to come.

It was most distressing, if you haunted the golf courses, the polo fields, or the swankier clubs. The town's socialites for once told the plain truth—admitted they had been snubbed, and wondered why. Only middle-class youth had been invited to Jeremy Tucker's party, when old man Merrifield's prestige might have commanded the most "ultra" in everything. A lot of youths had grown up here in affluence and had never even seen inside the Merrifield home. Why in the devil were they ostracized now?

A few men, driven by home pressure, ventured to open the topic to Mr. Merrifield himself during this week. They did it as tactfully as they could, when they met him downtown, but they did not fool shrewd old man Benjamin. He observed the trend of things and he chuckled delightedly. A rank democrat himself, he loved to twit those who were inherent snobs. That Gayle and Bill had chosen their own crowd—wholesome boys and girls who worked or at least knew something of responsibility in life—was the most satisfying thing Mr. Merrifield found about the party. He had a grand week just thinking of it. And—the newspaper society editors (although quite unknown to him personally) similarly enjoyed the whole thing.

"It's precious!" quoth Cholly Farrington in The Chronicle-Post, the city's most-read columnist. "Just too, too precious. High hat society, high-hatted! Whoever could do it but the old gent with the copper millions? He, boys and gals, doesn't give a damn—and it's a swell attitude if you can get by with it. He can.

"The party for young grandson was a Grade A success, even without the cream. The Jeremy person not only will inherit practically everything west of the Mississippi, he is a pretty good egg as well, people say. And an interesting point there—seven delicate, delicious, delightful and dainty damsels recently have moved into the mansion practically under Brother Jeremy's nose. If that strings some of the rest of we girls—ha! They're to be in a stage play next Monday night, aptly called 'Maid to Measure.' Run, don't walk, to the nearest ticket office, but you'll learn that it's already a sellout. Seems a fellow named Bailey—yeah, the Bill Bailey of halfback fame—is impressario. He's quite a stage boy, too. And a girl named Gayle, gay Gayle. Golly, Mr. Merrifield, you do collect the oddest things!"

Truth lurked in that gossipy column. Farrington's chit-chat was seldom malicious, but it often accomplished a lot by subtlety and inuendo. Because of its sheer entertainment value practically every one of The Chronicle-Post's 800,000 subscribers read it every day. And 800,000 is a lot of people.

Poor Mr. Weems, the aged secretary, tried so hard to be broad-minded about it all. Whenever he felt himself slipping, felt himself becoming impatient with the doings of a new youth, he went into a conference with Mr. Merrifield for new strength. Whatever Mr. Merrifield liked, Mr. Weems liked. And Mr. Merrifield went about The Oaks now with an eternal chuckling. Of mornings he went downtown, sat some in bankers' offices, or in a bond house, but he talked business far less than he talked about dances and singing and amateur plays.

On Friday morning he came back from town and the first thing he heard when he entered his home was piano music. He went at once to the music room and peered in to see Jeremy and Gayle sitting at the piano bench.

"Don't peep, Jeremy—sing!" Gayle counseled. "Open up your lips and let the music out. There's nothing to be afraid of. Your voice is a natural baritone. Come on, roar!"

They never even saw Mr. Merrifield, and he went away without disturbing them. But he told Graham to go at once for Mr. Weems, and the secretary came to him promptly.

"Mr. Weems, what am I paying that Miss Dixon, sir? Whatever it is, pay her more. You hear me?"

"Oh, of course, sir. But—she is getting no salary at all. You see, you—you told her and Mr. Bailey that—"

"Preposterous, Mr. Weems! What are you saying?"

"It was your idea, sir, but I thought at the time that it was most irregular. You remember—you promised them quite a substantial stipend in event they were successful at what you termed a personal project. But as to immediate remuneration, you specified nothing."

"Hmmm, I am an almighty fool, Mr. Weems."

"Oh, of course, sir. That is— Oh, I beg your—"

"Hush, Mr. Weems. And Mr. Weems—"

"Sir?"

"We buy a great many things for cash. Do you think happiness can be purchased C. O. D.?"

"Happiness, sir? . . . Happiness?" Mr. Weems looked confused.

"Certainly it can, Mr. Weems! Certainly!" The other old man was barking testily. "Not for oneself, but for other people, Mr. Weems. You can buy it unselfishly, for people who deserve it. Now can't you, eh?"

"Oh, of course, sir."

Aircrafts Lead Cautious Comeback As Market Halts Plunging Decline

Advances Run As Much As Four Points; Turnover is 2,132,630 Shares

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—The stock market called a halt today to the plunging decline which has trimmed quoted values of many equities twenty-five percent.

Aircrafts led a cautious comeback in which partiality was shown for issues standing to benefit from plans to strengthen the American Army and Navy. The climb was cautious and not all sections, even of the leaders, benefitted from Wall street's reappraisals of war news. Turnover was 2,132,630 shares.

From the opening gong there was nibbling at rearmament stocks included selected steels and specialties. Few held to tops made in early afternoon, when some advances ran as much as four points. Many of the steels finally ended a little lower.

Aircrafts such as Douglas, Sperry, United Aircraft and Glenn Martin were favorites. Along with them were Allied Chemical, Youngstown Sheet, American Can, and Eastman. Bethlehem Steel and du Pont, favorite "war babies," were lower, the latter by nearly three points.

In the curb Aluminum of America, American Cyanamid "B," American Potash, Humble Oil, and Insurance of North America, gained well, but were balanced by losses in Gulf Oil, Aluminum Ltd., National Oil, Quaker Oats and Singer. Curb turnover was 366,000 shares.

Chicago Grain Prices

Chicago, May 22 (AP)—Buyers returned cautiously to the wheat pit today in sufficient numbers to bid prices up more than two cents a bushel at one time although half of this advance was lost before the close.

Belated short-covering by dealers not wishing to deliver wheat on May contracts caused the price of this contract to rise to 85½, up 2⅜, just before the close. Deferred deliveries were up 2-2½ at one stage but closed ½-1¼ higher than yesterday. July 83¼-83. September 83¼-83.

May corn closed ⅝-1 cent higher at 64-64¼ while July and September were ⅛ off to ½ up at 62⅝-⅞ and 61⅝. Oats finished ⅛-⅜ lower, rye ⅝-¾ higher and lard 33-43 higher.

STARS OF "TOO MANY HUSBANDS"

Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas settle a slight feud with somewhat disastrous results in this scene from Columbia's "Too Many Husbands," Wesley Ruggles' hectic comedy now at the Maryland theater. The "slight feud" is founded upon a simple question: "Just whose wife is Jean Arthur, anyway?" And Miss Arthur, delighted with the idea of two husbands, refuses to tell. That's Harry Davenport, as her father, in the background. "Too Many Husbands" is based upon a W. Somerset Maugham stage success.

Murder Picture Coming To Embassy

Closing today at the Embassy theater will be the double feature attraction consisting of Bela Lugosi in the thrill-chill hit "The Human Monster," taken from the famous story by Edgar Wallace. The second feature stars Frank Morgan and Virginia Weidler in Metro Goldwyn Mayer's "Henry Goes Arizona." In addition to the two features the ninth chapter of the serial "Buck Rogers" will be shown.

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater will be the double hit with Renfrew of The Royal Mounted in "Murder on the Yukon" starring James Newill and an all star cast. The second feature is Barbara Stanwyck in "Stella Dallas." The seventh chapter of the serial "The Shadow," will also be shown.

Warner Comedy Is Booked at Liberty

"An Angel From Texas," with Eddie Albert, Rosemary Lane, Wayne Morris, Jane Wyman, Ronald Reagan, and Ruth Terry in the leading roles, a Warner Brothers' comedy, is coming to the New Liberty theater Friday.

It's the story of adventures—and misadventures—of Lydia Weston, a corn-fed cutie from Lone Star, Texas. Lydia, fresh from the triumphs in the Elks auditorium is bent on a great dramatic career in New York. Rasemary Lane plays this role, and opposite her is Eddie Albert and the rest of those "Brother Rats."

Broadway managers are singularly unimpressed by Lydia's high school histrionics, and she is forced to accept a secretarial job to Morris and Reagan, two shoe-string producers. When country boy Eddie Albert comes to the big city with $20,000 bulging in his jeans and fostering the fond hope that he will buy a hotel and settle down with Lydia, the producers pounce on him and sell him an interest in a play fairly reeking of moth balls.

Eddie willingly signs the check since the agreement stipulates that the starry-eyed Lydia will be leading lady. Unfortunately the plan hits a snag when the volatile leading lady, played by Ruth Terry, threatens to summon her boy friend "who gets outa Alcatraz in three weeks" and have him plant a bomb under the stage.

Comedy Picture Comes to Maryland

"Too Many Husbands" can prove somewhat troublesome, and Jean Arthur discovers that fact in the Columbia comedy, which opens today at the Maryland theater with Fred MacMurray and Melvin Douglas also starred. Based upon a W. Somerset Maugham stage success the production has been hailed as an hilariously witty melee of men, marriage and morals.

Briefly the story of "Too Many Husbands" is founded upon three logical items: Jean is married to reckless Fred, who is reported dead at sea. Jean marries the more stable Melvyn. Fred's best friend. Fred returns home.

And from those original propositions producer-director Wesley Ruggles said to have developed one of the most original screen comedies of this or any other season.

Fred's return home after a year spent on a desert island, is the first of a constant series of incidents. Both Jean and Melvyn stammer through their explanations, while Fred refuses to listen. He wants to be alone with his wife.

When the situation finally is explained to him, the two husbands sit down in a "man to man" conference to work out a solution, and wind up boyishly jumping over chairs to prove who is the "better man." Jean takes matters in hand and makes them worse.

Horror Film Heads Garden Twin Bill

Included in a line of iniquitous notables of such unexpected physical stamina and scientific fervor that the grave itself proved unequal to contain them, is the homicidal Dr. Xavier, who is now cavorting with sinister vigor through the mystery film, "The Return of Doctor X" which is on view at the Garden Theater.

Enacted by Humphrey Bogart, the famous doctor is again seen wielding his callous scalpel upon innocent and unwitting victims.

Edgar Kennedy plays a featured role with Constance Moore, Johnny Downs and others in Universal's musical film, "Laugh It Off," now at the Garden with Marjorie Rambeau, Cecil Cunningham, Hedda Hopper, Janet Beecher and Tom Dugan.

As the judge who loses his temper when a band of show girls make "too many personal appearances" in his court, Kennedy is said to have a most hilarious portrayal.

Enoch Light Comes To the Strand Today

Enoch Light and his famous orchestra comes to the Strand today, giving four shows, at 2, 4, 7 and 9:15 p. m. Light has just finished a record breaking engagement at the Taft hotel in New York City, where the internationally famous violinist and conductor was featured four times weekly for twenty months on the Columbia and Mutual net-works.

There are thirteen versatile artists in the band, and it is also filled with entertaining talent, including Peggy Mann, George Hines and Smith Howard. In addition, there is a trio of groups within the band, each individual in style—the "Light Brigade," top-ranking swing sextet; the "Dream Weavers," melodious quintet, and the "Ocarina Trio," novelty instrumentalists.

The screen attraction is "Framed" which reveals the dramatic details of the battle which law agencies and the press are waging against blackmail rings which extort millions of dollars from hapless victims each year. Featured roles are enacted by Frank Albertson as a young reporter who fights to capture the criminals and clear himself after being "framed". Constance Moore is the girl who comes to his aid. Robert Armstrong portrays the city editor who opposes the blackmail reign.

"Lillian Russell," thoroughly realistic picture, starts tomorrow at the Strand presenting the life and love of the famed actress who for thirty years thrilled theater-goers with her voice, masterful acting and her incredible beauty.

Featuring Alice Faye in the title role with Don Ameche are Henry Fonda and Edward Arnold as Diamond Jim Brady.

Lazarus will stage his new Fun and Sun Revue at the Strand tomorrow, Saturday and Monday evenings at 9 o'clock. Bathing suits, sun togs and evening gowns will be displayed by twenty models, with added entertainment and music.

Aircrafts Lead Cautious Comeback As Market Halts Plunging Decline

Advances Run As Much As Four Points; Turnover is 2,132,630 Shares

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—The stock market called a halt today to the plunging decline which has trimmed quoted values of many equities twenty-five percent.

Aircrafts led a cautious comeback in which partiality was shown for issues standing to benefit from plans to strengthen the American Army and Navy. The climb was cautious and not all sections, even of the leaders, benefitted from Wall street's reappraisals of war news. Turnover was 2,132,630 shares.

From the opening gong there was nibbling at rearmament stocks included selected steels and specialties. Few held to tops made in early afternoon, when some advances ran as much as four points. Many of the steels finally ended a little lower.

Aircrafts such as Douglas, Sperry, United Aircraft and Glenn Martin were favorites. Along with them were Allied Chemical, Youngstown Sheet, American Can, and Eastman. Bethlehem Steel and du Pont, favorite "war babies," were lower, the latter by nearly three points.

In the curb Aluminum of America, American Cyanamid "B," American Potash, Humble Oil, and Insurance of North America, gained well, but were balanced by losses in Gulf Oil, Aluminum Ltd., National Oil, Quaker Oats and Singer. Curb turnover was 366,000 shares.

STARS OF "TOO MANY HUSBANDS"

Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas settle a slight feud with somewhat disastrous results in this scene from Columbia's "Too Many Husbands," Wesley Ruggles' hectic comedy now at the Maryland theater. The "slight feud" is founded upon a simple question: "Just whose wife is Jean Arthur, anyway?" And Miss Arthur, delighted with the idea of two husbands, refuses to tell. That's Harry Davenport, as her father, in the background. "Too Many Husbands" is based upon a W. Somerset Maugham stage success.

Closing today at the Embassy theater will be the double feature attraction consisting of Bela Lugosi in the thrill-chill hit "The Human Monster," taken from the famous story by Edgar Wallace. The second feature stars Frank Morgan and Virginia Weidler in Metro Goldwyn Mayer's "Henry Goes Arizona." In addition to the two features the ninth chapter of the serial "Buck Rogers" will be shown.

Warner Comedy Is Booked at Liberty

"An Angel From Texas," with Eddie Albert, Rosemary Lane, Wayne Morris, Jane Wyman, Ronald Reagan, and Ruth Terry in the leading roles, a Warner Brothers' comedy, is coming to the New Liberty theater Friday.

It's the story of adventures—and misadventures—of Lydia Weston, a corn-fed cutie from Lone Star, Texas. Lydia, fresh from the triumphs in the Elks auditorium is bent on a great dramatic career in New York. Rasemary Lane plays this role, and opposite her is Eddie Albert and the rest of those "Brother Rats."

Broadway managers are singularly unimpressed by Lydia's high school histrionics, and she is forced to accept a secretarial job to Morris and Reagan, two shoe-string producers. When country boy Eddie Albert comes to the big city with $20,000 bulging in his jeans and fostering the fond hope that he will buy a hotel and settle down with Lydia, the producers pounce on him and sell him an interest in a play fairly reeking of moth balls.

Eddie willingly signs the check since the agreement stipulates that the starry-eyed Lydia will be leading lady. Unfortunately the plan hits a snag when the volatile leading lady, played by Ruth Terry, threatens to summon her boy friend "who gets outa Alcatraz in three weeks" and have him plant a bomb under the stage.

Comedy Picture Comes to Maryland

"Too Many Husbands" can prove somewhat troublesome, and Jean Arthur discovers that fact in the Columbia comedy, which opens today at the Maryland theater with Fred MacMurray and Melvin Douglas also starred. Based upon a W. Somerset Maugham stage success the production has been hailed as an hilariously witty melee of men, marriage and morals.

Briefly the story of "Too Many Husbands" is founded upon three logical items: Jean is married to reckless Fred, who is reported dead at sea. Jean marries the more stable Melvyn, Fred's best friend. Fred returns home.

And from those original propositions producer-director Wesley Ruggles said to have developed one of the most original screen comedies of this or any other season.

Fred's return home after a year spent on a desert island, is the first of a constant series of incidents. Both Jean and Melvyn stammer through their explanations, while Fred refuses to listen. He wants to be alone with his wife.

When the situation finally is explained to him, the two husbands sit down in a "man to man" conference to work out a solution, and wind up boyishly jumping over chairs to prove who is the "better man." Jean takes matters in hand and makes them worse.

Horror Film Heads Garden Twin Bill

Included in a line of iniquitous notables of such unexpected physical stamina and scientific fervor that the grave itself proved unequal to contain them, is the homicidal Dr. Xavier, who is now cavorting with sinister vigor through the mystery film, "The Return of Doctor X" which is on view at the Garden Theater.

Enacted by Humphrey Bogart, the famous doctor is again seen wielding his callous scalpel upon innocent and unwitting victims.

Edgar Kennedy plays a featured role with Constance Moore, Johnny Downs and others in Universal's musical film, "Laugh It Off," now at the Garden with Marjorie Rambeau, Cecil Cunningham, Hedda Hopper, Janet Beecher and Tom Dugan.

As the judge who loses his temper when a band of show girls make "too many personal appearances" in his court, Kennedy is said to have a most hilarious portrayal.

Enoch Light Comes To the Strand Today

Enoch Light and his famous orchestra comes to the Strand today, giving four shows, at 2, 4, 7 and 9:15 p. m. Light has just finished a record breaking engagement at the Taft hotel in New York City, where the internationally famous violinist and conductor was featured four times weekly for twenty months on the Columbia and Mutual net-works.

There are thirteen versatile artists in the band, and it is also filled with entertaining talent, including Peggy Mann, George Hines and Smith Howard. In addition, there is a trio of groups within the band, each individual in style—the "Light Brigade," top-ranking swing sextet; the "Dream Weavers," melodious quintet, and the "Ocarina Trio," novelty instrumentalists.

The screen attraction is "Framed" which reveals the dramatic details of the battle which law agencies and the press are waging against blackmail rings which extort millions of dollars from hapless victims each year. Featured roles are enacted by Frank Albertson as a young reporter who fights to capture the criminals and clear himself after being "framed". Constance Moore is the girl who comes to his aid. Robert Armstrong portrays the city editor who opposes the blackmail reign.

"Lillian Russell," thoroughly realistic picture, starts tomorrow at the Strand presenting the life and love of the famed actress who for thirty years thrilled theater-goers with her voice, masterful acting and her incredible beauty.

Featuring Alice Faye in the title role with Don Ameche are Henry Fonda and Edward Arnold as Diamond Jim Brady.

Lazarus will stage his new Fun and Sun Revue at the Strand tomorrow, Saturday and Monday evenings at 9 o'clock. Bathing suits, sun togs and evening gowns will be displayed by twenty models, with added entertainment and music.

Plan Followed In Educating Twins Revealed

Mother Writes of Unusual Method Saving Money for Education

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Here is a thrilling story from a mother, which I print with permission:

"Dear Dr. Myers:

"My husband and I are breathing easier since our twins have their degrees.

"The time to consider the finances for educating twins is the day they are born. A pair of boys came into our home one day and I decided they should have college courses if they wanted them. We laid thirty cents away that day toward the expense. It just happened they were all the pennies the family purse held.

"One day my husband came home from work and I told him I had bought a building lot. He became interested and spent all his spare time putting up a house. After renting the house a while we sold it and used the money to get my husband a college degree, so he could earn more to educate the children.

"Before he finished he borrowed the boys' college fund to stretch his resources. This was paid back later at six per cent interest. As far as I know, they are the only sons who ever helped to finance their father's education.

Boys Sold Papers

"When the boys began to deliver newspapers, I persuaded them to save their money so that when they got big they could have a nice automobile, a big house or a business. I did not mention college because no boy of ten is interested in a college degree. But that is what I had in mind, in case they had to go to college to prepare themselves for the life work they would some day choose.

"We had to come up for air, however, when they informed us that one intended to study medicine, the other dentistry. Apparently they had not expected to be told it couldn't be done. The decision was all that concerned them.

"We financed it by dividing the responsibility: father paid for meals mother paid room rent and bought the clothing, the boys paid fees, tuition, and personal expenses from their savings.

"When they finished none of us had borrowed any money, and there was no debt to burden us.

"My husband did not have a large income, but I feel that we were ideally situated financially to make the boys do their best. They were putting into their education all they had saved over a period of years, and we were doing the same.

Privilege to Help

"I do not like the expression, 'After all I have sacrificed', in regard to children. I tell my boys it was a privilege to have helped them reach their aim in life. Both boys are doing well and are happy in their work. And we, the parents, are thankful, so thankful . . . It isn't so much what the family income is as what they do with it.

"When our boys wanted a car they had to buy it out of their own savings. I feel that no boy should own a car until he has earned the money to pay for it. It is a good experience for him. I think I should have the degree of D. S.—dollar stretcher."

I hereby grant her this degree.

Anyone who whishes to receive a list of books about college, planning for college, choosing a college, life at college and succeeding at college, should write me, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Three Men Shot in Chicago Milk Strike

CHICAGO, May 22 (AP)—Three men were shot and eighteen others were arrested along Chicago's milk strike front today while union officials and dairy farmers drafted plans to supply homes with milk.

Leslie G. Goudie, head of the teamsters joint council, said the unionists would buy milk from formers, transport it to independent dairies for pasteurization and distribute it to their regular customers.

The major dealers, arrayed against the milk wagon drivers union, would be ignored.

It was estimated that at least two thirds of the normal volume of milk consumed in the Metropolitan area had been cut off since the controversy began Sunday morning.

Differences over pay formed the crux of the dispute.

'Boiler Kid' and Bride Prepare To Greet the Stork

CHICAGO, May 22 (AP) — Fred Jr., famed infantile paralysis victim who has lived in respirators for four years, and his wife expects a child next September.

The "Boiler kid" made the announcement himself in a mimeographed paper received by several hundred friends today. The last item on the fourth and last page of the latest edition of his publication, "Back Talk," set forth simply:

"The long-legged bird is expected by Tessie and Frederick in September.

"And so you see God continues to shower us with all his choicest blessings, for which we are ever grateful."

"Tessie" is the former Teressa Larkin of Dayton, O. She and young Snite—he's 29 and she's 25—were married at the home of his father, head of a loan bank, Aug. 10, 1939. During the ceremony he lay full length in a huge respirator—a breathing apparatus known to many as an "iron lung" and to Snite as a "Boiler."

Smiling Snite has spent most of his time in one since he was stricken April 1, 1936, in Peiping, China. He improved subsequently. In 1938 he could breath without artificial aid, although laboriously, for a half hour. He found he could remain out of his "boiler" for several hours at a time, too, in a 9½-pound respirator that covered his chest and looked like a medieval breast plate.

Snite and his wife will remain in Miami Beach, Fla., until July.

Teaching of the so-called "dead languages," Latin and Greek, has no practical value to students of today, say some critics. Today's contestants in spelling bees seem to justify instruction in these languages, however, because it is said many contestants have no idea how to spell a word because they are unable to associate it with the Latin or Greek word from which it is derived.

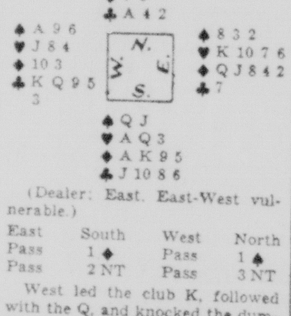
"The Authority on Authorities"

WATCH FOR THE COUNT

HOLDING the top card in the dummy's long suit, your desire is to play it at just the right time, not too soon and not too late, especially if the dummy is void of other entries. If you come in too soon with the big card, the declarer will be able to get over there again and run the rest of the suit. If you wait too long, you let him pick up an extra trick which you could prevent. At a time like this, watch your partner's cards carefully. If he gives you his count, you know how many the declarer has.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

West led the club K, followed with the Q, and knocked the dummy's A out with the third round. The declarer at once tried the heart finesse, which worked, then led the spade J. West ducked this, and also let the Q win. With four tricks in, South collected his heart A, diamond A and K and two good clubs, making his contract.

The culprit was West. When the first spade was led, he should have watched his partner's card carefully. In such a spot, the partner of the man who probably holds the top card should signal the exact size of his holding. It has become conventional with veteran campaigners that if he has exactly three, he plays his lowest first, then his next higher one. With any other number, such as two or four, he gives a high-low.

In this particular situation, West could have seen only one of his partner's cards before he had to make his decision, but that card was the deuce. Since that was bound to be East's lowest, West should have counted him for exactly three, therefore the declarer for only two. In consequence he should have taken the second spade trick. So doing, he would have held the declarer to eight tricks and defeated the contract.

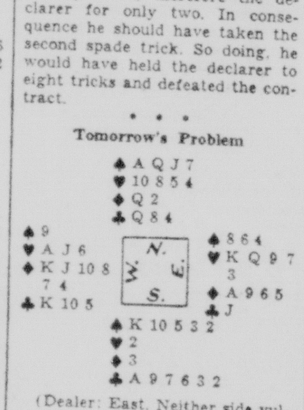
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

After ruffing the second heart, how should South play for 4-Spades on this deal?

Legion Completes Plans for Biggest Rally of the Year

Voters Nominate Gilbert Cooling For Commissioner

School Principal Candidate at Barton; Gallagher Renominated

BARTON, May 22 — At a citizen's meeting last night in the council chamber, two candidates were nominated for commissioners, to be elected June 3 at the anual town election. The meeting attracted a fair number of voters.

The two named for the positions were Gilbert C. Cooling, principal of Barton high school, and Patrick Gallagher, local business man. The latter is completing his second term of two years as commissioner while Mr. Cooling is a newcomer.

Ralph Wilson, the other commissioner whose term expires this year, declined to run, although many of his friends had urged him to do so.

Voters of the town not wishing to vote for either of the two commissioners have the privilege of "writing-in" the names of other candidates

The two hold-over commissioners are Maurice Lamberson and William C. Chappell. They will serve for another year or until June 30, 1941, when a mayor and two commissioners will be elected Successful candidates in next month's election will take office July 9, at which time a baliff and a town clerk will be appointed.

Miss Elizabeth Yates was elected president of the Epworth League society of Barton Methodist church at a "fellowship" supper held last night in the church building. She succeeds Miss Alice Ayers. Sixteen members attended the supper and participated in the election.

Other officers include Miss Shirley Michael, first vice-president; Miss Mildred Neat, second vice-president; Miss Doris Merriman, third vice-president, and Miss Geneva Hyde, fourth vice-president. Cecil Metz was elected temporary secretary and treasurer.

Picnic Areas Open In West Virginia

Many Sylvan Spots Available in Monongahela National Forest

PARSONS, W. Va., May 22—Every picnic lover will be glad to know that picnicking facilities in the Cheat district of the Monongahela National Forest are now open and ready for use. This announcement was made by Ranger R. L. Rowland, of Parsons.

Larger picnicking groups are invited to use and enjoy the Stuart recreation area, seven miles east of Elkinson Route No. 5, and the Horseshoe recreation area, eleven miles from Parsons, on the Leadmine road. Persons crossing Shavers mountain on Route 5 will be able to stop and enjoy the Alpena Gap picnic area. For those wishing more seclusion and a lofty view of the panorama of West Virginia, a visit to the Bickle Knob picnic area, and the Bickle Knob Fire tower are advisable. These latter two camps have been open since May 1.

The camp areas are being opened earlier because of the public demand for their use. Because of restricted Forest Service funds, camp life guards and other caretakers will be on duty only from June 10 until the day after Labor Day. Swimming will not be allowed until June 15. All picnickers are urged to take the best of care of all camp and picnic sites, because this may be a deciding factor in whether or not the grounds will be kept open after Labor Day.

Later in the season, when outdoor recreation is in full swing, a new area will be opened at Bear Heaven on Stuart Memorial Drive. This is located midway between the Bickle Knob and Alpena Gap areas.

Ready-cut fire wood will not be provided by CCC enrollees as in the past, and campers who wish to build fires will have to provide themselves with an ax to cut their own wood, which will be close at hand.

With trees about fully leaved and grass and woods springing up, the end of the spring fire season is near, Ranger Rowland announced. This will release look-outs, dispatchers and smokechasers, employed by the Forest Service, for duties other than those of fire prevention and fire control

Dresses from 1850 to Present Shown In Style Parade at Midland Meeting

MIDLAND, May 22—The Parent-Teacher Association of Midland junior high school held its regular meeting Monday evening in the school auditorium. Forty-two members witnessed the presentation of a novel program.

A kitchen band, composed of some of the members, drew harmony from utensils usually used for cooking.

The program also included a reading by Mrs. M. R. Llewllyn, "Arty Jones Makes His Debut"; a novelty number by Mrs. Robert Miller and Mrs. Merle Long; vocal solo, "Down Old Plantation Way," by Mrs. Margaret Lancaster; and a recitation, "Towser Must Be Tied Tonight," by Mrs. Robert Clarke.

The feature of the evening was a style show of dresses from 1850 to the present time. Three Contests In W. Va. Vote

Loser by One Vote among State Senate Candidates Asking Recount

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—Three contests of the May 14 primary vote for State Senate nominations became a virtual certainty today, with the two Democratic candidates in the Fifth district both making applications for recount.

State Senator C. Frank Millinder of Wayne, trailed C. H. McKown, also of Wayne, by fifty votes, the official tabulation of Cabell county's 104 precincts showed today.

McKown's vote was 10,167, to 10,117 for Millender. Millender filed application for a recount in Wayne county, which gave McKown a 1,481 majority, charging there had been "many irregularities" in the vote there.

McKown asked a recount in Cabell county, which gave Millender 1,431 majority.

George R. Springer, of Sistersville, announced he would file a contest of the nomination of his fellow townsman, A. Emerson Doak, who on the official canvass won the Republican nomination in the Second district by a single vote.

Oliver W. Singleton, of Logan, who apparently lost the Democratic nomination for the long term in the Seventh district to State Senator John J. Pelter, of Logan, will start a recount of Logan county votes Monday.

Virtually complete returns from the Second Congressional district showed the apparent election of Ralph M. Hiner, of Franklin and Dale Crawford, of Elkins, as Democratic delegates. Republican delegates, on the basis of the same returns were Richard Earle Davis and Kermit R. Mason, both of Morgantown.

Car Theft Charged

Angelow Cooper, 22, Clarksburg, who was charged with stealing a 1935 Plymouth sedan on May 17, 1940 on the streets of Clarksburg, was arrested Monday by V. C. Ware, local state police officer on the Mouth of Seneca road and brought to the Petersburg jail where he confessed to setting fire to the car on Mauel Hill on a CCC road near Jordan Run Sunday after it was wrecked.

Clarksburg authorities came yesterday and took Cooper to Clarksburg where he will be arraigned for stealing the car. The license number was the only clue that assisted in determining who the car belonged to Sunday night, however, Cooper was reported to have been driving the car in that section and to have purchased a penny box of matches at the store of H. E. Rohrbaugh about one hour before the car was burning a short distance below the store.

West Virginians Boiling Hot Over Communist Party Politics

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 22.—A dozen letters bearing the protests of nearly half a hundred persons whose names were on a petition to place the Communist party ticket on the November ballot were received today by Secretary of State William S. O'Brien.

The letters will be acknowledged and handed to Attorney General Clarence W. Meadows, who disclosed that county-by-county lists of the 8,646 names from the petition will be sent to prosecuting attorners this week.

From these lists the prosecutors can determine whether any signers voted in the May 14 primary. Those who did are subject to prosecution under the West Virginia election laws.

The American Legion, also conducting a campaign to disqualify the petition, is preparing such lists for distribution to various posts for checking. The executive committee of John Barwley Post, Charleston, yesterday urged Governor Holt to have county lists prepared for publication in newspapers throughout the state.

The Legion contended that many signatures were obtained through misrepresentation.

Herman J. Heiser, of Wheeling, wrote that he had never signed the petition, although his name was listed in a newspaper article.

Nineteen residents of National, a mining community between Morgantown and Fairmont, asserted the petition was presented to them as one "to keep out of war."

Prosecutor Carl B. Vickers of Fayette county, wrote that nine residents of Pax, a mining community, told him they wanted their names stricken.

Willie Woody, of East Gulf, Raleigh county, who described himself as president of the Young Colored American Political Association of West Virginia, enclosed a copy of a letter he sent to Rep. Martin Dies (D-Tex), chairman of the House committee investigating un-American activities.

Woody said in the letter to Dies that signatures were sought in Raleigh county by Oscar O. Wheeler, of Beckley, listed as the Communist candidate for governor. Woody offered to "seek and give all information" he could on Communist activities in the county.

People 'Glad' To Sign, Says Communist Leader

BECKLEY, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—Bewhiskered Oscar O. Wheeler, who is running his campaign as Communist candidate for governor from a little goat farm in the mountains, maintained today the signers of his ballot petition were "glad" to do it.

The 54-year-old mountaineer, around whose tiny home thrives a flock of thirteen milk goats, denied there had been any misrepresentation while he was collecting names to have his party placed on the West Virginia ballot in November.

The American Legion, seeking to bar the Communist ticket, has charged many signatures were obtained improperly. Several affidavits have been filed with the Secretary of State saying the persons signed the petition thinking it advocated a third term for the president. A dozen letters asking that names be removed were received by the secretary today.

Wheeler told newspapermen that he and a "helper" obtained 3,000 of the 8,646 names which appeared on the petition filed with Secretary of State William S. O'Brien. He said he was paid so much per name, but did not specify the amount.

"They (the signers) were glad to sign," he asserted. "This here is what the money men are fighting."

The Communist candidate proclaimed himself as a long-time friend of Earl Browder, saying he met the Communist party presidential aspirant at Leavenworth federal prison, where both were sentenced as conscientious objectors in the World War.

Wheeler displayed copies of the petition with its purpose printed at the top and also showed mimeographed instruction sheets which directed that each person must sign his own name and stressed the right of a minority to representation on the ballot.

The objective was 10,000 signatures, Wheeler explained.

His 12-year-old daughter, Dorothy, reads much of the literature received from headquarters and takes notes for him while he is in the field, Wheeler said.

Wheeler's wife, Leona, a candidate for presidential elector on the Communist ticket, is in a New York hospital.

Dr. Grove Gives Clinic Report At Moorefield

384 Persons Examined Lions Informed in Report

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., May 22—Dr. J. B. Grove, clinician for the Tri-County Venereal Clinic at Petersburg, gave an account of his stewardship of the clinic during the past sixteen months at the regular meeting of the Moorefield Lions club Monday night. Dr. Grove stated that 348 persons from Hardy, Grant and Pendleton had been tested during the period, with eleven per cent of the total showing infection.

The primary work of the clinic, which is sponsored by the Department of Public Assistance, is with the indigent and needy, although anyone in the tri-county area may come in for advice and examination. Those who are able to pay for treatment are referred to their physician.

Dr. Grove cited the growth of the clinic which started in February, 1939, as having nine patients during that month as compared with sixty-one in April this year. In February, 1939, eighty-eight persons visited the clinic for advice, examination or treatment as compared with 311 during April, 1940.

"The clinic has two goals," said Dr. Grove, "first to render the infected non-infectious, which is relatively easy to do, and second, to bring about a cure, which is considerably harder to accomplish." Dr. Grove praised the splendid cooperation of the civic organizations in aiding his work.

Eugene C. Surber, aequa-biologist with the Bureau of Fisheries, of the Department of Commerce, also addressed the club and reported the progress of the new South Branch Valley bass hatchery, now under construction at Old Fields. Mr Surber explained that the severe winter slowed down the work, especially when the ground was frozen for nearly ten weeks. The excavation will be finished this week and the work is more than half completed.

He also reported on the research the Bureau of Fisheries made on the South Branch river. A count of bass nests between the Buzzard's Ford bridge and the Old Fields bridge revealed an average of seventy bass nests per mile. Surber explained that only nests with eggs were considered in the check.

Surber gave some interesting facts on the feeding habits of small mouth bass in the South Branch river and said that it took nearly 600 pounds of fish, as food, to produce 100 pounds of bass. He clarified this by explaining that it took approximately 12,000 minnows to grow 100 bass weighing from a pound to a pound and a half.

"It takes from four to ten years for a small mouth bass to grow to the legal size of ten inches in this river," Mr. Surber said, and added that this was much longer than in other comparable streams.

Ralph J. Bean, president of the club, announced the annual election of officers will be held June 17, and that the nominating committee will report June 3.

James Breathed, president of the Petersburg Kiwanis club, was a guest at the meeting and requested a committee to work with his club in the formation of a South Branch Valley Association to be sponsored by the Romney, Franklin and Morefield Lions clubs and the Petersburg Kiwanis club. Dr. R. W. Love and Arno Friddle were other guests at the meeting, which was held in the new quarters at the Hotel McNeill.

Picnic Areas Open In West Virginia

Many Sylvan Spots Available in Monongahela National Forest

PARSONS, W. Va., May 22—Every picnic lover will be glad to know that picnicking facilities in the Cheat district of the Monongahela National Forest are now open and ready for use. This announcement was made by Ranger R. L. Rowland, of Parsons.

Larger picnicking groups are invited to use and enjoy the Stuart recreation area, seven miles east of Elkinson Route No. 5, and the Horseshoe recreation area, eleven miles from Parsons, on the Leadmine road. Persons crossing Shavers mountain on Route 5 will be able to stop and enjoy the Alpena Gap picnic area. For those wishing more seclusion and a lofty view of the panorama of West Virginia, a visit to the Bickle Knob picnic area, and the Bickle Knob Fire tower are advisable. These latter two camps have been open since May 1.

The camp areas are being opened earlier because of the public demand for their use. Because of restricted Forest Service funds, camp life guards and other caretakers will be on duty only from June 10 until the day after Labor Day. Swimming will not be allowed until June 15. All picnickers are urged to take the best of care of all camp and picnic sites, because this may be a deciding factor in whether or not the grounds will be kept open after Labor Day.

Later in the season, when outdoor recreation is in full swing, a new area will be opened at Bear Heaven on Stuart Memorial Drive. This is located midway between the Bickle Knob and Alpena Gap areas.

Ready-cut fire wood will not be provided by CCC enrollees as in the past, and campers who wish to build fires will have to provide themselves with an ax to cut their own wood, which will be close at hand.

With trees about fully leaved and grass and woods springing up, the end of the spring fire season is near, Ranger Rowland announced. He will release look-outs, dispatchers and smokechasers, employed by the Forest Service, for work other than those of fire prevention and fire control.

Three Contests In W. Va. Vote

Loser by One Vote among State Senate Candidates Asking Recount

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—Three contests of the May 14 primary vote for State Senate nominations became a virtual certainty today, with the two Democratic candidates in the Fifth district both making applications for recount.

State Senator C. Frank Millinder of Wayne, trailed C. H. McKown, also of Wayne, by fifty votes, the official tabulation of Cabell county's 104 precincts showed today.

McKown's vote was 10,167, to 10,117 for Millender. Millender filed application for a recount in Wayne county, which gave McKown a 1,481 majority, charging there had been "many irregularities" in the vote there.

McKown asked a recount in Cabell county, which gave Millender 1,431 majority.

George R. Springer, of Sistersville, announced he would file a contest of the nomination of his fellow townsman, A. Emerson Doak, who on the official canvass won the Republican nomination in the Second district by a single vote.

Oliver W. Singleton, of Logan, who apparently lost the Democratic nomination for the long term in the Seventh district to State Senator John J. Pelter, of Logan, will start a recount of Logan county votes Monday.

Virtually complete returns from the Second Congressional district showed the apparent election of Ralph M. Hiner, of Franklin and Dale Crawford, of Elkins, as Democratic delegates. Republican delegates, on the basis of the same returns were Richard Earle Davis and Kermit R. Mason, both of Morgantown.

Ware, local state police officer on the Mouth of Seneca road and brought to the Petersburg jail where he confessed to setting fire to the car on Mauel Hill on a CCC road near Jordan Run Sunday after it was wrecked.

Clarksburg authorities came yesterday and took Cooper to Clarksburg where he will be arraigned for stealing the car. The license number was the only clue that assisted in determining who the car belonged to Sunday night, however, Cooper was reported to have been driving the car in that section and to have purchased a penny box of matches at the store of H. E. Rohrbaugh about one hour before the car was burning a short distance below the store.

West Virginians Boiling Hot Over Communist Party Politics

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 22.—A dozen letters bearing the protests of nearly half a hundred persons whose names were on a petition to place the Communist party ticket on the November ballot were received today by Secretary of State William S. O'Brien.

The letters will be acknowledged and handed to Attorney General Clarence W. Meadows, who disclosed that county-by-county lists of the 8,646 names from the petition will be sent to prosecuting attorners this week.

From these lists the prosecutors can determine whether any signers voted in the May 14 primary. Those who did are subject to prosecution under the West Virginia election laws.

The American Legion, also conducting a campaign to disqualify the petition, is preparing such lists for distribution to various posts for checking. The executive committee of John Barwley Post, Charleston, yesterday urged Governor Holt to have county lists prepared for publication in newspapers throughout the state.

The Legion contended that many signatures were obtained through misrepresentation.

Herman J. Heiser, of Wheeling, wrote that he had never signed the petition, although his name was listed in a newspaper article.

Nineteen residents of National, a mining community between Morgantown and Fairmont, asserted the petition was presented to them as one "to keep out of war."

Prosecutor Carl B. Vickers of Fayette county, wrote that nine residents of Pax, a mining community, told him they wanted their names stricken.

Willie Woody, of East Gulf, Raleigh county, who described himself as president of the Young Colored American Political Association of West Virginia, enclosed a copy of a letter he sent to Rep. Martin Dies (D-Tex), chairman of the House committee investigating un-American activities.

Woody said in the letter to Dies that signatures were sought in Raleigh county by Oscar O. Wheeler, of Beckley, listed as the Communist candidate for governor. Woody offered to "seek and give all information" he could on Communist activities in the county.

People 'Glad' To Sign, Says Communist Leader

BECKLEY, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—Bewhiskered Oscar O. Wheeler, who is running his campaign as Communist candidate for governor from a little goat farm in the mountains, maintained today the signers of his ballot petition were "glad" to do it.

The 54-year-old mountaineer, around whose tiny home thrives a flock of thirteen milk goats, denied there had been any misrepresentation while he was collecting names to have his party placed on the West Virginia ballot in November.

The American Legion, seeking to bar the Communist ticket, has charged many signatures were obtained improperly. Several affidavits have been filed with the Secretary of State saying the persons signed the petition thinking it advocated a third term for the president. A dozen letters asking that names be removed were received by the secretary today.

Wheeler told newspapermen that he and a "helper" obtained 3,000 of the 8,646 names which appeared on the petition filed with Secretary of State William S. O'Brien. He said he was paid so much per name, but did not specify the amount.

"They (the signers) were glad to sign," he asserted. "This here is what the money men are fighting."

The Communist candidate proclaimed himself as a long-time friend of Earl Browder, saying he met the Communist party presidential aspirant at Leavenworth federal prison, where both were sentenced as conscientious objectors in the World War.

Wheeler displayed copies of the petition with its purpose printed at the top and also showed mimeographed instruction sheets which directed that each person must sign his own name and stressed the right of a minority to representation on the ballot.

The objective was 10,000 signatures, Wheeler explained.

His 12-year-old daughter, Dorothy, reads much of the literature received from headquarters and takes notes for him while he is in the field, Wheeler said.

Wheeler's wife, Leona, a candidate for presidential elector on the Communist ticket, is in a New York hospital.

Dr. Grove Gives Clinic Report At Moorefield

384 Persons Examined Lions Informed in Report

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., May 22—Dr. J. B. Grove, clinician for the Tri-County Venereal Clinic at Petersburg, gave an account of his stewardship of the clinic during the past sixteen months at the regular meeting of the Moorefield Lions club Monday night. Dr. Grove stated that 348 persons from Hardy, Grant and Pendleton had been tested during the period, with eleven per cent of the total showing infection.

The primary work of the clinic, which is sponsored by the Department of Public Assistance, is with the indigent and needy, although anyone in the tri-county area may come in for advice and examination. Those who are able to pay for treatment are referred to their physician.

Dr. Grove cited the growth of the clinic which started in February, 1939, as having nine patients during that month as compared with sixty-one in April this year. In February, 1939, eighty-eight persons visited the clinic for advice, examination or treatment as compared with 311 during April, 1940.

"The clinic has two goals," said Dr. Grove, "first to render the infected non-infectious, which is relatively easy to do, and second, to bring about a cure, which is considerably harder to accomplish." Dr. Grove praised the splendid cooperation of the civic organizations in aiding his work.

Eugene C. Surber, acqua-biologist with the Bureau of Fisheries, of the Department of Commerce, also addressed the club and reported the progress of the new South Branch Valley bass hatchery, now under construction at Old Fields. Mr. Surber explained that the severe winter slowed down the work, especially when the ground was frozen for nearly ten weeks. The excavation will be finished this week and the work is more than half completed.

He also reported on the research the Bureau of Fisheries made on the South Branch river. A count of bass nests between the Buzzard's Ford bridge and the Old Fields bridge revealed an average of seventy bass nests per mile. Surber explained that only nests with eggs were considered in the check.

Surber gave some interesting facts on the feeding habits of small mouth bass in the South Branch river and said that it took nearly 600 pounds of fish, as food, to produce 100 pounds of bass. He clarified this by explaining that it took approximately 12,000 minnows to grow 100 bass weighing from a pound to a pound and a half.

"It takes from four to ten years for a small mouth bass to grow to the legal size of ten inches in this river," Mr. Surber said, and added that this was much longer than in other comparable streams.

Ralph J. Bean, president of the club, announced the annual election of officers will be held June 17, and that the nominating committee will report June 3.

James Breathed, president of the Petersburg Kiwanis club, was a guest at the meeting and requested a committee to work with his club in the formation of a South Branch Valley Association to be sponsored by the Romney, Franklin and Morefield Lions clubs and the Petersburg Kiwanis club. Dr. R. W. Love and Arno Friddle were other guests at the meeting, which was held in the new quarters at the Hotel McNeill.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

West Virginia and Ohio To Continue 'Exchanging' Taxes on Their Bridges

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—West Virginia and Ohio must continue "for the present at least, to pay each other taxes on their state-owned bridges, it developed before the West Virginia Board of Public Works today.

The Ohio Bridge Commission appeared before the board, headed by Governor Holt, to ask assessment reductions on three Ohio-owned bridges as the board completed its annual hearings on property valuations.

Utilities which appeared may file briefs until May 27, after which the board will go into executive session to fix 1940 assessments for taxation purposes. The work will be completed in June.

Three Ohio representatives requested reductions on the tSeubenville-Weirton bridge, assessed last year at $600,000; the Mason City-Pomeroy bridge, assessed at $200,000, and the East Liverpool-Chester bridge, assessed at $740,000.

It was brought out that West Virginia also owns three bridges—Parkersburg-Belpre, Marietta-Williamstown and St. Mary's, upon which it pays taxes to Ohio.

The Ohio group, headed by Oscar P. Grischy, called attention to a proposal that the two states make the structures tax free. Atorney-General Clarence W. Meadows expressed the opinion that was unconstitutional in West Virginia.

The last of three days of assessment hearings was taken up with appearances of bus lines, telephone companies, bridge firms and pipeline concerns, most of them requesting reductions from their 1939 valuations.

Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company asked a reduction from $14,800,000 to $14,766,178, citing increases in operating expenses and taxes.

Western Union asked that its assessment be reduced from $3,260,000, the 1939 figure, while Postal Telegraph requested its $60,000 assessment be lowered to approximately $32,000. Both cited heavy revenue declines in recent years.

Other requests for reductions:

West Virginia Transportation Company, from $100,000 to $90,000; Eureka Pipeline Company, from $2,750,000 to about $2,000,000; Wheeling Public Service Company, a decrease from $200,000; Charleston Transit Company, decrease from $280,000.

Penn-Ohio Coach Lines asked that the entire $20,000, 1939 assessment against it be stricken off on the ground it was engaging in interstate commerce. Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines and Pittsburgh and Weirton Bus Company joined in the request, but asserted they would "at least" like reductions from $25,000 to $15,000 and from $75,000 to $60,000, respectively.

West Virginia and Ohio To Continue 'Exchanging' Taxes on Their Bridges

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—West Virginia and Ohio must continue, for the present at least, to pay each other taxes on their state-owned bridges, it developed before the West Virginia Board of Public Works today.

The Ohio Bridge Commission appeared before the board, headed by Governor Holt, to ask assessment reductions on three Ohio-owned bridges as the board completed its annual hearings on property valuations.

Utilities which appeared may file briefs until May 27, after which the board will go into executive session to fix 1940 assessments for taxation purposes. The work will be completed in June.

Three Ohio representatives requested reductions on the tSeubenville-Weirton bridge, assessed last year at $600,000; the Mason City-Pomeroy bridge, assessed at $200,000, and the East Liverpool-Chester bridge, assessed at $740,000.

It was brought out that West Virginia also owns three bridges—Parkersburg-Belpre, Marietta-Williamstown and St. Mary's, upon which it pays taxes to Ohio.

The Ohio group, headed by Oscar P. Grischy, called attention to a proposal that the two states make the structures tax free. Atorney-General Clarence W. Meadows expressed the opinion that was unconstitutional in West Virginia.

The last of three days of assessment hearings was taken up with appearances of bus lines, telephone companies, bridge firms and pipeline concerns, most of them requesting reductions from their 1939 valuations.

Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company asked a reduction from $14,800,000 to $14,766,178, citing increases in operating expenses and taxes.

Western Union asked that its assessment be reduced from $3,260,000, the 1939 figure, while Postal Telegraph requested its $60,000 assessment be lowered to approximately $32,000. Both cited heavy revenue declines in recent years.

Other requests for reductions:

West Virginia Transportation Company, from $100,000 to $90,000; Eureka Pipeline Company, from $2,750,000 to about $2,000,000; Wheeling Public Service Company, a decrease from $200,000; Charleston Transit Company, decrease from $280,000.

Penn-Ohio Coach Lines asked that the entire $20,000, 1939 assessment against it be stricken off on the ground it was engaging in interstate commerce. Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines and Pittsburgh and Weirton Bus Company joined in the request, but asserted they would "at least" like reductions from $25,000 to $15,000 and from $75,000 to $60,000, respectively.

Hubbell Turns Back Cincinnati Crew, 6 to 4

Former Southpaw King Holds Reds To Seven Blows

Loss Drops Champions into Tie with Dodgers for Lead

Two Three-Run Clusters Fatal to Big Paul Derringer

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—Evil days have befallen big Paul Derringer, the leading percentage pitcher of the National League last year, and today the New York Giants twice clustered three runs against him to whip the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 4.

The loss dropped the Reds into a tie with the Brooklyn Dodgers for first place.

Carl Hubbell, the once great southpaw king of the Giants, held the Reds to seven hits, struck out four and never gave a pass.

In the second inning John Rizzo doubled down the leftfield foul line and Billy Myers, starting his first game in 21 contests, singled him home. Then in the third Ernie Lombardi singled and Rizzo followed with a lofty home run against the left field stands.

Derringer lost his command of the game in the sixth. Burgess Whitehead led off with a single and moved to third on two outs. Then Mel Ott smashed a single to center for one run and Harry Danning hit his fifth homer of the season, a drive against the rightfield screen.

Paul was given another chance when Bill Werber homered in the eighth, but it wasn't his day. In the last half of this inning Whitehead again led off with a single and Joe Moore and Frank Demaree hit successive singles to bring him home. Then Ott sacrificed, Danning was passed purposely and Babe Young singled to center for the winning runs. The box score:

Charter Is Given W.Va. Race Group

Half Moon Racing Corporation Fourth of Kind in State

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—The fourth horse racing concern authorized to do business in West Virginia—the Half Moon Racing Corporation of Brooke county—was chartered today by Secretary of State William S. O'Brien.

It will be the third in the Northern Panhandle, center of the populous Tri-State district embracing industrial sections of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio.

Wheeling Downs already is holding meetings on Wheeling Island, while the contracts have been awarded for construction of Waterford Downs, modern racing plant proposed for Hancock county. The other state track is at Charles Town, operated by the Charles Town Jockey club.

The Half Moon Company is capitalized at $1,020,000. It has permission to issue 100,000 shares of Class A common stock with a $10 par value and 200,000 shares of Class B stock at 10 cents a share par, each to have equal voting power.

The location of the plant was not disclosed in the charter, which was signed by "dummy" incorporators. Headquarters of the company, which was authorized to operate a jockey club and racing association, were given as the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh.

The offices of Steptoe and Johnson, attorneys for the firm, said that backers of the racing association declined to give out any information for the present but that a statement probably would be made in a few days.

Gaffney Clouts Two Home Runs As A.H.S. Wins

Campers Share Top Rung with Beall by Beating Latter, 11 to 7

Paced by big Jim Gaffney, who belted two terrific home runs over the center field fence, Allegany high schools' baseball team went into a tie for first place in the Tri-State Interscholastic Conference yesterday by deefating Coach Eddie Finzell's Beall high tossers, 11 to 7 at Frostburg. The Campers now share the top rung of the ladder with the Mountain City team, each having won six and lost three.

Gaffney's first smash came in the opening frame when the winners scored three times, while the second team came three frames later when the Blue and White scored two more tallies. The Campers also counted two-run clusters in the second, third, and sixth.

Harvey Conners allowed the Beall nine only seven hits and was in trouble but once, the seventh, when the losers pushed three of their seven markers across the payoff platter. One of the runs yielded by Conners resulted from a balk in the fifth heat.

Lou Bell, George Geatz and Gaffney each had two blows for Allegany while none of the iFnzelmen got more than one bingle. Fuller's double was Beall's only extra-base knoek.

Three Thousand To Participate In Fairgo Meet

Athletes of Forty-One Schools Entered in Contests Today

Three thousand boys and girls of forty-three one-teacher, two-teacher and graded elementary schools will gather at the Cumberland Fairgrounds in the first of a two-day county-wide athletic program sponsored by the State Board of Education.

Elementary games tournaments will start at 9:30 and field events at 10:30. Track contests will get under way at 1 p. m., with field events continued into the afternoon.

About 2,000 more athletes will take part in Friday's athletic program for the county's senior-junior high school athletics.

Last year, Corriganville athletes amassed 108 points to win the graded elementary title with Luke grabbing runnerup honors with 73. Hammond Street, which shared the title with Corriganville in 1938, was third.

In the two-teacher division, Detmold dethroned Ocean as champion by gathering 68 markers while Vale Summit, defending the crown in the one-teacher group, gave up the title to Little Orleans, which scored 45 points. No records were equalled or broken in any of the meets.

Allegany High of Cumberland retained the junior-senior high diadem in 1939 by lowering seven records and piling up 230 points. Central of Lonaconing was second with 198, Beall of Frostburg third with 186 and Fort Hill of Cumberland fourth with 158, one more than Bruce of Westernport.

A total of 12 meet marks fell by the wayside. Beall athletes smashed three and Fort Hill and Bruce each one. Jim Gaffney, Paul Durst, Vernon Miller, Tommy Rudd and Miles Snyder, all of whom broke or helped to smash records a year ago, are again members of the Allegany team.

Texas Against the Field

In the way of sporting competition I will now give you the pewee state, Texas. Texas is only a trifle less than 800 miles long and around 600 miles in width. Swing this state around and it covers most of the map.

Texas now happens to hold one of the great lightweight champions, by the name of Lew Jenkins. A flock of experts tell me that Jenkins will knock out Henry Armstrong in less than four rounds. Maybe in two rounds. That's a fair job, even for a Texan.

Last year Texas had the greatest football team in the county in Texas A. and M. I'd put Cornell second. But Texas A. and M. was the top and will probably be the same for 1940, with almost every hand returning to the squad.

We all know what Texas has given to baseball—the state that sent such players at Tris Speaker, Robers Hornsby, Dizzy Dean, Ted Lyons, and many others on their way.

But this new challenge was a different matter. It came from golf. The U. S. Open for 1941 is to be held over the very fine Colonial Course at Ft. Worth.

They were talking about holding a preview at Houston with eight picked golfers against the Ryder Cup team. I suggested the idea of Texas golfers against the field at Houston. Freddie Corcoran, the hard-working P. G. A. adjutant, took the matter up with all the Texans he could find.

"We'll take Texas against the field," Jimmy Demarest told me. And Jimmy is one of the most modest athletes I ever knew.

"Give me Texas against the United States," Ben Hogan, the round-robin winner said.

Dick Metz, another great golfer and another Texan, backed this up. "I'll ride with Texas," Dick said.

The Texas Output

Here was the Texas team we finally selected to meet the rest or the remainder of the United States:

Jimmy Demaret, winner of seven major tournaments this year. Ben Hogan, winner of four major tournaments and second in four others. Ralph Guldahl, twice Open champion of the U. S. Byron Nelson, the present U. S. Open champion and one of the top golfers and top competitors of his day and time. Dick Metz, another top entry, who is sure to arrive around the winning peak. Harry Cooper, who came to Texas at the age of three. Lloyd Mangrum, who won the Thomasville tournament and finished just back of Demaret in the Masters' at Augusta with a record round.

After these we get Levi Lynch, Barney Clarke, Ray Mangrum and Jack Burke.

Texas doesn't care whether the rest of the field makes it six, eight or ten men. They believe their top six or seven can handle the field.

The main opposition will come from such stars as Sammy Snead, one of the great golfers of this time; Henry Picard, the P. G. A. champion, another star entry; Gene Sarazen, who came back like a flash in the round-robin; Jimmy Thompson, Paul Runyan, Craig Wood, Jimmy Hines, Tommy Armour, Billy Burke, and maybe a few others.

A Record Crowd

If this macth is played at Houston it will break all modern golf records. It will take us back to the days of Bobby Jones.

It would be no surprise to see 12,000 or more watching this contest. Texas against the field—played in Texas. This would be a great forerunner for the U. S. Open in Ft. Worth.

And I'll string with Texas—one state against 47 challengers. I'll string with Demaret, Hogan, Guldahl, Metz and the others.

The main thing about this contest—Texas vs. The Rest—is that at Houston the match would draw over 10,000 a day. It would break all one or two-day golf records. I understand there is a battle of this type planned for Oklahoma City in the fall. It would be worth playing at two places.

I have been asked frequently why it is that Texas produces so many great golfers. Texas golfers have won the last three U. S. Opens. Texas golfers have won 12 out of the last 15 major winter and spring tournaments. Lawson Little, Ed Oliver and Byron Nelson were the only interlopers to break through with Texans running second in two other starts.

One answer may be a golfing climate the year around. Another is keen competition from an early age. Whatever the reason, Texas is well in the lead where a group of stars is concerned in any argument.

It will be interesting to see this challenge tested—Texas against the pick of the field.—Released by North American Newspaper Alliance.

Hubbell Turns Back Cincinnati Crew, 6 to 4

Former Southpaw King Holds Reds To Seven Blows

Two Three-Run Clusters Fatal to Big Paul Derringer

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—Evil days have befallen big Paul Derringer, the leading percentage pitcher of the National League last year, and today the New York Giants twice clustered three runs against him to whip the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 4.

The loss dropped the Reds into a tie with the Brooklyn Dodgers for first place.

Carl Hubbell, the once great southpaw king of the Giants, held the Reds to seven hits, struck out four and never gave a pass.

In the second inning John Rizzo doubled down the leftfield foul line and Billy Myers, starting his first game in 21 contests, singled him home. Then in the third Ernie Lombardi singled and Rizzo followed with a lofty home run against the left field stands.

Derringer lost his command of the game in the sixth. Burgess Whitehead led off with a single and moved to third on two outs. Then Mel Ott smashed a single to center for one run and Harry Danning hit his fifth homer of the season, a drive against the rightfield screen.

Paul was given another chance when Bill Werber homered in the eighth, but it wasn't his day. In the last half of this inning Whitehead again led off with a single and Joe Moore and Frank Demaree hit successive singles to bring him home. Then Ott sacrificed, Danning was passed purposely and Babe Young singled to center for the winning runs. The box score:

Charter Is Given W.Va. Race Group

Half Moon Racing Corporation Fourth of Kind in State

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—The fourth horse racing concern authorized to do business in West Virginia—the Half Moon Racing Corporation of Brooke county—was chartered today by Secretary of State William S. O'Brien.

It will be the third in the Northern Panhandle, center of the populous Tri-State district embracing industrial sections of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio.

Wheeling Downs already is holding meetings on Wheeling Island, while the contracts have been awarded for construction of Waterford Downs, modern racing plant proposed for Hancock county. The other state track is at Charles Town, operated by the Charles Town Jockey club.

The Half Moon Company is capitalized at $1,020,000. It has permission to issue 100,000 shares of Class A common stock with a $10 par value and 200,000 shares of Class B stock at 10 cents a share par, each to have equal voting power.

The location of the plant was not disclosed in the charter, which was signed by "dummy" incorporators. Headquarters of the company, which was authorized to operate a jockey club and racing association, were given as the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh.

The offices of Steptoe and Johnson, attorneys for the firm, said that backers of the racing association declined to give out any information for the present but that a statement probably would be made in a few days.

Gaffney Clouts Two Home Runs As A.H.S. Wins

Campers Share Top Rung with Beall by Beating Latter, 11 to 7

Paced by big Jim Gaffney, who belted two terrific home runs over the center field fence, Allegany high schools' baseball team went into a tie for first place in the Tri-State Interscholastic Conference yesterday by deefating Coach Eddie Finzell's Beall high tossers, 11 to 7 at Frostburg. The Campers now share the top rung of the ladder with the Mountain City team, each having won six and lost three.

Gaffney's first smash came in the opening frame when the winners scored three times, while the second team came three frames later when the Blue and White scored two more tallies. The Campers also counted two-run clusters in the second, third, and sixth.

Harvey Conners allowed the Beall nine only seven hits and was in trouble but once, the seventh, when the losers pushed three of their seven markers across the payoff platter. One of the runs yielded by Conners resulted from a balk in the fifth heat.

Lou Bell, George Geatz and Gaffney each had two blows for Allegany while none of the fFnzelmen got more than one bingle. Fuller's double was Beall's only extra-base knock.

Three Thousand To Participate In Fairgo Meet

Athletes of Forty-One Schools Entered in Contests Today

Three thousand boys and girls of forty-three one-teacher, two-teacher and graded elementary schools will gather at the Cumberland Fairgrounds in the first of a two-day county-wide athletic program sponsored by the State Board of Education.

Elementary games tournaments will start at 9:30 and field events at 10:30. Track contests will get under way at 1 p. m., with field events continued into the afternoon.

About 2,000 more athletes will take part in Friday's athletic program for the county's senior-junior high school athletics.

Last year, Corriganville athletes amassed 108 points to win the graded elementary title with Luke grabbing runnerup honors with 73. Hammond Street, which shared the title with Corriganville in 1938, was third.

In the two-teacher division, Detmold dethroned Ocean as champion by gathering 68 markers while Vale Summit, defending the erown in the one-teacher group, gave up the title to Little Orleans, which scored 45 points. No records were equalled or broken in any of the meets.

Allegany High of Cumberland retained the junior-senior high diadem in 1939 by lowering seven records and piling up 230 points. Central of Lonaconing was second with 198, Beall of Frostburg third with 186 and Fort Hill of Cumberland fourth with 158, one more than Bruce of Westernport.

A total of 12 meet marks fell by the wayside. Beall athletes smashed three and Fort Hill and Bruce each one. Jim Gaffney, Paul Durst, Vernon Miller, Tommy Rudd and Miles Snyder, all of whom broke or helped to smash records a year ago, are again members of the Allegany team.

Texas Against the Field

In the way of sporting competition I will now give you the pewee state, Texas. Texas is only a trifle less than 800 miles long and around 600 miles in width. Swing this state around and it covers most of the map.

Texas now happens to hold one of the great lightweight champions, by the name of Lew Jenkins. A flock of experts tell me that Jenkins will knock out Henry Armstrong in less than four rounds. Maybe in two rounds. That's a fair job, even for a Texan.

Last year Texas had the greatest football team in the county in Texas A. and M. I'd put Cornell second. But Texas A. and M. was the top and will probably be the same for 1940, with almost every hand returning to the squad.

We all know what Texas has given to baseball—the state that sent such players at Tris Speaker, Robers Hornsby, Dizzy Dean, Ted Lyons, and many others on their way.

But this new challenge was a different matter. It came from golf. The U. S. Open for 1941 is to be held over the very fine Colonial Course at Ft. Worth.

They were talking about holding a preview at Houston with eight picked golfers against the Ryder Cup team. I suggested the idea of Texas golfers against the field at Houston. Freddie Corcoran, the hard-working P. G. A. adjutant, took the matter up with all the Texans he could find.

"We'll take Texas against the field," Jimmy Demaret told me. And Jimmy is one of the most modest athletes I ever knew.

"Give me Texas against the United States," Ben Hogan, the round-robin winner said.

Dick Metz, another great golfer and another Texan, backed this up. "I'll ride with Texas," Dick said.

The Texas Output

Here was the Texas team we finally selected to meet the rest or the remainder of the United States:

Jimmy Demaret, winner of seven major tournaments this year. Ben Hogan, winner of four major tournaments and second in four others. Ralph Guldahl, twice Open champion of the U. S. Byron Nelson, the present U. S. Open champion and one of the top golfers and top competitors of his day and time. Dick Metz, another top entry, who is sure to arrive around the winning peak. Harry Cooper, who came to Texas at the age of three. Lloyd Mangrum, who won the Thomasville tournament and finished just back of Demaret in the Masters' at Augusta with a record round.

Texas doesn't care whether the rest of the field makes it six, eight or ten men. They believe their top six or seven can handle the field.

The main opposition will come from such stars as Sammy Snead, one of the great golfers of this time; Henry Picard, the P. G. A. champion, another star entry; Gene Sarazen, who came back like a flash in the round-robin; Jimmy Thompson, Paul Runyan, Craig Wood, Jimmy Hines, Tommy Armour, Billy Burke, and maybe a few others.

A Record Crowd

If this macth is played at Houston it will break all modern golf records. It will take us back to the days of Bobby Jones.

It would be no surprise to see 12,000 or more watching this contest—Texas against the field—played in Texas. This would be a great forerunner for the U. S. Open in Ft. Worth.

And I'll string with Texas—one state against 47 challengers. I'll string with Demaret, Hogan, Guldahl, Metz and the others.

The main thing about this contest—Texas vs. The Rest—is that at Houston the match would draw over 10,000 a day. It would break all one or two-day golf records. I understand there is a battle of this type planned for Oklahoma City in the fall. It would be worth playing at two places.

I have been asked frequently why it is that Texas produces so many great golfers. Texas golfers have won the last three U. S. Opens. Texas golfers have won 12 out of the last 15 major winter and spring tournaments. Lawson Little, Ed Oliver and Byron Nelson were the only interlopers to break through, with Texans running second in two other starts.

One answer may be a golfing climate the year around. Another is keen competition from an early age. Whatever the reason, Texas is well in the lead where a group of stars is concerned in any argument.

It will be interesting to see this challenge tested—Texas against the pick of the field.—Released by North American Newspaper Alliance.

Indians Cut Bosox Lead with 9-6 Victory

Red Sox' Margin Sliced to Game, Half by Tribe

Keltner's Eighth-Inning Homer off Hash Proves Clincher

Trosky Slams Ninth Four-Bagger; Harder Winning Pitcher

CLEVELAND, May 22 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians beat the Boston Red Sox today at their own game—slugging—and blasted a 9 to 6 victory which lifted the Tribe within a game and a half of the league leaders.

Hal Trosky's ninth home run of the season, plus circuit clouts by Ken Keltner and Ray Weatherby gave second place Cleveland the opening game of the two-game series. Jim Tabor clouted for the circuit for Boston.

Neither Mel Harder, the Indians' starter, nor Fritz Ostermueller, who opened for Boston, was effective but Harder stayed around long enough to get credit for the victory.

Keltner's eighth-inning homer off Herb Hash, third Boston twirler, proved the clincher. The box-score:

Blades May Be Through If Cards Don't Win More

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, May 21.—There was talk last week-end—wild talk, no doubt—that the recent grisly situation among the St. Louis Cardinals, who were losing ball games which they seemed to have no business losing, would result in one or both of the following moves:

1. The abdication of Manager Ray Blades, under pressure.

2. The appointment of Pepper Martin or Mike Gonzales to fill the job for the balance of the season.

The day after the Cards blew a miserable duke to the Phillies last week, Branch Rickey, the St. Louis brain, came rushing out of the West like a clean-living typhoon to find out what the trouble was. I doubt very much whether it occurred to Mr. Rickey that some of the trouble might be rooted in his own maneuvers. Such things do not occur to baseball magnates.

At any rate, the brain made no secret of the purpose of his errand. He did not come to trade. When Leland Stanford MacPhail, the Laird of Brooklyn, clutched him by the elbow and muttered something about three outfielders, two pitchers, $80,000 and twelve marbles, Mr. Rickey shook him off.

Rickey the Reformer

"Let us have no talk of huckstering," said the brain. "This is not Rickey the trader you see before you. This is Rickey the man with the big stick. This is Rickey the reformer."

"Well, don't you even want to trade fountain pens?" said Mr. MacPhail plaintively.

"No dice!" said Mr. Rickey. "Where is my manager at?"

Since Mr. Blades is almost always at home to his employer, there is no doubt that they had a conference, and that Mr. Rickey waxes as warm as a non-smoking, non-cussing man can wax. About that time the big Cardinal bats blasted out a couple of timely victories. Now it looks as though Mr. Blades has been given another chance—under extreme peril to his portfolio.

The rumors about Pepper Martin and Mike Gonzales are something else again. Gonzales is a loyal lieutenant to Blades (in fact, he recommended Blades), and history has shown Mr. Martin's character to be a trifle on the light side, not perfectly suited perhaps to the management of a ball club. Both men are hustling for Blades. Neither would like to be considered a backstabber. Neither seems to be an ideal choice for permanent appointment.

However, there is another side of the matter to be considered.

A Popular Coach Might Help

Both Mr. Rickey and Mr. P. K. Wrigley, the Chicago tycoon, have found to their advantage that there is much to be said for the practice of injecting a popular coach or player as manager in mid-season. It serves as a quick dose of inspiration. Often it wins a pennant, if the ball club has the stuff. Frank Frisch, Charlie Grimm, Gabby Hartnett, and Rogers Hornsby are examples of the success of this policy. The permanent results are seldom good, but that quick pennant speaks for itself.

A fellow like Johnny Martin, the Wild Hoss of the Osage, given to dropping bags full of water out of hotel windows and driving midget race cars, might never be considered as a full-time manager. But then again, if there is disaffection on the team, he might serve very well as an inspirational field leader to haul a good team to the pennant in the space of three or four playing months.

I suspect that Pepper would turn out to be the same kind of manager Rabbit Maranville was, if the club happened to be having an off year. The Rabbit succeeded Bill Killifer as manager of the Cubs during the season of 1925. One day the boys missed the Rab at practice, and early customers found him outside the ball park with a sheaf of newspapers under his arm, yelling:

"Extra! Maranville fired!"

This announcement very soon came true, the Rabbit being replaced that same season, as I recall, by George Gibson.

For the time being, it looks as though neither Martin nor Gonzales (who took over Frisch's job at the close of 1938) nor any other man in the Cardinal organization will succeed Ray Blades right away. The manager is getting another chance. But he has been warned, and if the Cardinals do not keep winning, I'm afraid he is through—for it's a strange truth in baseball that when a magnate gets a bee in his hat, the manager gets stung.

Whether the slow pace of the Cards is Blades's fault, or the players' fault, or the fault of the ownership, I don't know. I do know, though, that this is a team which should be winning. Why, it's almost good enough to play in the American league.

Yanks Blast Four Pitchers in 8-2 Win over Detroit

Tigers Held to Six Base Knocks by Rookie Marvin Breuer

DETROIT, May 22 (AP)—Blasting 16 hits off four pitchers for their second straight victory, the New York Yankees routed the Detroit Tigers 8 to 2 today behind the six-hit hurling of Rookie Marvin Breuer.

The young righthander held the Tigers scoreless on two hits until the eighth, when two singles and a walk filled the bases and Shortstop Frank Crosetti let Dick Bartell's grounder go through him for two runs.

The Yanks, with Babe Dahlgren hitting a home run and four singles, had completed their scoring previously.

Eight fielding misplays failed to keep United Brethren from defeating Evangelical by the score to 10 to 8 in a South Cumberland Sunday School Softball League contest this week. The victory coupled with Trinity's defeat at the hands of St. John's by a 6 to 3 score, gave the U. B. tossers sole possession of first place in the the eight-club circuit.

Turner hit for the circuit for United Brethren.

In another league contest, Emmanuel handed Brethren its fifth straight defeat, 20 to 2, with Woody Lewis getting two homers while Malone and Sulser each connected for round-trippers. The Baptist ten nosed out Grace M. E. by the score of 10 to 9 for their third win of the season.

Today Grace M. E. will tackle United Brethren on Brinker field and Trinity will engage Living Stone Church of the Brethren at Locust Grove. Friday's slate is Baptist vs. St. John's on Brinker field and Evangelical vs. Emmanuel at Locust Grove. The scores:

Betty Jameson Wins in Women's Golf Tournament

National Champ Brushes off Dangerous Foe on Soggy Course

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 22 (AP)—Tousled Betty Jameson trudged on to her "vindication" today, coldly mastering par over a heavy, rain-washed course to shepherd the favorites into quarter-finals of the Women's Southern Gold Association championship.

The 21-year-old National champion, roughly handled in tournament play since she ascended to the throne last summer, today brushed off a dangerous opponent, Mrs. E. R. Hury of San Antonio, 5 and 4 with a burst of pars and birdies.

Criticized last season for deliberate play, Betty went back to her old game of studying each shot. The dividends were terrific.

With her into the round of eight went Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N. C.; Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., the defending champion; Jane Cothran of Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth; Mrs. Sam Israel of New Orleans; Miss Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Kay Pearson of Houston.

Tomorrow Betty faces Miss Pearson, winner today, 3 and 2, over Miss Jo Henson of Paris, Tex., in a par-dotted match that was close until the closing holes.

Miss Miley eliminated most of the wildness from her game and defeated Mrs. F. C. Rochon of Fort Worth. Her next opponent will be Miss Cothran.

Miss Cothran dislodged Mrs. Dave Gaut of Memphis, for a quarter of a century one of the nation's top match players.

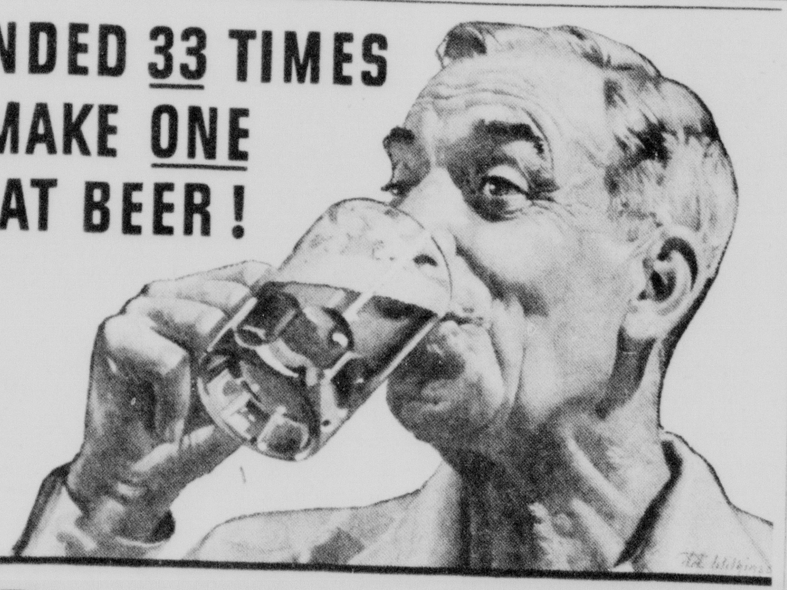
BLENDED 33 TIMES TO MAKE ONE GREAT BEER!



33 SEPARATE BREWS — BLENDED LIKE FINEST COFFEE AND CHAMPAGNE — FOR GOODNESS THAT NEVER VARIES

IN every glass of Blue Ribbon there are 33 fine brews from 33 separate kettles!

Only Blue Ribbon brings together these 33 fine brews . . . Not one, or two, or five . . . but 33!

Each brew is as fine as the choicest ingredients and Pabst's 96 years of skill can make it!

But brewing is a natural process, and Nature never yields two brews that are exactly alike, even with the same formula and strict scientific control.

That's why Pabst goes to so much extra work and expense to blend 33 separate brews.

The result is: America's Premium Beer, with a smoothness that is unique . . . a goodness that is always the same.

Sometime today, have the pleasure of meeting a glass of Blue Ribbon.

It's the BLEND that Betters the Beer

Indians Cut Bosox Lead with 9-6 Victory

Red Sox' Margin Sliced to Game, Half by Tribe

Trosky Slams Ninth Four-Bagger; Harder Winning Pitcher

CLEVELAND, May 22 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians beat the Boston Red Sox today at their own game—slugging—and blasted a 9 to 6 victory which lifted the Tribe within a game and a half of the league leaders.

Hal Trosky's ninth home run of the season, plus circuit clouts by Ken Keltner and Ray Weatherby gave second place Cleveland the opening game of the two-game series. Jim Tabor clouted for the circuit for Boston.

Neither Mel Harder, the Indians' starter, nor Fritz Ostermueller, who opened for Boston, was effective but Harder stayed around long enough to get credit for the victory.

Keltner's eighth-inning homer off Herb Hash, third Boston twirler, proved the clincher. The box-score:

Blades May Be Through If Cards Don't Win More

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, May 21.—There was talk last week-end—wild talk, no doubt—that the recent grisly situation among the St. Louis Cardinals, who were losing ball games which they seemed to have no business losing, would result in one or both of the following moves:

1. The abdication of Manager Ray Blades, under pressure.

2. The appointment of Pepper Martin or Mike Gonzales to fill the job for the balance of the season.

The day after the Cards blew a miserable duke to the Phillies last week, Branch Rickey, the St. Louis brain, came rushing out of the West like a clean-living typhoon to find out what the trouble was. I doubt very much whether it occurred to Mr. Rickey that some of the trouble might be rooted in his own maneuvers. Such things do not occur to baseball magnates.

At any rate, the brain made no secret of the purpose of his errand. He did not come to trade. When Leland Stanford MacPhail, the Laird of Brooklyn, clutched him by the elbow and muttered something about three outfielders, two pitchers, $80,000, and twelve marbles, Mr. Rickey shook him off.

Rickey the Reformer

"Let us have no talk of huckstering," said the brain. "This is not Rickey the trader you see before you. This is Rickey the man with the big stick. This is Rickey the reformer."

"Well, don't you even want to trade fountain pens?" said Mr. MacPhail plaintively.

"No dice!" said Mr. Rickey. "Where is my manager at?"

Since Mr. Blades is almost always at home to his employer, there is no doubt that they had a conference, and that Mr. Rickey waxes as warm as a non-smoking, non-cussing man can wax. About that time the big Cardinal bats blasted out a couple of timely victories. Now it looks as though Mr. Blades has been given another chance—under extreme peril to his portfolio.

The rumors about Pepper Martin and Mike Gonzales are something else again. Gonzales is a loyal lieutenant to Blades (in fact, he recommended Blades), and history has shown Mr. Martin's character to be a trifle on the light side, not perfectly suited perhaps to the management of a ball club. Both men are hustling for Blades. Neither would like to be considered a backstabber. Neither seems to be an ideal choice for permanent appointment.

However, there is another side of the matter to be considered.

A Popular Coach Might Help

Both Mr. Rickey and Mr. P. K. Wrigley, the Chicago tycoon, have found to their advantage that there is much to be said for the practice of injecting a popular coach or player as manager in mid-season. It serves as a quick dose of inspiration. Often it wins a pennant, if the ball club has the stuff. Frank Frisch, Charlie Grimm, Gabby Hartnett, and Rogers Hornsby are examples of the success of this policy. The permanent results are seldom good, but that quick pennant speaks for itself.

A fellow like Johnny Martin, the Wild Hoss of the Osage, given to dropping bags full of water out of hotel windows and driving midget race cars, might never be considered as a full-time manager. But then again, if there is disaffection on the team, he might serve very well as an inspirational field leader to haul a good team to the pennant in the space of three or four playing months.

I suspect that Pepper would turn out to be the same kind of manager Rabbit Maranville was, if the club happened to be having an off year. The Rabbit succeeded Bill Killifer as manager of the Cubs during the season of 1925. One day the boys missed the Rab at practice, and early customers found him outside the ball park with a sheaf of newspapers under his arm, yelling:

"Extra! Maranville fired!"

This announcement very soon came true, the Rabbit being replaced that same season, as I recall, by George Gibson.

For the time being, it looks as though neither Martin nor Gonzales (who took over Frisch's job at the close of 1938) nor any other man in the Cardinal organization will succeed Ray Blades right away. The manager is getting another chance. But he has been warned, and if the Cardinals do not keep winning, I'm afraid he is through—for it's a strange truth in baseball that when a magnate gets a bee in his hat, the manager gets stung.

Whether the slow pace of the Cards is Blades's fault, or the players' fault, or the fault of the ownership, I don't know. I do know, though, that this is a team which should be winning. Why, it's almost good enough to play in the American league.

Yanks Blast Four Pitchers in 8-2 Win over Detroit

Tigers Held to Six Base Knocks by Rookie Marvin Breuer

DETROIT, May 22 (AP)—Blasting 16 hits off four pitchers for their second straight victory, the New York Yankees routed the Detroit Tigers 8 to 2 today behind the six-hit hurling of Rookie Marvin Breuer.

The young righthander held the Tigers scoreless on two hits until the eighth, when two singles and a walk filled the bases and Shortstop Frank Crosetti let Dick Bartell's grounder go through him for two runs.

The Yanks, with Babe Dahlgren hitting a home run and four singles, had completed their scoring previously.

Eight fielding misplays failed to keep United Brethren from defeating Evangelical by the score to 10 to 8 in a South Cumberland Sunday School Softball League contest this week. Turner hit for the circuit for United Brethren.

In another league contest, Emmanuel handed Brethren its fifth straight defeat, 20 to 2, with Woody Lewis getting two homers while Malone and Sulser each connected for round-trippers. The Baptist ten nosed out Grace M. E. by the score of 10 to 9 for their third win of the season.

Today Grace M. E. will tackle United Brethren on Brinker field and Trinity will engage Living Stone Church of the Brethren at Locust Grove. Friday's slate is Baptist vs. St. John's on Brinker field and Evangelical vs. Emmanuel at Locust Grove. The scores:

Betty Jameson Wins in Women's Golf Tournament

National Champ Brushes off Dangerous Foe on Soggy Course

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 22 (AP)—Tousled Betty Jameson trudged on to her "vindication" today, coldly mastering par over a heavy, rain-washed course to shepherd the favorites into quarter-finals of the Women's Southern Gold Association championship.

The 21-year-old National champion, roughly handled in tournament play since she ascended to the throne last summer, today brushed off a dangerous opponent, Mrs. E. R. Hury of San Antonio, 5 and 4 with a burst of pars and birdies.

Criticized last season for deliberate play, Betty went back to her old game of studying each shot. The dividends were terrific.

With her into the round of eight went Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N. C.; Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., the defending champion; Jane Cothran of Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth; Mrs. Sam Israel of New Orleans; Miss Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Kay Pearson of Houston.

Tomorrow Betty faces Miss Pearson, winner today, 3 and 2, over Miss Jo Henson of Paris, Tex., in a par-dotted match that was close until the closing holes.

Miss Miley eliminated most of the wildness from her game and defeated Mrs. F. C. Rochon of Fort Worth. Her next opponent will be Miss Cothran.

Miss Cothran dislodged Mrs. Dave Gaut of Memphis, for a quarter of a century one of the nation's top match players.

33 SEPARATE BREWS — BLENDED LIKE FINEST COFFEE AND CHAMPAGNE — FOR GOODNESS THAT NEVER VARIES

IN every glass of Blue Ribbon there are 33 fine brews from 33 separate kettles!

Only Blue Ribbon brings together these 33 fine brews . . . Not one, or two, or five . . . but 33!

Each brew is as fine as the choicest ingredients and Pabst's 96 years of skill can make it!

But brewing is a natural process, and Nature never yields two brews that are exactly alike, even with the same formula and strict scientific control.

That's why Pabst goes to so much extra work and expense to blend 33 separate brews.

Garcia To Defend Title in Fight Tonight

Filipino Will Be Favored To Trim Overlin

Odds on Champ May Be Backed Down to 1-2 at Ringside

Two Outdoor Shows May Come Out of Middleweight Scrap

NEW YORK, May 22. (AP)—For the third time since he won it last October, Ceferino Garcia lays his world's middleweight title (New York-California version) on the line tomorrow night in a 15-round bout with Ken Overlin of Washington in Madison Square Garden.

Out of the scrap may come two outdoor shows. There is talk of matching the winner with Light-heavyweight Champ Billy Conn in one of the New York ball parks during the summer.

Also, there is a possibility that the victor may get a shot at Al Hostak of Seattle, recognized as middleweight king by the National Boxing Association. Nate Druxman, Seattle promoter, who controls Hostak, is conferring here with Mike Jacobs, head of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club about such a match. Thus far there is no agreement since Druxman wants the bout in Seattle while Jacobs holds out for New York.

Odds are shortening on Garcia, who was a 5-13 favorite earlier in the week. There is plenty of Overlin money around at this price and it may be the Filipino will be backed down to 1-2 at ringside.

Garcia won his crown from Fred Apostoli in the opening show of the Garden season last October. In a most convincing display of power, he hammered Apostoli into submission in seven rounds.

Since then Garcia has made two successful title defenses. He beat Glenn Lee in 13 rounds at Manila last October and later thwarted the title bid of Henry Armstrong, the welterweight king, in a draw at Los Angeles. Since quitting the welters 18 months ago, Garcia has opposed 16 middleweights without a setback.

Overlin, rated one of the most improved boxers in the game, has been beaten only once in 20 starts in the last two years.

Gassers, Ridgeley Cop League Tilts

Keegan's Team Trounces Comets, 23-8; Ridgeley Poles Two Homers

Cracking out twenty-one hits, Keegan's Gassers yesterday inaugurated their City Softball League campaign by trouncing the Comets by the score of 23 to 8.

Seven of the Gassers' blows went for extra bases, including homers by Mulvey and H. Lapp and a three-ply wallop by Hamilton.

Two Keegan flingers limited the Comets to four scattered hits.

Bob Hose, Johnson and C. Lapp with three blows each, were the Gassers' top batsmen, while none of the Comets could muster more than one safety.

Walter Ridgeley was the batting star as Ridgeley took the measure of Potomac News in another league game by the score of 8 to 3. Ridgeley walloped two homers for the victors while Naughton and Hanna each rapped out three safeties for Potomac News.

Sixteen Qualify For Speed Classic At Indianapolis

Petillo, Former Winner, Listed among Starters for May 30 Event

INDIANAPOLIS, May 22 (AP)—The assured starting field for the Indianapolis motor speedway 500-mile race May 30 was increased to 16 today as Kelly Petillo and Sam Hanks, both of Los Angeles; George Barringer, of Wichita Falls, Tex., and Harry McQuinn, of Indianapolis qualified for the speed classic.

Sitting alongside Petillo in the fifth row will be Hanks, a newcomer to the Indianapolis track. Piloting a car entered by Leon Duray, a former driver, Hanks reeled off ten miles at 123.064 miles an hour.

The third man in the fifth row will be McQuinn, driving a car entered by Big Bill White, of Los Angeles. McQuinn, who broke a water line in practice Sunday, got his speedster up to 122.486 miles an hour for the four-lap test.

Barringer won the inside spot in the sixth row with a speed of 121.889 miles an hour.

only at home but also abroad." Tydings, who was named a delegate-at-large to the National Convention, continued. "I hope that, at Chicago, we may do the right thing, whatever the exigencies of the situation may be."

The state meeting was marked by perfect surface harmony. At the same time, no mention was made of two issues which kept the pre-convention caucuses in considerable uproar. One was a proposal of leaders to have the national delegation name William P. Lane of Hagerstown as National committeeman.

The other revolved about Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menefee's continuance as national committeewoman. Three candidates were in the field to succeed her and party leaders apparently were unable to settle the behind-the-scenes contest.

It was generally understood, however, that considerable early opposition to Lane had been overcome and that he would be named.

Bruce urged a united party front in November and called upon his supporters to back Radcliffe "wholeheartedly."

As was anticipated, Joshua Warfield, Democratic state chairman for six years, submitted his formal resignation and the convention promptly elected Truman B. Cash of Westminster as his successor.

In addition to Tydings, the delegates-at-large included Bruce, Radcliffe, Governor O'Conor, Mayor Howard W. Jackson, former Gov. Emerson C. Harrington, Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles, and Philip Perlman, former city solicitor of Baltimore.

Others in the thirty-two-member delegation:

Edward J. Colgan, Jr., George M. Smith, Amsauel H. Hoffberger, James H. Pollock, S. Lawrence Hammerman, O. L. Bonifay, Julian B. Carrick and William R. Padgett, all of Baltimore.

State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, Attorney General William C. Walsh, Fletcher Sisk, Former State Senator William Dodson, David Cohen, S. Scott Beck, Jr., and State Senate President Arthur Brice, representing the Eastern Shore.

Trozzo's Extend Winning Streak To Nine Games

Geatz's Circuit Clout in Third Sinks Candy Kitchen, 2 to 1

Trozzo's extended its winning streak to nine games yesterday by nosing out the Candy Kitchen by the score of 2 to 1 at Taylor Field in a South End Softball League game.

Geatz's home run with one aboard in the third inning was the deciding factor in a neat pitching duel in which "Bunny" Saum and "Fuzzy" Hoyle engaged. The undefeated league leaders were limited to three hits, two by DeLuca and a double by Minnicks. The losers obtained six hits, four of which were shared by Lepley and Hoyle.

Davis Gassers nosed out Liberty Dairy in another game played at Taylor Field by the score of 8 to 7 in eight innings. Athey's infield fly which was dropped scored the winning run.

At Pennsylvania Avenue Field Post's defeated the King ten by the score of 6 to 0 behind the four-hit pitching of Roby.

In a league game played Monday, Trozzo's made it eight in a row by downing the Candy Kitchen, 3 to 1, at Penn Field.

Two runs in the fourth settled the issue when a walk and long singles by Minnicks and Spoltore sent over the tying and deciding markers.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP) — Ken Overlin gets his shot at the New York edition of the world middleweight title tomorrow night, and he might do right well by himself.

Overlin is a strange challenger for a title, inasmuch as he's been around a long time, and has something like 173 fights behind him. The logical question is: where has he been all this time? And the equally logical reply is: where hasn't he been?

He's been from Buffalo to Borneo and from Sedalia to Australia. His diary was written in a time table. Last year he had fifteen fights in twelve different cities, meeting Ben Brown so often they began to catch on to each other's signals.

He is managed by Vince Dundee, who has developed the remote control technique to a high degree. Vince would book a fight, send Overlin an urgent wire telling him to go to such and such a place for a fight, and then check the morning papers the next day to see what happened.

Everything usually happened for the best. Overlin lost not more than a dozen of his 173 bouts, his last defeat being at the hands of Teddy Yarosa at Houston in March, 1939. He was kayoed by Freddie Steele, but he has an alibi for that one. He was suffering from jaundice, which he admits not only was serious but hard to spell.

Born in Decatur, Ill., Overlin is a product of the navy school of boxing. He joined the Navy and for some time was headquartered at Norfolk, Va., where he began to pick up loose change by engaging in pro bouts.

After leaving the navy he packed up his toothbrush and ring trunks and started traveling. His only training was fighting, which he did whenever his manager could find a spot for him.

He's harder to hit than a daily double, although his own punch is a little on the feathery side. For want of a better description, he's something like Maxie Rosenbloom, and Dumb Dan Morgan, astute judge of fighters, says Overlin is the best boxer the middleweight division has seen in years.

Henderson said the Big Green would appear nightly during the three-day tournament as a special attraction against outside opposition not yet named.

Garcia To Defend Title in Fight Tonight

Filipino Will Be Favored To Trim Overlin

Odds on Champ May Be Backed Down to 1-2 at Ringside

Two Outdoor Shows May Come Out of Middleweight Scrap

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—For the third time since he won it last October, Ceferino Garcia lays his world's middleweight title (New York-California version) on the line tomorrow night in a 15-round bout with Ken Overlin of Washington in Madison Square Garden.

Out of the scrap may come two outdoor shows. There is talk of matching the winner with Light-heavyweight Champ Billy Conn in one of the New York ball parks during the summer.

Also, there is a possibility that the victor may get a shot at Al Hostak of Seattle, recognized as middleweight king by the National Boxing Association. Nate Druxman, Seattle promoter who controls Hostak, is conferring here with Mike Jacobs, head of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club about such a match. Thus far there is no agreement since Druxman wants the bout in Seattle while Jacobs holds out for New York.

Odds are shortening on Garcia, who was a 5-13 favorite earlier in the week. There is plenty of Overlin money around at this price and it may be the Filipino will be backed down to 1-2 at ringside.

Garcia won his crown from Fred Apostoli in the opening show of the Garden season last October. In a most convincing display of power, he hammered Apostoli into submission in seven rounds.

Since then Garcia has made two successful title defenses. He beat Glenn Lee in 13 rounds at Manila last October and later thwarted the title bid of Henry Armstrong, the welterweight king, in a draw at Los Angeles. Since quitting the welters 18 months ago, Garcia has opposed 16 middleweights without a setback.

Overlin, rated one of the most improved boxers in the game, has been beaten only once in 20 starts in the last two years.

Sixteen Qualify For Speed Classic At Indianapolis

Petillo, Former Winner, Listed among Starters for May 30 Event

INDIANAPOLIS, May 22 (AP)—The assured starting field for the Indianapolis motor speedway 500-mile race May 30 was increased to 16 today as Kelly Petillo and Sam Hanks, both of Los Angeles; George Barringer, of Wichita Falls, Tex., and Harry McQuinn, of Indianapolis qualified for the speed classic.

Petillo, one of two former winners of the "500" entered this year, wheeled his own four-cylinder mount around the track at a speed of 125.331 miles an hour to win the inside position in the fifth row.

Sitting alongside Petillo in the fifth row will be Hanks, a newcomer to the Indianapolis track. Piloting a car entered by Leon Duray, a former driver, Hanks reeled off ten miles at 123.064 miles an hour.

The third man in the fifth row will be McQuinn, driving a car entered by Big Bill White, of Los Angeles. McQuinn, who broke a water line in practice Sunday, got his speedster up to 122.486 miles an hour for the four-lap test.

Barringer won the inside spot in the sixth row with a speed of 121.889 miles an hour.

only at home but also abroad." Tydings, who was named a delegate-at-large to the National Convention, continued. "I hope that, at Chicago, we may do the right thing, whatever the exigencies of the situation may be."

The state meeting was marked by perfect surface harmony. At the same time, no mention was made of two issues which kept the pre-convention caucuses in considerable uproar. One was a proposal of leaders to have the national delegation name William P. Lane of Hagerstown as National committeeman.

The other revolved about Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menefee's continuance as national committeewoman. Three candidates were in the field to succeed her and party leaders apparently were unable to settle the behind-the-scenes contest.

It was generally understood, however, that considerable early opposition to Lane had been overcome and that he would be named.

Formal nomination of Senator George L. Radcliffe as a candidate to succeed himself was made unanimous after Howard Bruce, retiring national committeeman and Radcliffe's defeated primary opponent, withdrew his name from the convention.

Bruce urged a united party front in November and called upon his supporters to back Radcliffe "wholeheartedly."

As was anticipated, Joshua Warfield, Democratic state chairman for six years, submitted his formal resignation and the convention promptly elected Truman B. Cash of Westminster as his successor.

In addition to Tydings, the delegates-at-large included Bruce, Radcliffe, Governor O'Conor, Mayor Howard W. Jackson, former Gov. Emerson C. Harrington, Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles, and Philip Perlman, former city solicitor of Baltimore.

Others in the thirty-two-member delegation:

Edward J. Colgan, Jr., George M. Smith, Amsauel H. Hoffberger, James H. Pollock, S. Lawrence Hammerman, O. L. Bonifay, Julian B. Carrick and William R. Padgett, all of Baltimore.

State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, Attorney General William C. Walsh, Fletcher Sisk, Former State Senator William Dodson, David Cohen, S. Scott Beck, Jr., and State Senate President Arthur Brice, representing the Eastern Shore.

Trozzo's Extend Winning Streak To Nine Games

Geatz's Circuit Clout in Third Sinks Candy Kitchen, 2 to 1

Trozzo's extended its winning streak to nine games yesterday by nosing out the Candy Kitchen by the score of 2 to 1 at Taylor Field in a South End Softball League game.

Geatz's home run with one aboard in the third inning was the deciding factor in a neat pitching duel in which "Bunny" Saum and "Fuzzy" Hoyle engaged. The undefeated league leaders were limited to three hits, two by DeLuca and a double by Minnicks. The losers obtained six hits, four of which were shared by Lepley and Hoyle.

Davis Gassers nosed out Liberty Dairy in another game played at Taylor Field by the score of 8 to 7 in eight innings. Athey's infield fly which was dropped scored the winning run.

At Pennsylvania Avenue Field Post's defeated the King ten by the score of 6 to 0 behind the four-hit pitching of Roby.

In a league game played Monday, Trozzo's made it eight in a row by downing the Candy Kitchen, 3 to 1 at Penn Field.

Two runs in the fourth settled the issue when a walk and long singles by Minnicks and Spoltore sent over the tying and deciding markers.

Buchholtz Loses Clerkship Fight In Appeal Court

Mason Hill Winner In Lengthy Wrangle For Richard's Job

William H. Buchholtz yesterday lost his fight to qualify as clerk to the Allegany county board of commissioners when the Court of Appeals ruled that Gov. O'Conor had no authority by law to fill a vacancy in the office.

O'Conor appointed Buchholtz to the post after the commissioners had ousted the elected clerk, Thomas P. Richards.

When Buchholtz attempted to qualify, Robert Jackson, clerk of the Allegany Circuit Court, refused to administer the oath of office. The county board appointed R. Mason Hill, assistant clerk, to the position.

Court Action Began Months Ago

As a result, last January Buchholtz filed a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel Jackson and the county commissioners to permit him to qualify and to force Hill to surrender the position.

A demurrer filed by Hill, Jackson and the county commissioners was sustained by the lower court and Buchholtz's petition was dismissed.

Buchholtz then took the case to the Court of Appeals.

The question the Appeals Court had to decide was whether the county board had the right to name its clerk in case of a vacancy or whether Buchholtz had a legal right to the office by virtue of O'Conor's appointment.

Governor "Without Authority"

In handing down an opinion yesterday at Annapolis, Judge Edward S. Delaplaine said the governor "has no authority to make the appointment since the Legislature has prescribed that the clerk shall be elected.

"The governor's power to fill vacancies does not extend to offices which are filled in the first instance by election or by appointment by someone else."

Judge Delaplaine declared that under the general law the county boards of each country have the power to appoint clerks.

Word of the Annapolis decision yesterday was first received by Walter C. Capper, attorney for the board, who immediately flashed it to the Court House.

Case Apparently Closed

Capper said yesterday he had not had an opportunity to study the opinion, but said it apparently backed the original contention of the commissioners, namely, that the governor had no power to make such an appointment. Capper was assisted in the case by Horace P. Whitworth, while Edward J. Ryan and W. Earle Cobey were counsel for Buchholtz.

At the request of the governor, Attorney General William C. Walsh entered the case as amicus curiae.

The Appeals Court opinion apparently closes the matter, which originally started out as a three-way scrap with Richards fighting to be restored to his job, Hill trying to hold it and Buchholtz attempting to be qualified as the governor's appointee.

Fort Hill Homemakers Do Convincing Work

350 Visitors Attend School's Open House

College Professor Speaks on Charm And Deep Breaths

The girls in the homemaking department at Fort Hill high school played hostesses yesterday to their mothers and friends at an all-day open house.

To say they "played" at being hostesses may be idiomatic, but hardly correct. For these girls at Fort Hill, homemaking seems to be a serious business.

Certainly their many rooms full of exhibits and demonstrations were enough to prove that.

Mothers Impressed

Their mothers obviously were impressed, but maybe they already knew how capable their young daughters are.

This reporter was impressed, too, if that means anything. Any bachelor would have been impressed. Such an array of domestic capabilities and accomplishments was almost overwhelming.

To begin with, the corridors were filled with the tantalizing aroma of freshly baked cake, and anyone with half a nose at all could soon find his way to the place where they were giving out free samples.

Other Samples

They also had samples there of how cakes turn out when you don't put in enough of this, or too much of that. These samples, of course, were turned out on purpose as an exhibit. They looked pretty good at that, but they were not giving them away.

The reporter promptly discovered some other samples, too, but they were for exhibit only. They were in a room all fixed up for a tea party, with lace curtains and candles, and fine furniture.

When some young graduate from Fort Hill has to entertain her young husband's boss's wife, she'll know just how to do it. Probably win him a raise, too.

There was a poster on the wall telling just how to act at a tea party, and other exhibits showing that Fort Hill girls know how to send and reply to all kinds of invitations, which may not seem important, but often are.

Many Things Taught

There were other exhibits showing how to tell which soap powder is gritty and which isn't, no matter what the makers say over the radio; and how to train children; and all about vitamins, and calories, and buying tender steaks.

There were exhibits on baby care which left no doubt about the welfare of the future generation. And a beauty clinic, too, where the girls learn to groom themselves for that man or that job, without having to run around the corner to the beauty parlor every time they expect a date.

There were eighth graders busy sewing, a colorful exhibit on the arrangement of flowers to brighten the home, demonstrations of plain and fancy needlework.

Training for Important Career

To make a long story short, it was a well-planned and interesting display of how Fort Hill high school is preparing so many of its girls for the career in which they should be, and are, most interested—the career of happy homemaking.

To be more general about it, they're laying the foundations for a better, healthier community. And, to be somewhat selfish about it, for happier husbands.

Climax of the day was a fashion show held following the charm lecture in the auditorium.

Old-Fashioned Costumes

Old-fashioned costumes were displayed in a brilliant parade, setting off the various periods of American history against a background of period music played by the school orchestra.

Then came the modern costumes, designed by the girls themselves for work and play.

All were modeled on a stage cleverly arranged as a colorful garden scene.

Entertain at Tea

The mothers were entertained at tea after the performance.

Altogether, some 350 visitors attended the open house. There are 600 students in the Homemaking Department.

Teachers in the department are Miss Evelyn Miller, Miss Jean Baer, Miss Jane Long, Miss Yola Hudson and Miss Isabel Bewick.

If you have to enter a room full of strange people, make a radio talk, or greet the new boy friend, you may be flustered or plain scared to death.

Stop and take a good, deep breath. Take another one if you have to. Then you'll be in lots better shape to carry on.

That was the very best piece of advice she could give them, Mrs. Hester Beall Provensen told an auditorium full of Fort Hill girls and their mothers yesterday afternoon.

Girls Told About Charm

Mrs. Provensen, whose talk was one of the highlights of the open house sponsored by the Homemaking Department of the school, is associate professor of speech at the University of Maryland.

Her discussion yesterday was devoted to fundamentals of charm for young girls, and she told them everything from how to get sheen in their hair to what not to say to the boy friend.

Mrs. Provensen, who made a very charming appearance herself, not only talked, but she demonstrated. She showed the girls how they looked if they didn't stand right, and she let them hear how they sound when they mumble their words or get to whining.

Don't Whine, She Says

"The most unforgivable sin a woman can commit is whining," she said. She stressed, too, that every girl is capable of a pleasant speaking voice, but that many of them never take the trouble to cultivate it.

"Why, I listen t many of the women talking at bridge parties, and wonder how their husbands ever stand it," she said.

Mrs. Provensen underlined the need of being dependable, saying that of twelve NYA workers who had assisted in the speech department at college, only one could be depended upon to do the tasks outlined.

Grooming Important

The charm teacher stressed good grooming, too. Charm depends on this more than on beauty or expensive clothes she said. And as for the sheen in a girl's hair, she said the girls knew as well as she that nothing could put it there but elbow grease, but that all kinds of permanent waves and fancy treatments couldn't take the place of it.

Mrs. Provensen urged her young listeners to tackle the problems they come up against like they were playing a role on a stage.

"Even when you're cleaning house", she said, "you can pretend you're the world's best house cleaner and try to live the part."

As for the boy friend, Mrs. Provensen advised the girls to be interested in what he is interested in. Don't talk about your girl friends, she said, and never, never, never tell him what a good time you had with Henry the night before.

Thoughts on Love

She said her talk wouldn't be complete without something on "Love".

Love, she said, "does not consist in looking at one another, but in looking outward together in the same direction.

"When you find a man you feel that way about, girls, hold him".

Ask a great deal of life, and you'll get a great deal back, she said. "Remember life will pay you whatever wages you ask".

Twenty-five members of the staff of the "Pasquino," student newspaper at Potomac State College, Keyser, W. Va., gathered last night at the New Century hotel in Romney for their annual banquet.

Heirs Claim Deed Made by Father, 76, Is Fraudulent

"Fraud and misrepresentation" yesterday was charged by the three children of the late William P. Ryan, of Mexico Farms, when they filed a petition in Circuit Court asking that their father's will be annulled.

Represented by Attorney Lewis M. Wilson, Nora G. Swan, Betty B. Ryan and Joseph A. Ryan charge that Susie Whittaker used "undue influence and coercion" in inducing their enfeebled 76-year-old father to sign over his ten-acre farm and other possessions to her.

Prior to his death on May 14, their father was infirm and his mind enfeebled, the children aver. They charge that sometime last November, Susie Whittaker, who was looking after him, induced their father to "sign a paper purporting to be a deed" signing over his property. The document was duly recorded.

This deed, the petitioners state, is fraudulent and void and should be set aside and the property restored to the rightful heirs, the three petitioning children.

Crash Driver, Fined $5, Appeals to Circuit Court

William F. Malone, of South Smallwood street, who was fined $5 and costs Monday in Trial Magistrates court for failing to keep to the right-center of the Uhl highway, has filed notice of an appeal to Circuit court.

Malone was arrested Saturday night near Evitt's creek following a three-way collision with cars driven by Richard Cooley, of Washington, and Lester Ritchie, of Spring Gap.

Representative Compton I. White, of Idaho, although not an attorney, hurried here from Washington to defend Cooley, a clerk in his office, who faced the same charge as Malone. He won his case.

Witnesses Won't Talk, Slapped into Jail

State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris yesterday batted 111 when he set about grilling nine men supposed to know something about beer being sold Sunday in two Eckhart establishments.

Nine men, all supposed to have been present Sunday when the sheriff popped in, were brought to the State's attorney's office yesterday morning. One talked. But the other eight proved inarticulate—to say the least.

Unenlightened, the State's attorney ordered the eight inarticulate ones carted to the county jail.

However, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe couldn't get them all in his car so he paraded them up Baltimore street and Washington street to the jailhouse.

They were still there late yesterday.

The trouble started when Sheriff Radcliffe, Deputy Sheriff Henry McKee and State Troopers George Miller and Austin Bikle visited the beer parlors operated by Albert Starkey and Thomas Maher Sunday afternoon.

Some seventeen persons were found present in the two places. Their names were taken by the officers. Several partly-filled beer bottles were also taken the officers said, and are now locked up in the sheriff's strongbox.

The first batch of witnesses was brought to the State's attorney's office Monday night. There were five. On this occasion County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle batted a thousand in the matter of statement-getting.

Whether all the members of the group taken unceremoniously to the jail yesterday had been drinking beer is not known. Whether they saw anybody drinking beer Sunday afternoon is not known either.

Sheriff Radcliffe said the eight men were all from around the Eckhart area.

Fall from Car Injures Youth

Hitch-Hiker, 13, Riding on Bumper

A 13-year-old South Cumberland youth was injured about the head and body, possibly seriously, last night when he fell from the rear bumper of an automobile on which he had hopped at Evitt's Creek.

David Short, of 930 Gay street, was knocked unconscious when he fell on Williams road from the car operated by Carl L. Gray, of 501 Springdale street.

Young Short reportedly boarded the car at Evitt's Creek and rode up a nearby hill for about 500 yards before he fell. An occupant of the Gray car happened to look back and saw the boy's motionless body on the road.

Gray immediately rushed the youth to Memorial hospital. He was still unconscious when admitted to the dispensary, but regained consciousness later.

Hospital attaches were unable to say whether young Short's injuries were serious. He remained in the hospital for observation. His condition was reported "fair".

Police investigated the accident. No charges were placed against Gray.

It was believed that the youth might have been swimming in the creek and later jumped on the car to ride home.

William H. Emmart, 44, of 228 Williams street, a B&O brakeman, suffered injuries about his left side last night when he fell about fifteen feet from the top of a freight car and struck a track switch.

Emmart was taken to Allegany hospital and admitted. X-rays will be taken to determine the extent of his injuries. He was reported "fair" late last night.

Hospital attendants said they understood Emmart lost his balance and fell over the side of the car, clear of the wheels.

Council Orders Driscoll Paid

Fred B. Driscoll yesterday was ordered paid $50 for services to the Board of Election Supervisors as the members of the city council, but not the mayor, reversed themselves.

All four councilmen voted to pay Driscoll for his services in the recent municipal election. Mayor Irvine opposed the payment.

Mayor Irvine made it very clear that he has absolutely nothing against Driscoll personally but that the bill was twice what it had been before and also more exorbitant than others submitted.

The mayor claimed a similar bill was $25 in 1936 and furthermore, that more work was done at that time.

Driscoll declared the bill was reasonable and added that he was also paid to help in the state primary election. And if any bills were out of line, there were others more so than his own, he declared.

Finance Commissioner Thomas F. Conlon urged that the council take final action yesterday while the mayor proposed that the matter be referred to the finance commissioner for a recommendation.

Florida Divorce No Good Here, Judge Declares

Opinion Handed Down In P. W. Mauk Case; Couple Still Wed

A divorce obtained by Presley Wayne Mauk in Florida in 1939 was declared null and void yesterday by Associate Judge William A. Huster, whose opinion clarifies the marital status of Mrs. Ida Marie Mauk.

Until yesterday, Mrs. Mauk wasn't sure whether she was married or not. That was why she filed a petition against Mauk in Circuit court.

Back in 1937, Mrs. Mauk filed divorce proceedings against her husband. Mr. Mauk, a dairy operator, filed a cross bill asking an absolute divorce. Both petitinos were dismissed.

In 1939, according to Mrs. Mauk's petition, Mauk perpetrated a fraud on the State of Florida when he was given a decree in Duvall county Circuit court of that state. He was not a resident in that county or in the state, Mrs. Mauk claimed.

Next, Mauk "entered into a purported marriage" with another woman, the petition charged.

In view of these facts, Mrs. Mauk asked the court to straighten her out on the matter of whether she was or was not still married to her husband.

Judge Huster ruled yesterday that the Circuit court of Duvall county, Florida, had no jurisdiction in the matter and that the decree awarded Mauk was null and void and of no effect whatever in Maryland.

The court also declared that "said parties are man and wife to the same extent as if the Florida decree had not been passed."

Mrs. Mauk was represented by Attorneys George L. Williamson and Albert A. Doub Jr.

Young Gate-Crasher 'Noisy'; Is Arrested

A 16-year-old youth was arrested last night in the Strand theater on a charge of disorderly conduct after he reportedly sneaked into the building and then became "noisy" during the show.

The youth gave his name as James Klosterman, of 426 Columbia street, when booked at headquarters. He was summoned to appear this morning in Police court for a hearing.

Theater attendants detained the youth in the lobby until Officer W. B. Lovenstein appeared in answer to their call.

A 33-year-old Cumberland man wanted by county authorities since Feb. 6 was apprehended yesterday in Washington by County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and Deputy Sheriff Edward P. Kaylor.

Forestry Bureau Transfer Opposed At Meeting Here

Sportsmen, Farmers Of Three Counties Protest to Governor

Washington, Garrett and Allegany county members of the advisory councils of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission last night wired Governor O'Conor that they are opposed to the proposal to place the State Forestry Department under the jurisdiction of the University of Maryland.

This was the only official act taken by some forty sportsmen and leading farmers in the tri-county area who yesterday met at the Algonquin hotel for what was the first meeting of its type ever held in the state.

Four Officials Present

Primary purpose of the parley was to discuss the chief problems now being encountered by sportsmen in the three counties and, if possible, to correlate these problems and work for a mutual understanding. The discussions were graced by the presence of four of the leading exponents of game conversation in the state, James H. Gambrill Jr. and Fulcher P. Smith, members of the State Game Commission, State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte and Deputy State Warden Richard T. Norris.

Members present agreed that a state dog law with teeth in it should be set up and strictly enforced if conservation of game is to be properly effected.

Western Area Colder

In discussing game laws, it was brought out that the present state laws often work a hardship on sportsmen of the three counties since all three are in a colder belt than the rest of the state.

Opinion differed regarding the possibility of a state-wide license to raise more money for conservation work and the propagation of game. However, the matter was thoroughly discussed and sportsmen present agreed to discuss the possibilities pro and con with members of their respective organizations.

The point was brought out that it is vitally necessary that more money be raised if the state is to adequately handle the conservation and game propagation problem.

Session Adjourns at 10 p. m.

New Fire Station In the News Again

"What about a new Central fire station," Police and Fire Commissioner James Orr inquired yesterday.

With the question raised once again, the mayor and members of the city council gave the matter some consideration with the result that steps may be taken to secure an additional strip of land next to the present fire house.

The extra strip will have to be purchased if the firehouse planned by Architect George F. Sansbury is constructed.

The city already has power to issue $50,000 in bonds for the work. The money must be used to construct the building, purchase equipment, buy a fire alarm system and establish a police radio system. None of the commissioners believe the $50,000 will cover so much ground.

Members of the council proposed yesterday that bids on the proposed firehouse be secured before the bonds are offered for sale.

Mason Hill Winner In Lengthy Wrangle For Richard's Job

William H. Buchholtz yesterday lost his fight to qualify as clerk to the Allegany county board of commissioners when the Court of Appeals ruled that Gov. O'Conor had no authority by law to fill a vacancy in the office.

O'Conor appointed Buchholtz to the post after the commissioners had ousted the elected clerk, Thomas P. Richards.

When Buchholtz attempted to qualify, Robert Jackson, clerk of the Allegany Circuit Court, refused to administer the oath of office. The county board appointed R. Mason Hill, assistant clerk, to the position.

Court Action Began Months Ago

As a result, last January Buchholtz filed a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel Jackson and the county commissioners to permit him to qualify and to force Hill to surrender the position.

A demurrer filed by Hill, Jackson and the county commissioners was sustained by the lower court and Buchholtz's petition was dismissed.

Buchholtz then took the case to the Court of Appeals.

The question the Appeals Court had to decide was whether the county board had the right to name its clerk in case of a vacancy or whether Buchholtz had a legal right to the office by virtue of O'Conor's appointment.

Governor "Without Authority"

In handing down an opinion yesterday at Annapolis, Judge Edward S. Delaplaine said the governor "has no authority to make the appointment since the Legislature has prescribed that the clerk shall be elected.

"The governor's power to fill vacancies does not extend to offices which are filled in the first instance by election or by appointment by someone else."

Judge Delaplaine declared that under the general law the county boards of each country have the power to appoint clerks.

Word of the Annapolis decision yesterday was first received by Walter C. Capper, attorney for the board, who immediately flashed it to the Court House.

Case Apparently Closed

Capper said yesterday he had not had an opportunity to study the opinion, but said it apparently backed the original contention of the commissioners, namely, that the governor had no power to make such an appointment. Capper was assisted in the case by Horace P. Whitworth, while Edward J. Ryan and W. Earle Cobey were counsel for Buchholtz.

At the request of the governor, Attorney General William C. Walsh entered the case as amicus curiae.

The Appeals Court opinion apparently closes the matter, which originally started out as a three-way scrap with Richards fighting to be restored to his job, Hill trying to hold it and Buchholtz attempting to be qualified as the governor's appointee.

Fort Hill Homemakers Do Convincing Work

College Professor Speaks on Charm And Deep Breaths

The girls in the homemaking department at Fort Hill high school played hostesses yesterday to their mothers and friends at an all-day open house.

To say they "played" at being hostesses may be idiomatic, but hardly correct. For these girls at Fort Hill, homemaking seems to be a serious business.

Certainly their many rooms full of exhibits and demonstrations were enough to prove that.

Mothers Impressed

Their mothers obviously were impressed, but maybe they already knew how capable their young daughters are.

This reporter was impressed, too, if that means anything. Any bachelor would have been impressed. Such an array of domestic capabilities and accomplishments was almost overwhelming.

To begin with, the corridors were filled with the tantalizing aroma of freshly baked cake, and anyone with half a nose at all could soon find his way to the place where they were giving out free samples.

Other Samples

They also had samples there of how cakes turn out when you don't put in enough of this, or too much of that. These samples, of course, were turned out on purpose as an exhibit. They looked pretty good at that, but they were not giving them away.

The reporter promptly discovered some other samples, too, but they were for exhibit only. They were in a room all fixed up for a tea party, with lace curtains and candles, and fine furniture.

When some young graduate from Fort Hill has to entertain her young husband's boss's wife, she'll know just how to do it. Probably win him a raise, too.

There was a poster on the wall telling just how to act at a tea party, and other exhibits showing that Fort Hill girls know how to send and reply to all kinds of invitations, which may not seem important, but often are.

Many Things Taught

There were other exhibits showing how to tell which soap powder is gritty and which isn't, no matter what the makers say over the radio; and how to train children; and all about vitamins, and calories, and buying tender steaks.

There were exhibits on baby care which left no doubt about the welfare of the future generation. And a beauty clinic, too, where the girls learn to groom themselves for that man or that job, without having to run around the corner to the beauty parlor every time they expect a date.

There were eighth graders busy sewing, a colorful exhibit on the arrangement of flowers to brighten the home, demonstrations of plain and fancy needlework.

Training for Important Career

To make a long story short, it was a well-planned and interesting display of how Fort Hill high school is preparing so many of its girls for the career in which they should be, and are, most interested—the career of happy homemaking.

To be more general about it, they're laying the foundations for a better, healthier community. And, to be somewhat selfish about it, for happier husbands.

Climax of the day was a fashion show held following the charm lecture in the auditorium.

Old-Fashioned Costumes

Old-fashioned costumes were displayed in a brilliant parade, setting off the various periods of American history against a background of period music played by the school orchestra.

Then came the modern costumes, designed by the girls themselves for work and play.

All were modeled on a stage cleverly arranged as a colorful garden scene.

Entertain at Tea

The mothers were entertained at tea after the performance.

Altogether, some 350 visitors attended the open house. There are 600 students in the Homemaking Department.

Teachers in the department are Miss Evelyn Miller, Miss Jean Baer, Miss Jane Long, Miss Yola Hudson, and Miss Isabel Bewick.

If you have to enter a room full of strange people, make a radio talk, or greet the new boy friend, you may be flustered or plain scared to death.

Stop and take a good, deep breath. Take another one if you have to. Then you'll be in lots better shape to carry on.

That was the very best piece of advice she could give them, Mrs. Hester Beall Provensen told an auditorium full of Fort Hill girls and their mothers yesterday afternoon.

Girls Told About Charm

Mrs. Provensen, whose talk was one of the highlights of the open house sponsored by the Homemaking Department of the school, is associate professor of speech at the University of Maryland.

Her discussion yesterday was devoted to fundamentals of charm for young girls, and she told them everything from how to get sheen in their hair to what not to say to the boy friend.

Mrs. Provensen, who made a very charming appearance herself, not only talked, but she demonstrated. She showed the girls how they looked if they didn't stand right, and she let them hear how they sound when they mumble their words or get to whining.

Don't Whine, She Says

"The most unforgivable sin a woman can commit is whining," she said. She stressed, too, that every girl is capable of a pleasant speaking voice, but that many of them never take the trouble to cultivate it.

"Why, I listen t many of the women talking at bridge parties, and wonder how their husbands ever stand it," she said.

Mrs. Provensen underlined the need of being dependable, saying that of twelve NYA workers who had assisted in the speech department at college, only one could be depended upon to do the tasks outlined.

Grooming Important

The charm teacher stressed good grooming, too. Charm depends on this more than on beauty or expensive clothes she said. And as for the sheen in a girl's hair, she said the girls knew as well as she that nothing could put it there but elbow grease, but that all kinds of permanent waves and fancy treatments couldn't take the place of it.

Mrs. Provensen urged her young listeners to tackle the problems they come up against like they were playing a role on a stage.

"Even when you're cleaning house", she said, "you can pretend you're the world's best house cleaner and try to live the part."

As for the boy friend, Mrs. Provensen advised the girls to be interested in what he is interested in. Don't talk about your girl friends, she said, and never, never, never tell him what a good time you had with Henry the night before.

Thoughts on Love

She said her talk wouldn't be complete without something on "Love".

Love, she said, "does not consist in looking at one another, but in looking outward together in the same direction.

"When you find a man you feel that way about, girls, hold him".

Ask a great deal of life, and you'll get a great deal back, she said. "Remember life will pay you whatever wages you ask".

Heirs Claim Deed Made by Father, 76, Is Fraudulent

"Fraud and misrepresentation" yesterday was charged by the three children of the late William P. Ryan, of Mexico Farms, when they filed a petition in Circuit Court asking that their father's will be annulled.

Represented by Attorney Lewis M. Wilson, Nora G. Swan, Betty B. Ryan and Joseph A. Ryan charge that Susie Whittaker used "undue influence and coercion" in inducing their enfeebled 76-year-old father to sign over his ten-acre farm and other possessions to her.

Prior to his death on May 14, their father was infirm and his mind enfeebled, the children aver. They charge that sometime last November, Susie Whittaker, who was looking after him, induced their father to "sign a paper purporting to be a deed" signing over his property. The document was duly recorded.

This deed, the petitioners state, is fraudulent and void and should be set aside and the property restored to the rightful heirs, the three petitioning children.

Crash Driver, Fined $5, Appeals to Circuit Court

William F. Malone, of South Smallwood street, who was fined $5 and costs Monday in Trial Magistrates court for failing to keep to the right-center of the Uhl highway, has filed notice of an appeal to Circuit court.

Malone was arrested Saturday night near Evitt's creek following a three-way collision with cars driven by Richard Cooley, of Washington, and Lester Ritchie, of Spring Gap.

Representative Compton I. White, of Idaho, although not an attorney, hurried here from Washington to defend Cooley, a clerk in his office, who faced the same charge as Malone. He won his case.

Witnesses Won't Talk, Slapped into Jail

State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris yesterday batted 111 when he set about grilling nine men supposed to know something about beer being sold Sunday in two Eckhart establishments.

Nine men, all supposed to have been present Sunday when the sheriff popped in, were brought to the State's attorney's office yesterday morning. One talked. But the other eight proved inarticulate—to say the least.

Unenlightened, the State's attorney ordered the eight inarticulate ones carted to the county jail.

However, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe couldn't get them all in his car so he paraded them up Baltimore street and Washington street to the jailhouse.

They were still there late yesterday.

The trouble started when Sheriff Radcliffe, Deputy Sheriff Henry McKee and State Troopers George Miller and Austin Bikle visited the beer parlors operated by Albert Starkey and Thomas Maher Sunday afternoon.

Some seventeen persons were found present in the two places. Their names were taken by the officers. Several partly-filled beer bottles were also taken the officers said, and are now locked up in the sheriff's strongbox.

The first batch of witnesses was brought to the State's attorney's office Monday night. There were five. On this occasion County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle batted a thousand in the matter of statement-getting.

Whether all the members of the group taken unceremoniously to the jail yesterday had been drinking beer is not known. Whether they saw anybody drinking beer Sunday afternoon is not known either.

Sheriff Radcliffe said the eight men were all from around the Eckhart area.

Fall from Car Injures Youth

Hitch-Hiker, 13, Riding on Bumper

A 13-year-old South Cumberland youth was injured about the head and body, possibly seriously, last night when he fell from the rear bumper of an automobile on which he had hopped at Evitt's Creek.

David Short, of 930 Gay street, was knocked unconscious when he fell on Williams road from the car operated by Carl L. Gray, of 501 Springdale street.

Young Short reportedly boarded the car at Evitt's Creek and rode up a nearby hill for about 500 yards before he fell. An occupant of the Gray car happened to look back and saw the boy's motionless body on the road.

Gray immediately rushed the youth to Memorial hospital. He was still unconscious when admitted to the dispensary, but regained consciousness later.

Hospital attaches were unable to say whether young Short's injuries were serious. He remained in the hospital for observation. His condition was reported "fair".

Police investigated the accident. No charges were placed against Gray.

It was believed that the youth might have been swimming in the creek and later jumped on the car to ride home.

William H. Emmart, 44, of 228 Williams street, a B&O brakeman, suffered injuries about his left side last night when he fell about fifteen feet from the top of a freight car and struck a track switch.

Emmart was taken to Allegany hospital and admitted. X-rays will be taken to determine the extent of his injuries. He was reported "fair" late last night.

Hospital attendants said they understood Emmart lost his balance and fell over the side of the car, clear of the wheels.

Council Orders Driscoll Paid

Fred B. Driscoll yesterday was ordered paid $50 for services to the Board of Election Supervisors as the members of the city council, but not the mayor, reversed themselves.

All four councilmen voted to pay Driscoll for his services in the recent municipal election. Mayor Irvine opposed the payment.

Mayor Irvine made it very clear that he has absolutely nothing against Driscoll personally but that the bill was twice what it had been before and also more exorbitant than others submitted.

The mayor claimed a similar bill was $25 in 1936 and furthermore, that more work was done at that time.

Driscoll declared the bill was reasonable and added that he was also paid to help in the state primary election. And if any bills were out of line, there were others more so than his own, he declared.

Finance Commissioner Thomas F. Conlon urged that the council take final action yesterday while the mayor proposed that the matter be referred to the finance commissioner for a recommendation.

Florida Divorce No Good Here, Judge Declares

Opinion Handed Down In P. W. Mauk Case; Couple Still Wed

A divorce obtained by Presley Wayne Mauk in Florida in 1939 was declared null and void yesterday by Associate Judge William A. Huster, whose opinion clarifies the marital status of Mrs. Ida Marie Mauk.

Until yesterday, Mrs. Mauk wasn't sure whether she was married or not. That was why she filed a petition against Mauk in Circuit court.

Back in 1937, Mrs. Mauk filed divorce proceedings against her husband. Mr. Mauk, a dairy operator, filed a cross bill asking an absolute divorce. Both petitinos were dismissed.

In 1939, according to Mrs. Mauk's petition, Mauk perpetrated a fraud on the State of Florida when he was given a decree in Duvall county Circuit court of that state. He was not a resident in that county or in the state, Mrs. Mauk claimed.

Next, Mauk "entered into a purported marriage" with another woman, the petition charged.

In view of these facts, Mrs. Mauk asked the court to straighten her out on the matter of whether she was or was not still married to her husband.

Judge Huster ruled yesterday that the Circuit court of Duvall county, Florida, had no jurisdiction in the matter and that the decree awarded Mauk was null and void and of no effect whatever in Maryland.

The court also declared that "said parties are man and wife to the same extent as if the Florida decree had not been passed."

Mrs. Mauk was represented by Attorneys George L. Williamson and Albert A. Doub Jr.

Sportsmen, Farmers Of Three Counties Protest to Governor

Washington, Garrett and Allegany county members of the advisory councils of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission last night wired Governor O'Conor that they are opposed to the proposal to place the State Forestry Department under the jurisdiction of the University of Maryland.

This was the only official act taken by some forty sportsmen and leading farmers in the tri-county area who yesterday met at the Algonquin hotel for what was the first meeting of its type ever held in the state.

Four Officials Present

Primary purpose of the parley was to discuss the chief problems now being encountered by sportsmen in the three counties and, if possible, to correlate these problems and work for a mutual understanding. The discussions were graced by the presence of four of the leading exponents of game conversation in the state, James H. Gambrill Jr. and Fulcher P. Smith, members of the State Game Commission, State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte and Deputy State Warden Richard T. Norris.

Members present agreed that a state dog law with teeth in it should be set up and strictly enforced if conservation of game is to be properly effected.

Western Area Colder

In discussing game laws, it was brought out that the present state laws often work a hardship on sportsmen of the three counties since all three are in a colder belt than the rest of the state.

Opinion differed regarding the possibility of a state-wide license to raise more money for conservation work and the propagation of game. However, the matter was thoroughly discussed and sportsmen present agreed to discuss the possibilities pro and con with members of their respective organizations.

The point was brought out that it is vitally necessary that more money be raised if the state is to adequately handle the conservation and game propagation problem.
